Why Wait on League Action? Says Note.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The British government believes the problem of naval limitation must be approached by a "limitation of types, tonnages, and guns of all categories," as opposed to the thesis of limiting only global tonnage, leaving the powers the option of building any type of craft desired within the total limits.

Great Britain tells France flatly that the world is demanding that the great nations begin disarming now. It warns against waiting for final action on all phases of armament by the league of nations.

It believes France's proposal for a Mediterranean pact goes considerably beyond the four power Pacific treaty, which France cites as a model. London further argues that the proposal is, in any case, superfluous, since all nations concerned are already members of the league of nations.

Sea, Land, and Air Phase.

It agrees with France that the problems of sea, land, and air disarmament are related, but believes it possible to take them up one at a time. These are the main points contained in Great Britain's reply to the French memorandum of Dec. 20 issued by the foreign office tonight.

"In part two, section one, of their memorandum," states the important paragraph of the British note, "the French government refers to a system of limitation of naval armaments by 'global tonnage.' His majesty's government has consistently expressed its preference for dealing with the problem of naval disarmament by strict limitation of types, tonnages and guns of all categories of warships, since it feels confident that any other methods of limitation must in the end preserve those elements from competition, an uncertainty which will be one of the express objects of the conference to eliminate.

"The problem of naval armaments involves not only the amount of tonnage but the use to which it is put. Nevertheless his majesty's government studied with great care the 'transactional proposal,' to which the French government refers, and is ready to discuss the possibility of some arrangement based on that proposal."

The Mediterranean Stand.

In dealing with the Mediterranean pact suggestion, another salient paragraph of the note states:

"His majesty's government learned with interest the views of the French government regarding the desirability of a treaty of mutual guarantee and nonaggression between Mediterranean powers. They agree that the four power treaty, relating to the Pacific, which resulted from the Washington conference, exerted a happy influence upon the negotiation of the Washington naval treaty.

"His majesty's government would only point out at this stage that a treaty such as suggested by the French government appears to go considerably further than the Pacific treaty, which provided only for summoning a conference for settlement of controversies and for joint consultation in the face of aggressive action. Inasmuch as all Mediterranean powers are members of the league of nations, it would appear that facilities already exist for a joint consultation in event of need. There is a great measure of security in this, but his majesty's government will be glad to exchange views on the subject with all the powers concerned."

FRENCH CRY "EVASION"

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Confronted with London's response to its naval memorandum, the French foreign office was inclined to be immoderate in enjoyment of some of the good British persiflage contained therein, but to doubt that the document means much now.

It interprets most of the reply as a polite evasion of the issues it raised in its memorandum. The French say they do not know, any more than they did, what is going to happen to them when they ask for 800,000 tons at London, insist on keeping submarines, and refuse a parity with Italy.

Great Britain's suggestion that powers, besides Spain, be invited for discussion of the pact is recognized here as a desire to drag in its friends the Greeks, which is entirely accept-

RISING RIVERS FLOOD SOUTH; TOWNS AWASH

California Blizzard Maroons 1,300.

Truman, Ark., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The villages of Bay and Lunsford, near here, have been flooded by the rapidly rising St. Francis river, and the larger town of Lake City is threatened. Several business houses in Bay have ceased operation and many families have left their homes.

It still was raining here tonight and drainage ditches were far out of their banks. The Memphis-Jonesboro highway was under water and traffic had been suspended.

Bay ditch, four miles west of here, was more than three miles wide and still rising, as were all streams in this section.

H. G. Huxable, state engineer at Forrest City, said tonight that Cache river was far past flood stage.

Rain Continues in "Valley."

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 12. — (AP) — Rain continued in the lower Mississippi valley tonight while all rivers rose as did the worries of a flood-harassed people.

Minor levees in Mississippi and Tennessee have been washed out; low lands in those states as well as Kentucky and Arkansas have been inundated and there were homeless persons in all four states. River observers agree the worst is yet to come.

The Green river was flooding near Calhoun, Ky., and the White and St. Francis were out of their banks in north Arkansas. Families in both sections have left their homes.

In north Mississippi the Coldwater river broke through a levee near Greenshaw and about four sections of extremely valuable farm lands were flooded. Several Negro families were removed in motor boats. Coldwater, a town of 2,000 population, was flooded.

Thirty Families Narrowly Escape.

A private levee on Obion river, near Dyersburg, Tenn., went out, and thirty families had narrow escapes.

Other levees on the Obion river which is twelve inches higher than during the disastrous 1927 flood, were in danger and were watched closely. Some levees have been submerged.

Lowlands were flooded near Hickman, Ky., at the only place the Mississippi itself was doing any damage. Many islands in the river area were inundated.

At Big Lake, Ark., levees around the lake were being patrolled. The lake was above flood stages and still rising. The White river was rising fast at Clarendon, Ark.

Menacing in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Renewed heavy rainfall last night and today again sent Indiana streams above flood stage throughout most of the state. The lower stretches of the Wabash and White rivers already are overflowing and it is predicted that only near zero weather will prevent conditions from becoming the worst since 1913.

Eight Feet Over Flood Stage.

Mount Carmel, Ill., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Wabash river went to 24.5 feet here today, eight and one-half feet above flood stage, driving out more families from the lowlands. Additional rain was falling. Practically all houses in flooded sections along the river have been abandoned.

1,300 SNOWBOUND IN WEST

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Approximately 1,300 motorists were reported snowbound in the Sierra foothills between San Andreas and Angels Camp today in the wake of an unusually heavy snowstorm which swept California from the Oregon border to Mexico.

The marooned motorists, on their way to the annual snow carnival at Calaveras big trees, took refuge in ranch houses at Vallecito, Angels Camp, and Murphy's, while the state highway department had emergency crews working with snow plows and scrapers in an attempt to make the roads passable.

Heavy snowfall through southern California tonight had cut off approximately 500 residents of snowbound mountain cabins from outside communication, while new blizzards trapped several scores of motorists on the ridge route and Cajon pass highways.

Two Freeze to Death.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Two men tonight were found frozen to death and several others were missing on the Jerome-Prescott highway, as the result of one of the worst snowstorms in the history of Yavapai county.

WHICH INFLUENCE WILL PREVAIL

Science Gives Chicago Soot a Black Mark

Smoke lays such a pall over Chicago that the city never gets more than one-quarter of the health giving ultraviolet rays to be found in the sunshine shed upon it, according to scientists at the University of Chicago. During the period from Dec. 1, to Jan. 31, the city gets none of the rays, the researchers say.

The conclusions are set forth in a survey of all recent experimental work, published today under the title of "Ultraviolet Light and Vitamin D in Nutrition."

Chicago Worst Sufferer.

Chicago is probably the worst sufferer from smoke, it is stated. Researches from New York, Washington, Boston and Toronto, for instance, show that the rays penetrate to those cities sufficiently even on the darkest days to have "anti rachitic" or bone forming value.

The scientists say the shortest wave lengths discoverable in Chicago during midwinter are 3.03 millionths of a millimeter, whereas to be of value for retention of calcium for the bones they must be shorter than 3.02 millionths.

Men's Clothes Bar Rays.

Dr. Katherine Blunt, now president of the Connecticut College for Women, formerly head of the home economics department at the Univedsity of Chicago, and Miss Ruth Cowan are authors of the book.

They express surprise that the new science of sunlight has not yet affected or influenced styles in men's clothing.

TO MR. PALMER, THE SCOTCHMAN, $5 MEANS FIGHT

William J. Palmer is 45 years old and lives at 5522 Throop street. He is proud of his Scoteh ancestry. Early yesterday Mr. Palmer was walking in 55th street. At Loomis street he was stopped by two young men. "We were going to hold you up," said one of them, "but if you will give us $5 we won't do it."

"Five dollars!" exclaimed Mr. Palmer. "I warn you, I'm a Scotchman!"

"Give us the $5," said the other young man, "or we'll have to hold you up and take you around in the alley and trim you in the bargain."

Mr. Palmer's Scotch blood boiled, and one of his fists shot out. One robber hit the pavement with the back of his head. The other fled. Mr. Palmer sat on his fallen foe until Sergt. William Sammons of the Englewood police came along.

"To think of them trying to get $5 from a Scotchman!" said Mr. Palmer, as the sergeant dragged William Delaney, 25 years old, 5653 Lincoln street, to the jail house.

HOLD UP COUPLE ENTERING HOME; GET $6,000 GEMS

Two armed men held up Max Provus, retired furniture merchant, and his wife, Sarah, as they were entering their home at 901 Glengyle place early this morning and escaped with jewelry valued at $6,000. The robbers took $2 and a diamond ring from Provus, tore a diamond brooch from Mrs. Provus' dress and three rings from her fingers, and ran toward Sheridan road. They overlooked a $2,000 fur coats which Mrs. Provus was wearing. The Provuses were returning from a banquet of the Hebrew Theological college, of which he is a director.

Shortly after midnight a woman with a pistol and a man companion took $20 from Nick Jimson, 3842 Wabash avenue, a taxicab driver, after riding with him from 16th street and Michigan avenue to Austin avenue and Halsted street.

N. Y. WILL SPEND $474,184,000 TO AID PROSPERITY

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12.—(AP)—New York state's answer to President Hoover's plea for public construction to help guarantee prosperity is a $474,184,000 public works program, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today wrote Secretary of Commerce Lamont. This includes state, city, and county projects.

Bomb Home of Attorney for Melrose Park

Two bombs were exploded simultaneously early this morning at the home of Guy C. Green, 1102 Broadway, Melrose Park, who is village attorney of the western suburb. The explosions smashed the front and rear porches of the bungalow and caused damage estimated at $5,000.

Green and his wife were thrown from bed by the force of the blasts, but neither was injured. Windows in an adjacent dwelling were broken, but aside from arousing a number of residents the double explosion caused no other damage in the neighborhood, which is the best residential section in Melrose Park.

Motive Is Mystery.

The motive for the explosion remained a mystery, although it was believed that Green in his official capacity might have incurred enmities among members of an alcohol cooking syndicate which is reported to have its headquarters in the town. This theory received little credence at the suburb's police station, however. The police said they knew of no reason for the bombing.

Attorney Knows No Reason.

Green, according to the police, declared that he had no enemies and could provide no explanation for the bombing. The attorney and his wife disappeared after a trip to the police station. Later it was reported they had gone to the home of the lawyer's brother, Robert Green, at 834 South 16th avenue, Melrose Park, but they could not be found at that address.

HUNDRED FLEE FIRE IN HOTEL ON NORTH SIDE

One hundred guests of the Foswyn Arms hotel at 5240 Winthrop avenue were driven to the street last night when fire swept the four story building from the basement to the roof, causing damage estimated at $35,000. Most of the damage was caused by smoke and water, the flames being confined to the rear end of the building.

The fire started from an overheated boiler and had gained considerable headway when a passerby noticed the smoke rolling from the basement. By the time fire equipment arrived the flames were leaping up the rear wall as high as the roof, wrecking the rooms at the rear on all four floors

Negro Wins Oratorical Contest Over Six Whites

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Theodore Howard, a Negro student at Union college here, was declared winner in a college oratorical contest held tonight. He had six white competitors. Howard will represent Nebraska in an interstate oratory contest to be held at Detroit, Mich., Jan. 15 to 19. Howard spoke in support of the prohibition amendment as it affects the Negro race.

SMITES 'MUD PIE MIXERS'; REPORT DRY PLAN TODAY

Cannon Forces Move to Back Program in Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Prohibition and the problem of its enforcement will hold the center of the stage at the national capitol tomorrow when President Hoover transmits to congress the dry law recommendations of the Wickersham commission on law observance and enforcement.

Together with the report, the President will lay before the two houses a letter of transmissal expected to serve as a guide to the administration views on putting the recommendations in effect. He also will present a review of the report by Attorney General William D. Mitchell, who spent more than an hour at the White House yesterday going over the final details of the program.

Thus the Hoover administration, for the first time, will bring to a focus before congress and the public a definite plan intended to solve, partially at least, the vexatious enforcement problem—a plan certain to evoke a storm of controversy and likely to result in far reaching political consequences.

Dry Groups Mobilizing.

Mobilization of dry organization forces to put over the Hoover program and if possible to make it more drastic than contemplated, already is under way. The board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in a statement today urged congress to pass all the legislation which the President and his commission think necessary to make the dry laws effective.

The statement, signed by Bishop James Cannon Jr., chairman of the board, and Dr. E. L. Crawford, secretary, also proposed a boost in prohibition appropriations of from 25 to 200 million dollars, inauguration of a government dry propaganda program, and passage of the pending Sheppard bill to punish the buyer as well as the seller of liquor.

League Is Expected to Aid.

Although the Anti-Saloon league, the prohibition board of the Methodist church, north, and other dry groups have not yet officially spoken, their full support of the commission program is expected to be forthcoming soon.

Except for a preliminary observation that prohibition is one of the laws that has "overtaxed" law enforcement machinery, making it "entirely inadequate," the Wickersham commission has made no announcement of what its recommendations will be.

They are expected, however, to follow in general those set forth by President Hoover in his December message to congress, when he outlined the "joint commissions" of himself, the commission, and other administration officials as to the immediate steps needed to make prohibition effective.

Four Steps Proposed.

These steps were:

1. Transfer to the department of justice of the prohibition bureau from the treasury department, except control of industrial alcohol.

2. Relief of federal court congestion by simplifying the procedure for dealing with petty prosecutions.

3. Codification of the 25 existing statutes affecting prohibition.

4. Reorganization of the several border patrols services under the coast guard.

As stated by the President, the duty of the commission has been to make "an exhaustive study of the entire problem of the enforcement of our laws and the improvement of our judicial system, including the special prob-

President Defends Penchant for Commissions.

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The United States has swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the signing of the Declaration of Independence despite those partisans desirous that the President should fail, even if their stratagems injured the country, said President Herbert Hoover, in a letter made public here tonight.

DR. W. O. THOMPSON.
[Harris & Ewing.]

Replying to a letter of New Year's greeting from Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State university, Mr. Hoover painted a plain word picture of those who would have him fail in his task. Yet he found much gratification in the fact that the great majority, regardless of party, wish to help him succeed.

The outstanding problem of the day, said President Hoover, was the search for, production of, and distribution of the truth, as a means of defeating half truths, untruths and injured facts.

Surveys "Human Flood."

"The human flood which flows through the White House shows all the dark colorings and the flotsam that you mention," continued the President. "But it is brightened more than you think by the majority who, regardless of party, genuinely wish to help the President to succeed in his task.

"Of course, it is true that malice is sometimes the road to newspaper headlines, and there will always be partisans desirous that the President should fail even if their stratagems injure the country, or those whose daily toil is to mix mud pies. But if these blots were other than exceptions this nation would not have swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the independence.

"You will know of the wearing of hair shirts in the middle ages by way of reminder of sins and trouble.

President Well Supplied.

"Somewhere lately I said that every man has a few mental hair shirts and that Presidents differ only by their larger wardrobe—for certain individuals, newspapers, associations and institutions officiate as haberdashers in this regard, with a high generosity which guarantees both humility and urbanity. There is even humor to be expected from the fact that they have no compulsory power. But above all this the President has for a few short years the opportunity to speed the orderly march of a glorious people. And the inspiration of that moving host is compensation that comes in larger measure to him than to any other man.

"You apparently penetrate the vital question of public action—the discovery and promulgation of the truth. No real believer in democracy questions the sureness of public judgment—if the public is given the truth—but there is a time element in the triumph of truth.

Looks Back Over History.

"When we look back over history we see the periods of either moral, social, economic, or political stagnation, while the truth was en route and some variety of untruth occupied the scene. We can and must, however, greatly increase the production of truth and we must know the truth before the grave interest of 120 million people is involved in government policies. We can sometimes speed up production before the ill-informed awakes to his opportunities. Facts are bad for his digestion and the truth makes misrepresentation uncomfortable. And the truth, as you say, is hard to discover; it must be distilled through the common judgment of skilled men and women from accurately and patiently collected facts and knowledge. The materials themselves are also hard to come by; it takes time and patience, especially as our many inventions have forever banished the simple life. In the meantime a vast clamor of half truths and untruths and injured facts will always fill the air and intoxicate people's emotions.

"The President himself cannot pretend to know or to have the time for detailed investigation into every one of the hundreds of subjects in a great people. But the fine minds of our citizens are available and can be utilized for the search.

"So you will know why when you hear of more and more temporary committees, commissions, conferences, researches that they are not for executive action [for which they are anathema] but are one of the sound processes for the search, production and distribution of the truth, and they are more—they spread coöperation with government among our best citizens, not only in finding the truth but also they aid to spread it and to get action upon it.

"Our great American experiment has demonstrated that the people will of their own initiative take care of progress if the government can remove abuse and help put the signs on the road, stimulation to all of which is part of the job of Presidents.

Quotes Lincoln's Formula.

"Of Lincoln's great formula the most important one-third is 'government by the people,' and they will govern themselves outside of the government when they see the light. It is from too much emphasis on 'government of the people' that we get the fundamental confusion that government, since it can correct much abuse, can also create righteousness."

In closing, with New Year's greetings to Dr. and Mrs. Thompson, President Hoover said his letter was "to indicate to you my resolution for the New Year includes a continued effort to keep pure the wells of wisdom, and to reassure you that I have faith that the people want the truth determined, even if it takes time and patience."

MOTOR TROUBLE DELAYS ARMY'S WINTER PLANES

Minot, N. D., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The army's midwinter air tourists on a cross-country flight were kept at Minot today by motor trouble. They had been scheduled to hop off for Great Falls, Mont., the next overnight stop.

Maj. Ralph Royce is in command of the flight, whose western terminus is Spokane, Wash. From Spokane the ships will return to Selfridge field over a route slightly to the south of that being followed now.

Three of the delayed planes arrived today making a total of 20 now here. One of the late arrivals was a single motored Douglas transport, which broke an axle in landing here.

The engine of the one pursuit plane was broken in attempting to get it started this morning. The crankshaft was damaged and the plane will be unable to leave tomorrow. The starter on another was damaged but it was repaired late in the day.

URGE LEADER OF W. C. T. U. TO RUN FOR U. S. SENATE

Boston, Mass., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Half a dozen women, prominently identified with the cause of temperance in Massachusetts, including Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes, president of the state W. C. T. U., today announced they had asked Mrs. William Tilton of Cambridge, nationally known advocate of prohibition, to become a candidate for the United States Senate from this state next fall if no other satisfactory enforcement candidate appears.

In an open letter to Mrs. Tilton, the dry leaders called attention to the fact that the 800,000 persons who voted dry in this state on the last liquor referendum must "need a candidate."

British Columbia's '29 Rum Profits Close to 5 Millions

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Profits of the British Columbia government's liquor business for the full year ending Sept. 30 last amounted to the record figure of $4,541,225, official figures released today revealed.

lems and abuses growing out of the prohibition laws."

Headed for Committees.

The Wickersham commission report, together with the Hoover and Mitchell messages, will be read simultaneously before the house and the senate, then referred to the proper committees. In the senate, the entire matter probably will be handled by the judiciary committee, headed by Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], while in the house it will be divided between the committees on judiciary and expenditures of executive departments. The latter committee will handle the prohibition unit transfer proposal. It had been the original plan of President Hoover to have the report received and acted upon by a joint committee of both houses, but this plan was killed by leaders in the house, who were jealous of the jurisdictions of the regularly constituted committees. To avert trouble the White House yielded on the point.

The commission's recommendations, in comformity with the President's policy not to assume the prerogatives of congress, will not be in the form of specific bills, but it is assumed that the bills will be forthcoming from the congressional bill drafting experts soon after the administration leaders go to work on the report in the committees.

Wets Plan Attack at Once.

Immediate assaults upon the legislation are expected from the wets, who, although in the minority in both houses, already have shown their antagonism to any move to put sharper teeth in the prohibition laws. The objections of the wets will, no doubt, center upon the fact that the commission has turned out recommendations merely for tightening up enforcement through administration changes without delving deeply into the fundamental wisdom or folly of the prohibition laws.

The interest in the prohibition question which the commission's report will arouse will be augmented by what is believed to be the first definite move to provide for ascertaining whether or not there should be modifications of the prohibition laws. This move will be undertaken by Representative A. Piatt Andrew [Rep., Mass.], who announced today that he will introduce a bill which, in addition to extending the life of the Wickersham commission for two years and appropriating $1,000,000 for its expenses, would authorize it to investigate and report "what changes, if any, are necessary or desirable in the system of dealing with intoxicating liquors in the United States or in the laws relating thereto."

Honest Effort Proposed.

Representative Andrew is neither a wet nor a dry, having in the past taken a middle ground on the prohibition issue.

"I am introducing this bill in the belief that the time has come when a majority of the American people are ready for an honest, dispassionate, constructive effort to deal with the problems of prohibition," Andrew said. "I assume that most of them would be unwilling to see the country return to the conditions which prevailed before the adoption of the 18th amendment and would be reluctant to espouse any proposal which would risk the benefits, economic, political, and social, which prohibition has brought. But if some way could be found by which these benefits could be conserved and the equally manifest evils which have developed could be eliminated, I believe that reasonable people everywhere would welcome it."

Another event in the house of representatives that will help to bring the prohibition issue to an immediate focus will be the presentation by the appropriations committee of the 1931 treasury department appropriation bill. In past years this measure, containing allotments for the prohibition bureau and the coast guard, has precipitated the fiercest kind of debating and it will doubtless do so again.

The house is expected to complete its consideration and pass the war department appropriation bill early in the day and it will then take up the appropriation bills for the treasury and the postoffice departments.

Sees U. S. Prosper from Dry Law.

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Dr. James M. Doran, national prohibition commissioner, in an address tonight at the Broadway temple, described the benefits of prohibition and said the dry law was responsible for the present prosperity of the country.

During the last ten years, he said, "there have been more valuable changes brought about by the prohibition law than by any other law." He predicted that greater changes would take place during the coming ten years.

He added that prohibition "is slowly but surely being accepted by the masses."

Drafts Law for No Limit on New York Medical Rum

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Stating he is desirous of emancipating the medical profession from unreasonable government interference and repression, State Senator John A. Hastings of Brooklyn announced today he will introduce a bill amending the medical practice act so as to permit physicians to administer liquors and wines without limitation as to quantity or restriction as to time. He said if the courts hold the proposed amendment, if enacted into law, is unconstitutional, he will sponsor legislation authorizing the state to engage in the manufacture of alcohol as a drug and permit its distribution through licensed physicians.

Senator Hastings said his bill has the approval of prominent members of the medical profession.

Quotes U. S. Supreme Court.

The bill will be introduced, according to Mr. Hastings, on the theory sustained by the United States Supreme court, that "obviously direct control of medical practice in the state is beyond the powers of the federal government."

In a statement accompanying the announcement, Mr. Hastings said:

"The federal statute limiting the physicians to the prescription of not more than one pint of spiritous liquors in ten days to a patient whose condition in the judgment of his attending physician may require more, is a usurpation of, and an interference with the state's right to protect the health and lives of its inhabitants, the preservation of which is the one great justification for the existence and maintenance of organized state government.

"The regulation of the practice of medicine is purely an internal affair and the power to regulate it, as such, is inherent in the state of New York."

Cardinal Assails Prohibition.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Cardinal O'Connell gave voice to an indirect, but nevertheless emphatic criticism of prohibition as seen through the eyes of the Catholic church, in an address today to some 4,000 members of Holy Name societies in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross here.

He declared that the often repeated cry that religion in America has reached its lowest ebb does not apply to the Catholic church. Continuing he said:

"When the churches are turned into political factions, when instead of saving souls by gentle patience and sincere example of moderation in the affairs of human life, all their energy and their effort are turned violently and viruently into a frantic and equally futile attempt to compel virtue by statute and enforce it as if it were a divine command, that which at best is a human temporary experiment, when they have embittered even their friends by their fanaticism; well, then of course, these churches will be not only empty but deserted.

Puts Blame on Fanatics.

"And who is to blame? It is the fault of fanatics pursuing a momentary phase of life as if it were an eternal principle, assuming to judge what only God can judge. It is this quality of fanaticism in every period of history which has hurt the best influences of religion and reason.

"Christ gave the commission to his church to teach, to influence by word and example, in his spirit of gentleness and moderation. And we see those who claim to act in his name demanding the most cruel punishment for offenses which are not those forbidden by God's law but against a doubtful ordinance.

"If some of the churches are empty the fault is their own in turning the gentle influence of Christian teaching into a virulent diatribe against whoever refuses to accept a gospel invented yesterday for the one left to Christianity by the apostles and their successors."

Britten Flays Dry Fanatics.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—On the eve of a report to congress by President Hoover's law enforcement commission, Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, today denominated prohibition's "present control by fanatics, intolerants and simple minded followers" as its greatest enemy.

"The country generally is disgusted with the fanatical leadership of the present prohibition," he declared. "It has lost confidence in Bishop Cannon since his bucket shop gambling was disclosed. The public is appreciably distressed over the activities of government snoopers and worried over the killings by federal snipers."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

RADICAL BLOC TO RULE SENATE FOR MANY YEARS

Grabs Power from G. O. P. Organization.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Concessions just made by Republican leaders to the radicals insure their retention of the balance of power in the senate for years to come. Far reaching effects upon the future of the Republican party are forecasted as a result of virtual abandonment of all efforts to keep the radicals from constantly strengthening themselves under time honored seniority rules.

Whether the outcome will be a modification of party policies to bring about harmony or whether there will be a constantly widening cleavage within Republican ranks cannot be now foretold.

Hold Positions of Power.

It is a certainty that the positions of power to which the radicals have advanced by reason of assignment to important senate committees will make them a menacing factor in coming national conventions of the Republican party.

There is no reason to believe that the radicals will come anywhere near controlling the next Republican convention or that they will even form an alliance with regular Republicans represented by the so-called "young Turks" in the senate with a view to dominating the party as against the misters "old guard."

The radicals will continue upon an independent course, joining forces with other groups in opposition to administration or other policies.

The latest concessions made to the radicals were intended to avert controversies threatened in the immediate future and to smooth the path for tariff legislation. The long range effect is likely to be to increase the effectiveness of the radicals as trouble makers for the Republican party. Without any particular regard for their party organization and usually favoring policies in conflict with those of President Hoover, the radicals are expected to make campaign ammunition for the Democrats and may cause defections which will contribute to Democratic successes in elections.

Have Several Chairmanships.

Many Republicans believe that the present chaotic situation in the senate and in the affairs of the party could have been avoided if the policy pursued following the 1924 election had been adhered to. At that time supposedly with the approval of former President Coolidge, the four Republican senators identified with the La Follette third party movement were read out of the party and deprived of all committee assignments as Republicans.

In a subsequent congress the Republican leaders in the senate relented, the votes of the radicals being necessary to reorganize on a supposedly Republican basis. . . . by little the radicals have obtained additional committee places until they now have several chairmanships and hold the balance of power on nearly all the important committees. In the house, the Republican majority has been large enough to keep the radicals in the background.

That the radicals will be able to hold their present committee assignments in the senate and continue to improve their position is indicated by the fact that regular Republicans have scarcely any chance to make a net gain in strength in this year's senatorial elections.

In the presidential election of 1932 the regulars may gain four or five senators, if the Republicans elect the President, but in 1934 they will be lucky if they hold their own. Consequently, having once permitted the radicals to gain their present foothold on committees, the regulars will be powerless to change the situation for years to come.

Forced Lobby Inquiry.

Just what a radical balance of power on committees means is shown by developments in connection with the lobby investigation. The coalition of Democrats and radicals was responsible for the adoption of a resolution directing the judiciary committee or a subcommittee thereof to conduct the inquiry. Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] has been permitted by the regular Republicans to retain the chairmanship of this committee despite the fact that he openly supported Alfred E. Smith for President in 1928. Other Republican members of this committee include two radicals, Senators William E. Borah [Ida.] and John J. Blaine [Wis.]. The judiciary committee is made up of 10 Republicans and 7 Democrats. The radicals by combining with the Democrats can control the committee.

Senator Norris named a lobby subcommittee consisting of three Republicans and two Democrats. Although seven of the 10 Republicans on the committee are classed as regulars Senator Norris named one regular and two radicals as the Republican members of the subcommittee. He designated one of the Democrats as chairman. The consequence was that out of a subcommittee which was supposed to represent a Republican controlled committee of a Republican senate in a Republican administration four of the five members were anti administration and anti-protectionist.

The finance committee which handles tax and tariff legislation now has a radical member in Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.]. This committee includes eleven Republicans and eight Democrats. If Senator La Follette and either Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] or Senator John Thomas [Rep., Idaho] join with the Democrats the regulars lose control.

Two radicals, Senators Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.] and R. B. Howell [Rep., Neb.] hold the balance of power on the interstate commerce committee, which will consider railroad consolidation and other important legislation.

Hold Balance of Power.

On the banking and currency committee, before which measures aimed at Wall street speculation as well as branch banking and other important bills are pending, Senator Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], a radical, is chairman, and two other radicals, Senators Brookhart and Blaine, are members and hold the balance of power.

The radicals demonstrated their grip on the committee on agriculture by incorporating in the farm relief bill as reported to the senate an export debenture provision. The balance of power on this committee is held by four radicals, Senators Norris, Norbeck, L. J. Frazier [Rep., N. D.], and Shipstead.

Many Varieties

The Beresford Cat club of Chicago, whose object is the improvement of Persian cats, had some 200 examples of them on show yesterday at the Hotel Sherman. There were not only fluffy white, black or yellow aristocratic cats in cages but plain cats just as bright of eye and purring just as loudly as their more favored neighbors. Visitors were especially interested in Shadow, a seven toed black cat from the research laboratories of Dr. James John Monahan; the tailless Manx cats from the Isle of Man, and the fawn colored sacred Siamese cats or baby pumas with their chocolate colored tails.

Caress of Claremont, a shaded silver gray cat, was awarded the grand prize last night. Caress is owned by Mrs. Thomas B. Robson, 340 West 61st street.

SENATE GROUPS ARE LIKENED TO BALAAM AND ASS

Parable Is Quoted by Nye to Defend Rebels.

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The parable of Balaam and his ass was used tonight by Senator Nye of North Dakota at the Labor temple here to answer the description of the rebel western Republicans of the party in the senate as "the sons of the wild jackass."

Senator Nye related how the angel of the Lord was sent to head off Balaam, riding on his ass to put a curse upon the children of Israel, and how Balaam failed to see the angel, although the ass did. Blind to the warning, Balaam smote the ass, when it finally fell down and refused to advance against the angel.

"Of course," said the North Dakotan, "the story has a happy ending. Balaam's eyes were finally opened by the Lord, and he saw the angel and perceived his great error. Not before he had wrongfully punished his ass, true, but before he had gone too far on the way which was perverse to his Lord.

"Is It Too Late?"

"Is it too late for our tame jackass party bosses to open their eyes and perceive that they are riding their party to certain disaster, regardless of the braying and the urging and advising of their wild jackass brothers?

"What do our blind party Balaams answer when the senate wild jackasses ask, 'Have not we and our people, who you call wild jackasses, been faithful in time of need and stress to thee and the party? Hast thou not ridden us ever since we were thine unto this day? Hast thou not ridden us about enough? Is it not high time that thee and thine gave us a bit of nourishment not altogether unlike that upon which thou and thine hath grown plump and comfortable?'

Balaams in Politics.

"There are Balaams in politics who are much like the Balaam of old. And there are, according to these Balaams, asses in politics. The asses have been striving, we think, to make their party and their government responsive to the will and the interest of those people who pay the bill of being governed and who help constitute the party, and because of this balky attitude our blind political Balaams lash at us with their tongues.

"Then, too, these asses, according to the Balaams, come from the 'backward states.' Is the fact that the Balaams have been 'riding,' if I may be permitted to use the word in a slangy way, these backward states and asses for ages also a point that affords a double analogy for our consideration in this story of Balaam and his ass?"

POLICEMAN'S WIFE SHOT WHILE IN A MOVIE THEATER

Mrs. Bertha Johnek, 30 years old, wife of Lincoln Park Policeman Herbert Johnek, 1623 Belmont avenue, was shot in the left shoulder and slightly wounded on Friday night while in a dressing room of the Lincoln Hippodrome theater, 3166 Lincoln avenue, Sheffield avenue police learned yesterday. Theodore Neumann, 1609 Barry avenue, assistant manager of the theater, was arrested but later released on a minor charge when Mrs. Johnek refused to prosecute.

Police learned first of the shooting yesterday through an anonymous tipster. Dr. Don D. Burns, 2120 Leland avenue, admitted he failed to notify police that he dressed the wound and took Mrs. Johnek to a hospital.

Mrs. Johnek said she sat in the dressing room talking with Neumann when his revolver accidentally dropped out of his pocket and was discharged. Johnek a month ago caused the arrest of his wife and Neumann at the theater, Capt. Thomas Duffy said. Then Johnek sued for divorce, naming Neumann. Mrs. Johnek retaliated with a cross bill charging cruelty and asking alimony.

Real Estate Dealer Killed by Gun in Hunting Accident

Stanley Zukowski, 65 years old, 908 North Ashland avenue, a real estate dealer, was killed on Saturday when his gun was discharged accidentally while he was hunting in the Maiman subdivision east of Wauconda in Lake county. According to his companion, Stanley J. Tomezynski, 1351 North Paulina street, Zukowski's gun was fired when it caught on a barbed wire fence which he was climbing. Zukowski was the father of nine children.

Why Wait for Action by League? Note Says.

able to the French, who want the Jugo-Slavs in anyway.

The tone of the note, however, makes it clear that the British are very cool on the idea, and this is something of a blow as the French envisage a Mediterranean agreement as the only possible way out of the parity embroglio with the Italians.

U. S. WANTS CAPITAL SHIPS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—[By Radio.]—The reduction in the size of the battleship from the present maximum of 35,000 tons to 10,000 tons advocated by the British League of Nations union, of which Viscount Grey of Falloden and Cecil of Chelwood are joint presidents, is viewed by members of the American delegation to the London conference as tantamount to a proposition to abolish battleships and make 10,000 ton cruisers the capital ships of the navies.

The American delegation will resist any move at the London conference to abolish battleships. It may assent to a reduction in the number and size of capital ships, and postponement of the five year replacement of such ships fixed by the Washington treaty. But America will insist on the retention of this type of warship, which the Hoover administration regards essential to the sea defense of the nation.

May Drop Two or Three.

It is deemed not unlikely that the United States will agree to cutting down the battleship fleet to the extent of two or three ships. America now has 18 battleships, aggregating 525,850 tons, Great Britain, 20 ships of 556,350 tons.

The naval officers, advising the American delegation, do not look with favor on any radical reduction in the size of capital ships. A reduction in size would compel lightening the armor. With the size and destructiveness of aerial bombs increasing, to lighten armor would make capital ships specially vulnerable to an aircraft attack.

There will also be opposition to the postponement of replacements under the Washington treaty without compensatory concessions by Great Britain. Otherwise the present British superiority of capital ships would be continued without America being allowed to build, before 1936, equals of the superdreadnaughts Rodney and Nelson, which Great Britain was allowed to lay down after the Washington treaty.

ADD EVANSTON THEFTS: 1 STEAK.

The Evanston police yesterday added to their long list of unique thefts one choice cut of beef tenderloin valued at $3.50. The meat was stolen from the wagon of Frank Weber, a butcher, while he was making a delivery at 1900 Orrington avenue, Evanston.

BRITISH KEEP SHIPS BY THEIR WITS; CAN UNCLE SAM?

The chief of The Tribune's Washington bureau, Arthur S. Henning, has gone to London with the American commission to the naval conference. Before leaving Washington, Mr. Henning wrote the following article—second of a brief series covering the results of previous efforts of this nation to obtain international peace and reduce the burden of naval armament.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The greatest act of national self-abnegation that the world has ever witnessed took place at the Washington arms conference of 1921-'22 when the United States voluntarily scrapped the most powerful navy in the world in course of construction and renounced prospective mastery of the sea.

Accepting Great Britain's proposition of parity of British and American naval power, the United States then permitted itself to be maneuvered into a naval limitation agreement which perpetuated British superiority in capital ships until 1942.

Now the delegation representing the United States is en route to London to participate in another arms conference, the principal question at which will be how much more Uncle Sam can be induced to sacrifice. Again Britain is loud in her professions of willingness to accept parity with the United States in cruisers and other auxiliary craft while advancing proposals the effect of which would be to increase the superiority of the British over the American fleet.

Evidence of Surrender Seen.

Whether the American delegation under the direction of President Hoover will checkmate the British scheme or again sacrifice national interest, as was done at the Washington conference, remains to be seen. Already dangerous steps in the direction of surrender to the British on the points at issue have been made by the Hoover administration, according to its critics.

In the preliminary negotiations with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain Mr. Hoover has assented in principle to the British proposal to postpone replacements of capital ships until 1936. The effect of this would be to prevent the United States from building under the terms of the Washington treaty before 1936 any battleships equal to the Rodney and the Nelson, which the British were permitted to lay down after the Washington conference. Even administration defenders think Mr. Hoover made a tactical blunder in tentatively agreeing to this British proposal instead of holding a concession on this point in reserve for bargaining purposes at least.

Likewise, in the matter of cruisers the British are proposing to limit the United States to little more than half the number of big cruisers our navy has pronounced necessary to the protection of our trade in distant regions in view of America's lack of outlying naval bases. The British propose to hold us down to 18, compared with the 33 we need. Mr. Hoover has tentatively come down to 21, compared with the 23 we have built, building, and authorized.

The British strategy in this conference is reminiscent of that of Mr. Balfour at the Washington conference, the success of which won him an earldom at the hands of a grateful king. Though he was ably aided by Americans eager to sacrifice national interest for the welfare of mankind, Mr. Balfour was exclusively credited at home with the winning of a greater victory than Nelson's at Trafalgar, for he had sunk the new American navy in the making without the firing of a single shot.

Fleet Proposed by Wilson.

President Wilson, a pacifist who had seen the error of his ways, initiated the building of the new American navy in 1916 to prepare the country for adequate defense. The 1916 program called for the construction of 10 battleships, 6 battle cruisers, and a large number of smaller vessels costing in the aggregate $514,700,000. Construction of this fleet was largely suspended when we entered the world war, while the shipyards concentrated on the building of merchant ships and destroyers, but it was resumed after the armistice.

The British, having disposed of the threat of German sea power, found their naval supremacy challenged by America. It was apparent that Britain would be compelled to build a new navy if she were to remain mistress of the sea. With her burden of war debt she could not well afford to build. Her statesmen, therefore, addressed themselves to checking the American building program.

Pacifists Skillfully Aroused.

The first move was a declaration of the London government in 1920 that henceforth Britain would maintain a navy the equal, not of any two other powers, as had been the pre-war policy, but of any other one nation. This was the first official declaration of the willingness of Great Britain to accept naval parity with the United States. The British also professed to view the American building program as aimed at British sea power. They pictured it as a new competition in armament destined, like the Anglo-German competition, to lead to war.

These maneuvers roused the pacifists in both countries to action, as doubtless was the intention. The pacifists organized propaganda on a vast scale which finally crystalized in pressure upon President-Elect Harding to call a navy limitation conference. Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] assumed leadership of this drive and carried it to a successful termination.

Hughes Distrusted Admirals.

The conference was called and Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes began work upon a navy limitation plan based upon the principle of parity between the American and British navies, just as Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson now is seeking a naval reduction understanding based on the principle of Anglo-American parity. And Mr. Hughes evinced that same distrust of the professional judgment of the general board of our navy that Mr. Stimson betrays today. Mr. Hughes evolved a navy limitation plan that was not approved by the admirals who were the repository of our most authoritative naval opinion at the time. They distinctly disapproved of his plan to scrap America's entire new navy in course of construction.

Mr. Hughes' speech at the opening of the conference made a profound sensation. The hard boiled European and Asiatic plenipotentiaries seated about the table in the Pan-American building could scarcely believe their ears. They knew the passion of America for self-sacrifice, but they were unprepared for so sublime an exhibition of it.

Hughes' Offer Generous.

Mr. Hughes proposed that the United States "scrap all new capital ships now under construction and on their way to completion." These ships were 15 in number, aggregating 618,000 tons on which $332,000,000 already had been expended. In addition he proposed the scrapping of 15 old capital ships aggregating 227,740 tons, a grand total of 30 ships of 845,740 tons.

He proposed that Great Britain scrap 4 capital ships which existed only on paper, not having been laid down. These aggregated 172,000 tons. In addition Britain was to scrap 19 old ships aggregating 411,375 tons, a grand total of 23 ships of 583,375 tons. As a matter of fact, some of the 19 already had been scrapped as obsolete. In reality, therefore, the Hughes proposal required Britain to scrap less than 400,000 tons of old ships, less than half the fleet America was called upon to sacrifice, and about as comparable thereto in usefulness as a horse age buggy to a gasoline age automobile.

"Gift" Reversed Situation.

Whether it was because he was suffering from an inferiority complex in dealing with the British or because he was a tyro in diplomacy, Mr. Hughes was obsessed from the beginning by the notion that Britain would not agree to any limitation that was not predicated on the scrapping of new construction all around. Only America and Japan had new ships, built or building. Britain had laid down none since the war.

That it was impossible because of the diversity of the characteristics of ships to establish exact parity, until after the lapse of 20 years, when all ships should be replaced, was not denied. Either Britain or America was going to be inferior to the other in capital ships during those 20 years. Britain, by not building new ships, deliberately had accepted a prospective inferiority. But instead of allowing Britain to continue inferior pending the establishment of true parity Mr. Hughes made an agreement that reversed the situation and restored Britain to its position of superiority in naval strength.

Nelson and Rodney the Result.

Mr. Balfour found his battle won before it was begun. The new American navy that had challenged British sea power had been scuttled by the Americans themselves. It only remained for the astute Briton to put the finishing touches on the achievement. This he did to the queen's, or rather the king's, taste.

Mr. Balfour gave such support to the Japanese that they were able to save the battleship Mutsu from the scrap heap to which the Hughes plan had consigned it. Then he insisted that if Japan was to have the Mutsu as well as the Nagato, Britain must be allowed to build two new ships. He carried the day after allowing the United States the privilege of completing two of the West Virginia class of battleships that had been scheduled for scrapping. The net result was that Britain got the Nelson and the Rodney, which can steam faster and shoot farther than any capital ships in the American navy.

No Parity Before 1942.

The final agreement allotted the United States 18 capital ships aggregating 525,850 tons and Great Britain 20 aggregating 556,350 tons. Under the scheme of tonnage replacement beginning in 1931, as provided by the treaty, actual parity in capital ships will not be attained till 1942.

Having disposed of the prospective superiority of the American battleship fleet, Mr. Balfour began to lose interest in the proceedings. Our cruiser building program was negligible and therefore did not interest the British. Hence, when the French demanded a large submarine fleet, Mr. Balfour refused to agree to a limitation on cruisers, and the upshot was failure to limit auxiliary craft at all.

There is widespread opinion that at that juncture Mr. Hughes' statecraft was found sadly wanting. Had he, it is argued, refused then to agree to a capital ship limitation unless all categories were limited, Mr. Balfour would have capitulated and come to terms with the French. He could not have afforded to go home with America still building those battleships.

What Uncle Sam Scrapped.

The United States eventually scrapped seven battleships and four battle cruisers in course of construction. The battleships were the Washington, which was 76 per cent complete; the South Dakota, 39 per cent; the North Carolina, 37 per cent; the Indiana, 35 per cent; the Iowa, 32 per cent; the Montana, 28 per cent; and the Massachusetts, 11 per cent. The battle cruisers were the Constellation, 23 per cent; the Constitution, 13 per cent; the United States, 12 per cent; and the Ranger, 4 per cent. We have no battle cruisers today, while the British have four. Under the treaty we were allowed to convert the battle cruiser Saratoga, which was completed, and the Lexington, 4 per cent complete, into aircraft carriers.

Another American sacrifice at the Washington conference was with respect to naval bases. The Japanese threatened not to agree to any navy limitation unless the United States should abandon its naval bases in the western Pacific. Mr. Hughes yielded.

Guam Project Dropped.

The United States agreed to abandon its project to establish a naval base at Guam for the protection of the Philippines, to maintain the status quo of fortifications and nevel base facilities in the Philippines and at Samoa, and never to establish a base in the Aleutian island. This left Pearl Harbor, in the Hawaiian islands, as the only outlying Pacific base, with the exception of the Panama Canal Zone, that we retain the right to develop and strengthen. The Japanese made a similar agreement covering bases in their outlying islands, and the British agreed to maintain the status quo at Hongkong. Mr. Balfour so shaped the agreement that it excluded Singapore, at which the British were then planning the great naval base now under construction.

At no time while the American government was making these sacrifices did Mr. Hughes raise the question of the British naval bases in the western Atlantic, which constitute a potential threat to the United States' security.

FORD CO. WAGES AND LIVING COST BEING STUDIED

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Leifur Magnusson, United States representative of the international labor office, announced tonight that a study of the cost of living in relation to wages, sponsored by the labor office at Geneva, had been started in Detroit.

Mr. Magnusson said that agents of the United States bureau of labor and statistics and J. W. Nixon, chief statistician of the international labor office, last week began a "first hand survey of the purchasing power" of Ford Motor company employés' wages. This survey, he said, will be used as the basis for the entire investigation.

The object of the investigators is to formulate a "commodity budget" which will represent, in terms of food, clothing, housing, light, heat, and other essentials. The yearly purchases of the average automobile worker who earns $7 a day, the minimum wage recently established at the Ford plant.

BRITISH SEEK TO CEMENT KELLOGG PACT AND LEAGUE

Ask Last Loopholes for War Be Removed.

BY ROBERT SAGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Jan. 13.—Another attempt to put teeth in the Kellogg peace pact and at the same time reinforce the authority of the league of nations to call a halt to any outbreak of hostilities between nations will be made during the 58th session of the league council, which opens tomorrow. Great Britain intends to start cogs working to revise the league covenant so as to bring the document into harmonious alignment with the Kellogg pact.

Britain points out the fact that article 15 of the covenant tacitly permits warfare in case peaceful methods fail, and insists that the present day world peace spirit demands that the article be reworded in such a manner that a definite renunciation of war will be included.

Will Suggest Procedure.

During the forthcoming session the British delegate will present the proposed method of procedure in the hopes that a detailed plan can be worked out so that the reframed article can be accepted at the next assembly.

Britain is also expressing active interest in the tariff truce, and despite the fact that it is not as much a free trade country as formerly, it intimates that it is willing to coöperate with tariff agreements which are aimed at improving international trade. This attitude on the part of Britain lends support to the ambitious plans of Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, for the creation of a economic United States of Europe. It is expected that M. Briand will bring up his scheme again during the present session.

League Meet Overshadowed.

Outside of these points the council agenda gives promise of producing a series of dull, unimportant discussions. Sandwiched in between The Hague reparations parley and the London naval conference the council meeting is lost in the international shuffle and many delegates will leave in the middle of the week for the all-important London meeting.

All the delegations for the league session reached Geneva before tonight, M. Briand heading the French and Mr. Henderson, the English. Fearing violence to the Italian delegation, headed by Dino Grandi, the entire Geneva police force turned out to guard the representatives when they arrived tonight and detectives are stationed at the Hotel Des Bergues, where the Italians are staying.

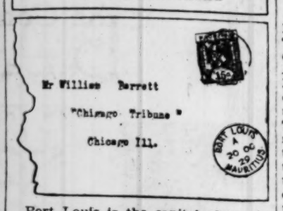
From Maritius Island



Port Louis is the capital of the island of Mauritius, formerly the Isle de France, lying in the Indian ocean 530 miles east of Madagascar. Mauritius is a British crown colony taken from France during the Napoleonic wars in 1810, and its possession confirmed to Britain by the treaty of Paris in 1814. It has an area of 705 square miles and was originally discovered in 1505 by the Portuguese. The Dutch took possession in 1598 and named it in honor of Maurice of Nassau. The Dutch abandoned it early in the eighteenth century, when the French took possession and held it until the British found it too much of a threat to their East Indian trade routes. It is well known as the scene of Saint-Pierre's story, "Paul and Virginia," this novel being credited with containing the first public attack on the Bourbon rule in France, which ultimately resulted in the revolution and the fall of the empire.

SUBMIT LIST FOR 2 U. S. DIRECTORS OF WORLD BANK

5 Yankee Bankers Chosen as Secret Candidates.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12.—Jackson E. Reynolds of New York and Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago arrived here today to submit the names of five American bankers, suggested by J. P. Morgan and Owen D. Young, as acceptable candidates for directors of the Bank for International Settlement. The identity of the candidates was not revealed. The list will be submitted to the bankers' committee of the creditor nations and to the German delegation. Two of the five are likely to be chosen to serve as the American directors on the board, one of them will probably later be chosen president.

Mr. Reynolds is reported to have told M. Quesnay, bank of France official and French member of the world bank committee, that he had brought the American subscription to the first issue of the commercialized reparations bonds amounting to $50,000,000 with him. It is understood that J. P. Morgan & Co. will underwrite the American share.

Eleven Changes in Statutes Sought.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank, is due here tomorrow morning. Discussion of the international bank will then begin with Great Britain and France demanding eleven alterations or amendments of the statutes drafted at Baden-Baden and also certain changes in the trust deed whereby the world bank assumes the distribution of the reparations annuities paid by Germany.

When this parley, the second Hague conference on reparations, adjourns at the end of the week the world bank directors expect to proceed elsewhere, possibly to Paris, where they will continue organizing and establishing the bank.

A number of important meetings were held between the French and German delegates today. French Premier André Tardieu said tonight that he would probably not be able to proceed to Paris tomorrow for the reopening of the chamber of deputies as he had planned. It is understood that Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, requested the French premier to remain if possible.

Delegates Hopeful.

Dr. Curtius and former German Chancellor Joseph Wirth adjourned their conference with M. Tardieu at 8 o'clock, and refused to make any statement, but following another half hour's talk after dinner the delegates announced that everything was progressing favorably toward a solution which would lead to the adoption and putting into operation of the Young plan.

The talk tonight was concerned with the sanctions France requires Germany to give in case she wilfully defaults in her payments. The wording of a sanctions clause in which the word "sanctions" will not be used was practically agreed upon, and the German delegation have promised to submit the latest phrasing of the clause tomorrow morning.

URGE INSTITUTE ADDITIONS FOR WORLD'S FAIR ART

Lasting Values in Plan Praised at Meeting.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

"Don't," said the Art institute yesterday to trustees of the 1933 World's Fair, "build a temporary art palace for your exposition. Give us seven million dollars for permanent additions to our present building and let the vast structure thus created be the exposition's art palace during the show and our property forever after."

DR. R. B. HARSHE. [Moffett Photo.]

"A great idea," said the trustees, "and practical. We will do what we can for you. Meanwhile, with our blessings, go to the community for a start toward those seven millions."

Such was the news gist of Sunday afternoon's meeting in the Goodman theater of a thousand of the Art institute's nineteen thousand members.

Building No Longer Adequate.

The institute has twenty-five million dollars worth of treasures, a building which it has out grown, and scarcely enough money to meet its budget of maintenance. It cannot erect needed additions out of its own funds. It believes—and the fair's officials agree with it on that point—that an art palace built solely for the period of the exposition would be an uneconomic project. It therefore proposes that money which, under old ideals of exposition art displays, the fair would have to spend for temporary galleries, be turned over to it for the erection of permanent galleries just to the south of and connected with its present home.

The assemblage of art patrons who heard the plan outlined was representative and enthusiastic. The speakers were Rufus Dawes, president of the proposed fair, Chauncey McCormick, chairman of its art exhibits, and Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the institute.

Dawes Reports Encouragement.

Mr. Dawes reported "encouragement from all sources relative to the 1933 show." Dr. Harshe, whose touch, though habitually bland, is upon occasion extremely caustic, also reported encouragement from the European artists and museum officials, whom he lately visited, as soon as he was able to convince them that canvases and sculpture which they might send to Chicago "would not be punctured by the bullets of gangsters."

A stern man when it comes to standards, Dr. Harshe indicated what the exposition's art show must and must not be.

Urges Choice, Not Large Displays.

"It must not be," he said, "just a display of paintings and sculpture. It must be choice rather than large. In the British art section of the Columbian exposition there were ten thousand objects; in the 1933 exposition I don't want in the British section more than five hundred to eight hundred objects, but those objects highly illustrative of periods and masters.

"I mean," he continued—and he is the court of last resort on behalf of the fair—"not to accept a single exhibit that would not be worthy of a permanent place in an art museum of the first rank.

"Art exhibits at previous American expositions have been too crowded and too hastily assembled. We must begin our work for 1933 in six months or we shall be too late to do anything of high significance.

"European officialdom must not make our selections for us. In the instances in which European officialdom did that for the San Francisco art exhibit the results were mostly contemptible.

Will Show History of Art.

"Our exhibit must unfold by periods the great stages in the history of art. 'Period rooms' illustrating epochs and 'one man rooms' illustrating supreme masters must be our aim. Our own institute's collections, supplemented by loans, will fulfill that aim.

"We must show American art as it existed before the coming of Columbus. We must emphasize, in rooms which will be reproductions, the decorative art of colonial times, of the theater, and of contemporaneous tendencies. We must have a room which shall unfold the international history of caricature. We must be specific in detail and coherent in mass and and if we adhere to those ideals we shall have the greatest art exhibit that the world has ever seen. The elements of quality and coherence will be everything, whether the particular room be modern French masters in painting, or masters in metal work, in glass, in furniture, in masks, in costume, and in lithography."

Mr. McCormick imparted the news that the authorities of Glasgow will send to Chicago for the fair Whistler's portrait of Carlyle. [Applause.]

STABBED DURING BRAWL.

POLICEMEN CALLED AS 300 CHURCH FOLK BATTLE OVER FUNDS

More than 300 members of the San Treas Greek Orthodox Catholic church at 1101 South Peoria street last night held a meeting at which charges and countercharges concerning the handling of the church funds were shouted back and forth. The church members grew so excited that 24 policemen were summoned from the Maxwell street station to preserve order.

Nicholas Kokinis, president of the board of trustees of the church, and John Demetrakis, treasurer, were accused of mishandling the funds. An examination revealed that no books had been kept since September, 1926, and an apparent shortage of $2,359 was shown. Other members asserted that the shortage ranged from $5,000 to $48,000, while supporters of the president and treasurer declared that no funds were missing.

Kokinis has been president of the trustees for ten years and his friends said he had brought such financial prosperity to the church that $300,000 had been gathered to build another church at 59th and Peoria streets, which is now completed. The meeting finally broke up peacefully with the agreement that an accounting should be made in the near future by the trustees to show how the church funds have been spent.

U. S. DRY AGENT IS CONVICTED OF TAKING A BRIBE

Faces 5 Years in Prison and $5,000 Fine.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 12.—[Special.] Ben G. Finke, former ace of the local prohibition unit, was found guilty of accepting a $1,000 bribe from a bootlegger by a jury which reported to Federal Judge F. A. Geiger at 4:30 p. m. today.

Finke is subject to imprisonment at Leavenworth for not more than five years and a fine of not more than $5,000. He still is at liberty in bond of $4,000. The defense announced a plea would be made for a new trial.

The verdict came unexpectedly. One of the jurors, Martin W. Monroe, of Hartford, Wis., had been ill and there was some fear that a mistrial would result. At noon today the juror's physician, Dr. Walter J. Winnemann, reported him sufficiently improved to resume his duities, and the verdict convicting the 30 year old dry agent was reached at 4 p. m.

Judge Opens Court.

Judge Geiger and the attorneys, Levi H. Bancroft, United States prosecutor, and Thomas Leahy, defense counsel, were called, and the judge opened court for the jurors to report their verdict. Sentence will be imposed tomorrow.

Finke, who before entering the prohibition service in 1925 was a deputy sheriff in Nashville, Ill., was indicted on five counts of bribery by a grand jury early last year, the first four counts charging the acceptance of $300 each from Oconomowoc, Wis., still interests and the fifth with receiving $1,000 from Ralph West to permit the removal of $10,000 worth of liquor from a West Allis garage.

Freed on Four Counts.

Finke was found not guilty on the first four counts. The verdict itself was no surprise to attorneys interested in the case. The government made a particularly strong case of the fifth count, but the dry agent's daily reports for the latter part of 1928 purported to prove an alibi for the others and Attorney Leahy in an eloquent address to the jury on Friday made much of this report.

District Attorney Bancroft recapitulated the evidence showing that Finke and other agents surrounded the West Allis garage late in the afternoon and commented on the strong smell of liquor emanating therefrom.

It was testified that Finke pointed to a large green automobile standing in front of the house and said it belonged to Ralph West. A woman, the agents said, met them at the door of the house and denied reports of a still in the basement but slammed the door in their face.

Didn't Force Entrance.

Then the agents went to the garage but did not force an entrance. They left and stationed no one there to watch. Joseph Pessin, the government's star witness, testified that West came to him and said his place was surrounded by agents. He wanted to get the liquor away and offered $1,000 for protection. Pessin said he arranged a meeting with Finke and the latter agreed to permit the removal for the $1,000, which, it was testified, was paid the next day.

West testified he met Finke a day or so later and asked him if he got the money. "You bet I did, or you'd have heard from me," he testified Finke said.

The Finke case, after a three day trial, went to the jury at 1 p. m., Friday. Juror Monroe was stricken. His physician believed he would recover sufficiently to resume the deliberations and Judge Geiger ordered the other jurors to wait.

HOLD UP HOTEL; ROB THREE.

The night clerk and two guests in the Adams hotel, 1519 Adams street, were robbed of a total of $134 early yesterday by four armed men. Luke Gaherty, the clerk, lost $67; Harry Litt, $25, and John Gartenberg, $42.

POLITICS BURSTS INTO FOREFRONT OF BUDGET FIGHT

City budget making was at a halt yesterday, aldermanic discussion centering on the political aspects of the question whether the city hall shall authorize expenditures of $55,000,000 or $60,000,000 in 1930.

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], leader of Mayor Thompson's Republican followers opposed to the "economy budget," said the council majority is a "Democratic-Deneen coalition and appears to be acting under dictation of Democratic headquarters in the Sherman hotel in an effort to put the administration in disrepute so a Democrat may be elected mayor next year."

Democrats Make Reply.

The Democratic reply to Ald. Nelson was to the effect that Mayor Thompson and his advisers, facing their last full year in office and having no expectation of victory in the 1931 election, are desirous of getting every last penny out of the city treasury for spending money and leaving a deficit of $18,000,000 for the incoming mayor.

Meanwhile Corporation Counsel Ettelson was spending Sunday preparing legal opinions on problems of the budget. One of the questions on which he will give an opinion, perhaps today, is whether Health Commissioner Kegel is authorized, under the present status of the city's finances, to reemploy about 190 employés he was ordered to discharge last week.

The whole question of the budget—aside from political consideration—hinges on legal questions, aldermen of the majority and minority both agree. As it stands today, according to the explanation of Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, the budget situation is as follows:

The finance committee of 17 aldermen presented a budget to the council calling for expenditures of $55,000,000. This was adopted by a vote of 36 to 12, two Democrats, three Deneen aldermen and seven Thompson aldermen being the objectors. It was explained that whereas the appropriation was insufficient to keep the same number of policemen and firemen as in 1929, none need be laid off because additional money might be appropriated in June.

The Veto Battle Begins.

But 473 policemen and 225 firemen were discharged and then Mayor Thompson vetoed the budget as it affected the police, fire, health, street and playground departments. An effort to pass it over the mayor's veto failed, the vote being 26 to override the veto, and 19 to sustain it.

On that roll call, the two Democrats and three Deneen aldermen who had opposed the budget voted to override the veto, and Mayor Thompson gained the votes of four Democrats who had voted for the budget and four of his own followers switched back to him.

Then, despite an opinion from Ettelson that the council cannot legally amend the original budget, the majority, in committee of the whole, did amend by cutting $279,205 from "less essential" departments. Their plan is to allocate that saving to the five major departments, pass the amendments in the council, and resubmit the entire budget to the mayor today.

On that proposal Ald. Clark mustered 29 votes to 17 for the mayor. Two Democratic aldermen, Landmesser [38th] and Cepak [22d], rejoined the majority and the 29th vote was that of Ald. Maypole, Democrat [28th], who had been absent. On the latest roll call only two Democrats, Toman [23d] and Coughlin [1st], voted with the administration.

Don't Expect Another Veto.

The present plan, which is not a compromise, according to Ald. Clark, appears certain to muster the same 29 votes in the council meeting today and those of Ald. O'Toole [14th] and Kaindl [34th], both Democrats who were absent due to sickness, if they are able to appear today. While the majority aldermen do not believe the mayor will be satisfied, Ald. Clark said, they do not expect any further veto.

Strawn Gives Views.

Attorney Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the fiscal rescue committee which hopes to be of assistance in remedying the financial ills of city, county, and school board, refused yesterday to engage in any controversy with H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education. Caldwell was quoted as saying that Strawn had interfered and prevented the sale of tax anticipation warrants.

"There can be no sale of tax anticipation warrants by the city or school board until the budgets are passed," Mr. Strawn declared. "The school board would do better passing a budget within the estimated revenue than in hiring lawyers to run all over the county urging people to make complaints on their assessments."

Dr. Wynekoop in Seclusion as Marriage Is Postponed

Dr. Gilbert H. Wynekoop, 4500 Sheridan road, and Miss Veronica Shearer, 442 Deming place, who on Saturday evening disappointed 200 invited guests by failing to appear for their announced wedding at the Belmont hotel, remained in seclusion yesterday. Telephone calls to the residences of both were unanswered, the telephone company declaring that Dr. Wynekoop had ordered his telephone discontinued.

Miss Shearer's brother, Theodore, announced that his sister had been taken suddenly ill and the wedding was to be postponed indefinitely. Miss Shearer is a cousin of Norma Shearer, movie actress.

CITIZENS' GROUP STIRS UP IGOE PRINTING CHARGE

Holds County Bill Was $62,207 Too Much.

Charges that the James T. Igoe company, printing concern headed by Congressman Igoe, overcharged Cook county for the printing of personal property assessment lists to the extent of $62,207 in six years were again made yesterday, this time by the Citizens Association of Chicago in its fifty-fifth annual report.

The association revealed that it had laid the charges before State's Attorney Swanson last Dec. 11 with the recommendation that suit be started to recover the $62,207. The report noted that "we have not yet been informed as to what action, if any, the state's attorney intends to take in this matter."

Jacobs Makes Charges.

The charges were first made at a county board meeting three months ago by J. L. Jacobs, county economy adviser. His accusations aroused some fiery speech making. State's Attorney Swanson said he could take no action unless notified officially. A few weeks later, the charges were again aired, but no action was taken.

"After careful inquiry, the association is of the opinion that Mr. Jacobs' statement of fact is substantially correct," the report read. "Under the contract of Aug. 13, 1928, the county agreed to pay to the Igoe company the sum of $26 per thousand names for printing the personal property assessment lists.

"We find that it was apparently a matter of common knowledge that the number of names on the personal property assessment lists last year was approximately 265,000. Yet it appears that the Igoe company charged for 831,000 names.

Multiplied by Three.

"When the association asked James T. Igoe for information about these bills he stated that whatever the number of names on the list, it was properly multiplied by three in making out the bills, 'the name counting for one, the address for one, and the amount for one.'

"As it seems clear that the language of the contracts does not warrant any such interpretation, we are of the opinion that legal action should be taken and a recommendation to that effect was made to State's Attorney Swanson on Dec. 11."

Laments Sanitary Cases.

Commenting upon the sanitary district investigation, the report signed by Augustus S. Peabody, president, and Shelby M. Singleton, secretary, declared that "it is most unfortunate that none of the persons responsible for the thievery that disgraced the management of the sanitary district during 1928 have yet been brought to trial or punished.

"From much contact with the state's attorney's office in past years, however, we understand the immensity of the task which has confronted Mr. Swanson in having to reorganize his great office from the ground up, in order to make it function for law enforcement; and we have faith that he will make good in the vitally important duties which have been entrusted to him."

HARKNESS GIVES TEN MILLIONS TO YALE FOR QUADRANGLE

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Edward S. Harkness of New York City, who has already given Yale large sums of money and who gave Harvard $13,000,000 for its house plan, has now donated to Yale, his alma mater, funds for the realization of its own quadrangle system, President James Rowland Angell announced today. The amount of his latest Yale gift is reported to be $10,000,000. President Angell will give complete details of the gift Feb. 22, Alumni day at the university.

Dr. Angell said a committee representing the Yale corporation and faculty submitted a final report of the quadrangle plan, which has just been approved by the corporation.

Two years ago Mr. Harkness offered Yale funds for the quadrangle and set a time limit on his offer. The Yale authorities were unable to agree on a plan to utilize his offer and it lapsed. Mr. Harkness then made his gift to Harvard.

DR. C. E. SMITH, RETIRED DENTIST, KILLS HIMSELF

Dr. C. E. Smith, 47 years old, a retired Chicago dentist, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in the head in a vacant cottage on his estate at Union Pier, in Berrien county, Michigan. The body was found by his wife, Mrs. Clara Smith, who went in search of him after he had been absent from the house for several hours.

Dr. Smith was reputed to be wealthy but Mrs. Smith told Coroner George H. Slaughter of Berrien county that he had lost heavily in the stock market crash last fall, and that his fortune had been practically wiped out by his speculations. He had been in ill health for several months.

Until about a year ago Dr. Smith and his family lived at 1851 Addison street, maintaining the summer home at Union Pier. For the last few months the family had been staying at the summer home. Dr. Smith retired from active practice several years ago. Besides his widow, he is survived by two children, a son, 13 years old, and a daughter, 15. The body will be brought to Chicago for burial.

Hunt Saloon Owner for Quiz on Lorenzo Slaying

Frank Dillon, reputed owner of a saloon at 3102 West Harrison street, was being sought by the homicide squad of the detective bureau for questioning in connection with the killing Saturday night of Leo [Buck] Lorenzo, an ex-convict, 40 years old, whose body, with bullets in the head, arm, and chest, was found Saturday night in the rear of a bakery at 730 South Kedzie avenue. In the saloon, of which Lorenzo was a habitué, police found bloodstains on the floor and bullet holes in the wall.

SEEK YOUTH AS BANDIT IN RAID ON ROADHOUSE

Police last night were hunting George McDermott, 2515 Congress street, one of six brothers, who is suspected of being one of the bandits in a raid Saturday night upon "Art's Place," a resort at 6500 Montrose avenue, Norwood Park, in which Arthur Kastler, the proprietor, and his patrons were robbed of cash and jewels valued at $1,700. Four robbers, each carrying a sawed off shotgun, invaded the place, lined Kasler and the patrons against the wall, robbed them and escaped in an automobile.

Search for young McDermott was begun after James E. Robinson, 4062 Kenmore avenue, declared he recognized McDermott as one of the robbers. He said he and McDermott were boys together years ago on the west side. At the Congress street number Arthur McDermott, a younger brother of George, was taken into custody.

Open Nation-Wide Battle to Check Disease.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Isolation of what are believed to be psittacosis bacilli by Herbert C. Ward, bacteriologist of the state department of health, was announced today as three more cases believed to be that of the parrot fever were reported to the health officials. Forty-eight hours of additional study will be necessary for positive identification of the germ.

An organism, similar to that causing typhoid and para-typhoid was found by Dr. Ward in cultures taken from the blood of three persons ill at Annapolis from the rare disease. The parrot fever was first reported in Maryland from the Kalmey family at Annapolis.

One Family Is Ill.

The illness there followed the death of a parrot bought at a Baltimore pet shop, and four employés of the shop since have become ill with what is believed to be psittacosis. One other person in Baltimore is believed suffering from it, while the illness of a woman at Cambridge, Md., was reported to the health department yesterday as parrot fever.

Report of the illness of three persons, Mrs. William J. Whitelock and her children, William Jr., 12, and Mary Jane, 4, of Aberdeen, Md., was made to the state health department today. They became ill following the illness of a parrot in the house. The number of suspected cases of the disease in Maryland is now twelve.

One Dead in Pennsylvania.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 12.—(AP)—A death, believed by physicians to have been caused by parrot fever, occurred today at Freeport, near here.

The victim was Mrs. William Shields, 52, and Dr. C. A. Rogers, who performed a post mortem examination, said the woman's ailment had every symptom of the parrot fever. A 14 year old daughter of Mrs. Shields is seriously ill with the same affliction.

Mrs. Shields was said to have been stricken on Jan. 1, two days after a parrot, given her by a relative at Christmas time, had died.

United States Officials Act.

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The disease fighting armament of the nation today was directed against a new and mysterious enemy—psittacosis, or parrot fever—which has been blamed for two deaths and many serious illnesses on a widely scattered front.

Four new cases of the frequently fatal ailment were reported during the week-end by the New York state department of health, which said two were stricken in Yonkers and two in Johnstown. From North Adams, Mass., came a physician's report of four cases of illness attributable to the death of a parrot.

Three other possible cases of the disease were under observation in Providence, R. I., two in New York City, four in Baltimore, Md., and three in Annapolis, Md.

The known deaths attributed to psittacosis were those of Mrs. Percy Q. Williams of Toledo, O., and Mrs. Louise Schaffle of Baltimore.

Surgeon General Cumming has asked officials of the bureaus of animal industry and biological survey, which issue permits for importation of the birds, to assist in tracing the origin of parrots suffering from the disease. Dr. Cumming's action followed a ban on the shipment of birds into Saxony, Germany, where a number of deaths have been attributed to psittacosis.

STATE TO CALL LAST WITNESS IN DORR CASE TODAY

The closing phases of the state's case against Samuel Howard Dorr, insurance agent, who is on trial for the murder of William O'Brien, husband of his paramour, will be presented today in Judge Harry B. Miller's court. The prosecution is expected to rest before court adjourns for the day. Assistant state's attorneys said only a few witnesses remain to be questioned.

The climax of the state's case was reached on Saturday when the confession of Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien, wife of the slain man, was read to the jury, accusing Dorr of killing her husband in their apartment at 7328 Maplewood avenue.

Dorr's defense, which probably will be opened tomorrow, is expected to be a plea of self-defense.

ONLY ONE AUTO DEATH DESPITE ICE ON STREETS

Despite the melting ice and slush which left Chicago's streets slippery yesterday, only one automobile fatality was reported. Benjamin Gose, 36 years old, colored, of 2005 West Division street, was fatally injured at Rockwell and Augusta streets by a car driven by John Ward, 4815 Fullerton avenue. His death increased the county motor toll this year to 24. Ward was taken in custody by North avenue police.

Assistant Fire Chief William Cummings of Highland Park was critically injured and his wife, Edith, escaped with minor injuries when their car skidded off icy Waukegan road west of Lake Forest and crashed into a tree. Cummings, who is 50 years old, suffered a compound fracture of the jaw, a lacerated neck and possible internal injuries. He and Mrs. Cummings were taken to the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest.

Woman Roasted to Death by Faulty Vacuum Cleaner

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—A vacuum cleaner killed Hilde Lasch in Berlin yesterday. It was her laundry day and she abandoned the wash tubs for a few minutes to straighten out the living room. She seized the vacuum cleaner and received a severe shock which paralyzed her. It appears she must have screamed for two hours, but nobody heard her and she was roasted to death. Electricians believe her wet clothes caused a short circuit in the defective cleaner.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

PHILIPPINES TO SHARE SPOTLIGHT FOR THIS WEEK

Independence Hearings to Be Begun at Capital.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—The Philippine independence movement, which has been gaining strength as a part of tariff developments, will reach an acute stage this week with the opening of hearings before the senate committee on territories and insular affairs.

While a delegation from the Philippines will be urging early action on the independence proposal, to which domestic agricultural interests have given new support as a means of making imports of sugar and cocoanut oil from the islands dutiable, administration Republicans will be seeking means of delaying matters.

It is expected that administration support will be thrown to some plan similar to the resolution introduced by Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], chairman of the senate committee which is to conduct the Philippine hearings. The Bingham resolution requests the President to call a conference on the Philippine question in Manila about Sept. 15.

President Hoover, so far as known, adheres to the belief of administration Republicans generally that the time is not yet ripe for Philippine independence. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's observations during his service as governor general of the Philippines are believed to have strengthened the administration in this belief. The fact that many Republicans from agricultural sections have joined in the movement for Philippine independence has created a new situation which forces the administration to give serious consideration to the matter. The Democrats are for the most part for Philippine independence in keeping with their platform declarations.

ROB 3 IN EVANSTON HOTEL.

Two armed and intoxicated youths entered the Ridgeview hotel, 901 Maple avenue, Evanston, early yesterday, ripped an overcoat from the back of a guest, Marshall Carqueville, robbed a clerk and a bellboy of $3.50 and escaped.

INJUNCTION GRANTED TO PREVENT TENANTS OPERATING A STILL

Forsyth, Mo., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—An injunction to prevent their tenants from operating a still on their land has been granted Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Buchan, of Taney county by Judge Robert L. Gideon of Forsyth. The Buchans asked the injunction because, their petition explained, the fumes of the still annoyed them, the passing of cars disturbed their sleep and the noise from the thump kegs frightened their horses.

The injunction forbids the tenants or "other agents and employés from making or attempting to make any more moonshine liquor upon said premises or in the immediate vicinity of same or from distilling the recent mash which they have souring or in any way operating an outfit of any kind upon the premises."

Defendants are Ernest Keithley, Chester Keithley, Haden Casey and Ivan Casey, who the Buchans state in the petition have been doing business under the name of "Keithley and Casey Bros. Distilling company" and "are a firm of moonshiners operating in the county of Taney."

One of the defendants has been sentenced to the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio. The district attorney's office at Kansas City has been notified of the injunction.

BOY GIVES LIFE IN VAIN EFFORT TO RESCUE PAL

The bodies of Richard Detrich, 8 years old, and Robert Rich, 7 years old, schoolmates of East Gary, Ind., were recovered from Deep river near their home yesterday. They had gone coasting together on the ice covered river on Saturday.

It was evident, searchers said, that Richard had given his life to save the younger boy. Robert's sled had broken through the ice and his mitten lay at the edge of the hole.

Richard's sled was 40 feet from the hole on firm ice. From these circumstances it is conjectured that when Robert's sled broke through the ice he clung to the edge calling for help. Richard answered his cry and clung to his floundering playmate until his strength failed and he was pulled into the water. The boys will be buried together tomorrow.

Milwaukee Judge Seeks Brother Missing in Chicago

Circuit Judge August E. Braun of Milwaukee appealed last night for help in his search for his brother, Herbert A. Braun, who left his home in Wauwatosa, Wis., last Wednesday and is believed to be now in Chicago. The judge believes the strees of business troubles may have caused his brother to leave home. The missing man's difficulties are now in the process of solution by his friends, the judge said.

REVEAL FINLAND LESS SOBER THAN WET NEIGHBORS

Drys Blamed for Spread of Booze, Trade Slump.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 12.—Statistics on the relative degrees of inebriety in the different Scandinavian countries once more make out a very poor case for prohibition, which is enforced in Finland alone.

Cases of drunkenness during the first half year of 1929 increased over the figure for the same period in the preceding year from 43,072 cases to 47,849. The figures for the same offenses in the nonprohibition countries are illuminating commentaries on the efficacy of the dry régime. In Sweden, with a much greater population than in Finland, there were only 13,056 cases of drunkenness during the first six months of this year and 12,833 during the first six months of 1928.

Norway More Sober.

In Norway the figures for the same periods were 18,212 in 1929 and 18,541 in 1928. It is interesting to note that while Finland and Sweden both showed a slight increase in cases of drunkenness as between 1928 and 1929, Norway, which has just repealed its prohibition law, showed a decrease.

The capitals of the three countries registered cases of drunkenness as follows: Stockholm, 2,130 cases; Oslo, 4,090, and Helsingfors, the presumably dry city, 10,533.

These statistics, taken together with a recent report of a business men's committee appointed by the Finnish government a year ago to investigate the causes of the severe financial crisis in Finland and to suggest remedies for it, are providing potent arguments for the wets.

The business men's committee, although it had not intended to investigate the prohibition situation, discovered that it had to take it into account in considering the unsatisfactory economic condition of the country. Its report pointed out that Sweden is receiving a revenue of about $27,500,000 from taxation on alcoholic drinks, Norway about $13,000,000, and Denmark about $15,000,000.

Finland Loses Big Revenue.

Finland is not only deprived of this form of revenue, but is spending heavy sums on vain attempts to enforce the law. The enormous sums of capital tied up in the illicit liquor trade, and thus lost to legitimate business, are also blamed for part of the present difficulties.

It is further pointed out that Sweden's tremendous liquor revenue is not gained at the expense of national sobriety, for there are only about one-quarter as many cases of drunkenness there as in Finland, or, in proportion to the two populations, only about one-eighth.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—The Egyptian cabinet has sanctioned the excavation of the site of the Nebi Daniel mosque at Alexandria, traditionally supposed to be Alexander's tomb, following the recent discovery of a granite pillar in the vicinity. The work will be intrusted to the Royal Archæological society.

NAB 17 IN HUNT FOR ASSAILANT OF POLICE HEAD

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Seventeen suspects, including one who had been arrested before in the same case, were taken into custody today and questioned regarding the attempted assassination of Inspector Henry J. Garvin, head of the police crime and bomb squad, ten days ago.

Fourteen of them were lounging in a group at Chene street and Gratiot avenue at 2:30 a. m. today when they were surrounded by members of the Black Hand squad. Three others, including Moses Massu, 21, who previously had been arrested in connection with the case and released, were caught cruising in a borrowed car on Belle isle. With Massu were Lewis Simon, 29, and Charles Aiello, 20.

Rumors that the shooting may have been instigated by jealous colleagues within the department immediately laid a blanket of silence over police headquarters. No one from the commissioner down will make any statement.

PLAN DRIVE FOR FUND TO BENEFIT NATIONAL GUARD

Sunny Heads Campaign to Raise $50,000

A sixty day campaign to raise $50,000 a year in subscriptions to defray extraordinary expenses of the National Guard in Chicago was announced yesterday by B. E. Sunny, newly elected president of the Chicago National Guard commission.

The commission was organized by Gov. Lowden following the world war and Frank O. Wetmore served as president until recently, when he asked to be retired from the office and Mr. Sunny was elected.

State, U. S. Share Cost.

At present, Mr. Sunny pointed out, the federal and state governments divide the cost of the National Guard as regards arms, uniforms, armories and camp facilities. But in addition, funds are needed for other expenses which are incurred in attracting a high type of man to service.

"Athletics, entertainments, dances and so on are invaluable and contests of various kinds with trophies, medals and other forms of approval are necessary in keeping the National Guard at a high point of efficiency," said Mr. Sunny.

"Funds collected by the commission are equitably assessed against the various classifications of business and other public spirited organizations vitally concerned in the maintenance of the guard. All expenditures are covered by voucher and no expenditures are allowed which do not conform to authorized purposes.

Praises Illinois Guard.

"In no state is there a better National Guard organization. It requires character, intelligence, courage, and patriotism to make the soldiers and that these elements are so splendidly present in our National Guard is due to the untiring zeal of Gen. Milton J. Foreman for many years, and since his retirement, to Gen. Roy D. Keehn.

"In time of peace, the military has less lure for the average young man and unless in the association there is reasonable opportunity for pleasant friendships or business or political advantages. Recruiting, therefore, must be carefully done. Only those who will contribute in character and manhood may be admitted to the service.

"It is necessary to provide training and entertainment of the 7,000 members in the fourteen units. These activities, wisely directed as they are, are a boon to the community in the making of good citizens. At the same time they are building a dependable defense for law and order.

Other officers of the commission elected at a recent meeting are Samuel Insull Jr. and Stuyvesant Peabody, vice presidents; Harold E. Foreman, treasurer; and Hal S. Ray, secretary.

EAST, WEST MINGLE FOR FUNERAL RITES OF CHARLIE BOSTON

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—The new and old of New York's crooked little Chinatown mingled in the rain today for Charlie Boston's funeral. Just as he himself had combined the pomp of the west and the east, so did his last ride through the gnarled streets where he had been so long a power as unofficial mayor of Chinatown. An Italian band played the "Dead March from Saul" at the same time two Chinese bands plaintively warded off the evil spirits.

It was an unfortunate matter that no Taoist priest could be found to conduct the services. But it was not to be, so a Presbyterian minister, the Rev. K. C. Young, of his own people, was in charge.

Despite the formal Presbyterian services and the motor driven hearse that has displaced Chinatown's famous equipage drawn by six coal black horses, Charlie's friends saw to it that his last journey would be untroubled by western evil spirits. The two Chinese bands warded them off along the route from Chinatown to the cemetery and papers were scattered along the way to confuse them further. Rice, wine, and chicken were placed in the grave, that he should want nothing.

Burglars, Surprised in 2d Home, Lose Loot from 1st

Three burglars, surprised by Richard Winter, retired grocer, as they were jimmying a window of his home at 105 4th street, Wilmette, early yesterday, dropped two suitcases containing the loot of an earlier burglary and fled. Wilmette police identified the clothing in the suitcases as part of the wardrobe of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Dearborn of 739 9th street, Wilmette. Mr. Dearborn is a stock broker.

GEORGE HUNT CARRIED HOME; ALL HOPE GONE

George Hunt, injured high school athlete of El Paso, Ill., who surgeons say will not live more than three months, was taken back to the St. James hospital at Pontiac, Ill., from Chicago yesterday. The boy expressed a wish to die near home.

The trip was made in a few hours by ambulance. The youth, paralyzed except for head and shoulders, was carefully watched by two friends, J. H. Smith and J. G. Ficken of El Paso, and the strain of the ride apparently did not injure him.

Three months ago, young Hunt incurred a dislocation of a vertebra in a football game between El Paso and Pontiac High schools. When he became paralyzed, both towns joined in contributing to a $1,000 fund, to assist his recovery.

A month ago, the boy was taken to the University of Illinois Research hospital in Chicago and noted surgeons examined him. Nothing could be done, however, the surgeons declared.

"Let me go back home to die," pleaded Hunt. "I want to be with my relatives and friends."

Harry Massey, Hunt's cousin, who came to Chicago a week ago to visit him in the hospital and was jailed because the truck upon which he was riding killed a man, must remain in the county jail until Wednesday. Massey was exonerated of any blame for the death by a coroner's jury on Saturday, but he cannot be officially discharged until his case comes up Wednesday in the Municipal court.

Judge Seeks Capable Officials to Run Polls

A plan to obtain a list of well informed persons from which judges and clerks for the 1930 registrations and elections may be chosen will be outlined by County Judge Jarecki in an address before the City club at 12:30 p. m. next Friday. Representatives of 200 business organizations have been invited to hear the judge's talk.

EGAN DEPARTS TO INVESTIGATE MASSACRE CLEW

Chief of Detectives Egan departed last night for Charleston, W. Va., to investigate the claim of J. Blackburn Watts, state prosecutor at Charleston, and his assistant, Dale G. Casto, that a prisoner they have in custody can deliver to the Chicago police the slayers in the Moran gang massacre.

Casto, in a telegram to Deputy Police Commissioner Stege last Thursday, said he would insist on payment of a $20,000 reward before submitting his prisoner to questioning by the Chicago police. Chief Egan was provided only with traveling expenses. In the event the Charleston prosecutors substantiate their claims, reward pledges totaling $41,500 are available to meet their demand for payment.

Every Pittsburgh Record Broken!

Steadily throughout the year the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette has set new marks for both circulation and advertising gains in the Pittsburgh daily newspaper field.

Circulation figures, as reported in the last publisher's statement to the Audit Bureau of Circulations, show a daily average of

NET PAID CIRCULATION

This is an increase of 10,000 over the Post-Gazette's own total six months ago, and is more than 21,000 higher than its total eighteen months ago. It is almost 60,000 more than the total circulation of any other Pittsburgh Daily Newspaper.

The Post-Gazette leads other Pittsburgh daily newspapers not only in total, but also in city and suburban circulation.

POLICE OF SYDNEY GET MORE POWER IN WAR ON CRIME

New Law Devised to Crush Rule of Gangs.

BY JACK MYERS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Jan. 12.—Greater powers have just been given police in Sydney in order to combat the great increase in crime. Up to now, police were handicapped by deficiencies in law.

They could arrest suspected persons for vagrancy, but if a criminal could show he had a certain amount of money and could prove that he was employed, he was, under the law, as it formerly existed, liberated. Today it is an offense for convicted persons in no regular employment to consort together.

Crime in Many Forms.

The increase in crime in Sydney and its suburbs during the past year has taken many forms. The underworld gang organization with its trade in women, drugs and liquor is the most sinister aspect of recent crime development. The feuds that have taken place between different gangs have resulted in several murders.

"Basher" gangs and "razor" gangs have been organized in intimidation of volunteer workers in industries involved in disputes, and an enormous increase in robberies of all kinds has been reported.

Up to a little over a year ago it is unlikely that there were any organized gangsters in Sydney. There were groups of debased men, who lived luxuriously on the proceeds of crime. Their revenue came from proprietors of grog shops, dancing and drinking dives, disorderly houses, betting shops, and cocaine and other drugs.

The Extortion Plot.

A band of gunmen would visit one of these persons and state that for a stipulated sum he would be "protected." If the money was not forthcoming he would be told he would not only be left without protection, but would be shot. The "protection" money was paid. The money was extorted so easily that bands of parasitic criminals began to fight among themselves. There were shootings, brutal assults and razor slashings. The small groups commenced to band themselves into larger groups, but this only had the effect of making the antagonists stronger and more bitter, and the shootings, slashings and assaults became more numerous.

Subsequently there was a big underworld merger. All the gunmen became members of one of two gangs. An important element in the feuds which ensued was the association of certain women with leaders of the gangs.

Fight Over Women.

Jealousy existed between these women and prompted bitter attacks between the gangs, which often ended in murders. Two women, in particular, were particularly involved in the conflicts between the gangs. One was an old, crafty and rich woman who had been engaged in the drug traffic and the procuring of women for immoral purposes. The other was much younger, attractive and the sweetheart of one of the gang leaders. These women inspired many savage attacks between gangs.

The difficulties of the police in tracing down the murders has been increased by the complete refusal of the victims to give the slightest information, in their dying depositions, of the identity of the men responsible.

Two districts of Sydney constitute the headquarters of the underworld. Surry Hills, which is essentially a working class area, is the center of the cocaine and illicit drug traffic and also the "sly-grog" organization.

Gang Leaders' District.

The other district is Darlinghurst, which adjoins a respectable residential area. Leaders of the gangs and their women companions live in this district, which has been the scene of some of the most serious gang feuds.

One of the serious aspects of increased crime in Sydney is its extension to the industrial arena. This is independent of the operations of the underworld. Strikers will not hesitate to organize violent assaults on men who desire to remain at work.

New legislation provides for heavy penalties, including long sentences of imprisonment, for this type of offense.

On lived the spirit of a Connecticut Yankee who died in '93

The confidential nature of The Northern Trust Company's relationships makes it necessary to disguise the personal details in this story. But the facts of trust experience are substantially as have been given here

DURING his lifetime he had directed his associates wisely in the administration of his vast and widely scattered holdings. For his methodical and highly organized business brain the task had been simple enough. Typical of the man, said those who knew him, was the fact that he died the day his books were closed!

As it came to The Northern Trust Company his estate was a marvel of complexity. There were bank stocks, the bulk in Chicago banks, others in towns elsewhere. There was an interest in a packing business. There were mines in the north, lumber in the south, real estate in Chicago's Loop, land holdings scattered over the country.

To reduce this complexity, immediate liquidation of most of these properties would have been a logical and justifiable procedure.

But this would not have been the Connecticut Yankee's way. Far-sighted, he had unquestionably anticipated a substantial profit from every holding.

The Northern Trust Company set out to administer the estate in the spirit of its owner. They traded as he would have traded. Liquidation was gradual, piece by piece as time was ripe.

The income steadily increased. After thirty-six years of Northern Trusteeship, the estate is several times as great in value as on the day when the old Connecticut Yankee closed his books and died.

What are your plans for your estate?

To whom have you entrusted your plans for the future?

Will your executor-trustee be always here, never lacking in courage, time and financial responsibility?

Will your estate receive the personal, human attention ingrained into the staff of The Northern Trust Company through forty years of energetic service to many of the foremost families of Chicago?

Once only a few large fortunes knew the benefits of trust service. Today to The Northern Trust Company come hundreds of people of moderate means. They bring their problems of will, of estates-management, of all the various types of trusts. Before a committee of its Board pass and repass the difficult problems of the trust estates. Carefully, systematically, they scan every investment. In the spirit of this old trust-minded institution they review each major decision.

Discover what this intensely human yet ever living, ever present trustee can do for you. Its rich fund of trust knowledge is yours. In the planning of your estate it can be of valuable help.

Drawing your will is work to entrust to your own attorney. He will find Northern Trust men anxious to co-operate with him. Today The Northern Trust Company is actively at work with attorneys for many men and women of property. These attorneys find their contacts here are congenial and easy to make.

The time of Northern Trust men is yours. At its home on the northwest corner of La Salle and Monroe Streets, a trust officer will be glad to confer with you.

An informative booklet, "The Ordered Life" will be mailed upon request.

IN COMMERCIAL BANKING

The Northern Trust Company offers the same careful attention to your banking business as it does to your affairs of trust. Sound banking as practiced here leaves ample room for an energetic and resultful effort to serve. You will find the bank officers easily accessible, and familiar with the problems of your type of business

PROGRESS TOWARD A SOUND BUDGET.

The city council has made a start toward reducing the city's appropriations in 1930 to the limits of the city's estimated income. As a result of Friday night's protracted session $270,000 was saved in nonessential and less essential items. The corporation counsel's appropriations were reduced by $100,000. A few other items were reduced or eliminated. Perhaps the most significant of them was the sacrifice by the aldermen themselves of $35,000 for the maintenance of their automobiles. Having shown that much ruthlessness toward their own appropriation, the aldermen may be expected to display at least an equal regard for economy in reconsidering other excessive demands for money.

Needless to say, the reduction of only $270,000 is far from adequate, if the essential services of the city in protecting life, health and property are to be continued unimpaired. Slashes at least ten times as large must be made to provide money to maintain the police, fire and health departments without appropriatings beyond income. No one familiar with the conduct of the city government doubts that the fat is there and can be fried out if the aldermen continue to show the initiative and courage displayed by the majority on Friday night. Some of the aldermen appear to regard the job as completed; the truth is, it has scarcely been begun. Unless Friday night's work is supplemented by other drastic revisions little will have been accomplished.

Of the incidents of Friday night, one, we believe, is especially significant. When a committee of aldermen waited upon the mayor he was found in the company of a few cronies, among them being President Caldwell of the school board. What Mr. Caldwell's errand was we do not know, but it may well have had to do with the budget of the school board now in preparation. The school board, it appears from accounts of its budgetary deliberations, is also appropriating beyond estimated income and thus preparing to add $6,000,000 to its deficit despite increased appropriations granted by the last legislature. What the taxpayers may save as a result of concentration of attention on the city's corporate budget may be lost several times over in misappropriation of school funds. The question arises whether the interests of school children as well as taxpayers are not being sacrificed for the benefit of the payrollers and the political machine.

ABOLITION OF NAVIES.

A pledge by the United States to go as far in the relative reduction of naval establishments as the other great naval powers can be induced to go can be safely made and would be supported by the nation. Our government's practical responsibility is to see that we are not bound to disproportionate reductions and unfair concessions. Reduction will not go farther, if it is proportionate, than we could afford, because the other naval powers show no disposition to abolish their navies completely.

But the formula, if there were prospect of its being applied logically to its extreme, is not as acceptable from the American standpoint as it seems. Great Britain could afford to adopt it better than any other maritime power, for if it were realized Great Britain would emerge not only the greatest sea power, which she is, but her superiority would be greater than it is now. The complete abolition of professional navies might make the British merchant marine the greatest sea power in history.

Our objection to the abolition of navies is not based, however, on that consideration but on the fact that navies are important instrumentalities of civilization, world progress, and world order. Competition is costly and provocative and should be stabilized and checked if possible. Reasonable and equitable reductions will relieve the taxpayer. But a proper expenditure upon organized naval strength is economy, not waste.

AMERICA FIRST, 1930.

After voting to omit an appropriation for the high school R. O. T. C. in the 1930 budget, the school board's finance committee reconsidered. A delegation from the American Legion induced the budget makers to reinstate the service. But the vote of the Thompson school trustees throws some light on the America First slogan in 1927-'28. The remarks of Trustee Lewis E. Myers, a recent Thompson appointee who proposed abolition of the student reserve, are a curious interpretation of America First principles. "I fail to understand," he said, "why the board should pay for the training of soldiers of the government. We do not need drill sergeants in our schools at this time. New York has abolished the R. O. T. C., so I move we strike it out of the budget."

The late patrioteering campaign sounds pretty hollow now. America First was shrewd tactics to exploit the patriotism of voters and to evade the discussion of municipal issues. The slogan served its purpose and is now discarded. Why should Chicago train soldiers for the government?

Had it not been for the intervention of real patriots, Mayor Thompson's "America First-Down with McAndrew" school board undoubtedly would have approved the decision of the finance committee and the R. O. T. C. would have been abolished here. The city is grateful to the American Legion and the other patriots who protected us against the defeatism of America First [1927-'28].

LIBERALISM AND HAITI.

A cartoon from Tevere, an Italian periodical, depicts the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor casting a long and taloned shadow over the island of Haiti. The implication is that Uncle Shylock, hypocrite and tyrant, is oppressing the Haitian people. It is noteworthy that this cartoon is reproduced in the Manchester Guardian, which recently favored its readers with an editorial on American "oppression" in Haiti. As an organ of British liberalism the Guardian not unnaturally is impressed with the views of American occupation expressed in our own organs of the liberal minded, and can hardly be expected to show more respect for the facts than they do. Spreading the impression by way of cartoon comment in a Fascist organ seems to us another matter.

The misrepresentation of Haitian conditions, the Haitian problem, and the American effort in the island by what passes for liberalism is an interesting aspect of that state of mind. By formula any intervention by a strong power in the affairs of a weaker is tagged oppression. That during the American intervention and control of Haitian affairs mistakes have been made no one will deny, but common sense and even a rudimentary sense of justice would suggest that in considering them attention should also be given to the conditions corrected and the benefits conferred. The liberal claque is constantly used in politics, both our own and that of Latin America, to discredit the United States, but a mind that is sincerely liberty loving and humanitarian, and not befuddled with formulas, will regard the American intervention in Haiti as not only a necessary act of police but a beneficence to the very classes of the Haitian people which liberalism and humanitarianism is supposed to champion.

American administration in Haiti may and doubtless does have its shortcomings, but it is a sardonic commentary upon liberal protest that the weakness of our policy is too great reluctance to impose an iron rule of efficiency and too great an effort to give the Haitian people as much control over their affairs as is compatible with their health, safety and progress. American imperialism or oppression, in this instance at least, has conducted itself upon lines which one would expect liberalism to approve.

The United States intervened in Haiti to end a bloody chaos. Its presence there is the only security against the return of conditions created by the Haitians themselves throughout a century of persistent corruption, incompetence and sanguinary disorder. The American administration has checked that, but it has not been, and no human agency would be, able to transform the character of the Haitian people. But to call its earnest and high minded service oppression is an example of stupid theorizing or of malicious purpose which any real liberalism would repudiate.

As to doctrinaire liberalism, we think an examination of the record would show that so far as the protection of the obscure from the concrete evils of their lives is concerned—disease, poverty, stagnation and oppression—imperialism is their better friend and doctrinaire liberalism too often a false guide and futile guardian.

DETROIT ON WILLIGAN.

Certain remarks published here a week or so ago appear to have disturbed the calm of the Detroit Free Press. We suggested that the saner sections of Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan be united into a new state to be called Willigan. The Free Press did its best to see red. The tenor of its reply was that Chicago is notorious for its crime and governmental corruption.

It must be admitted that Chicago's record for lawfulness as well as for purity in municipal government does leave a great deal to be desired. Still, the criticism does not come appropriately from Detroit. Detroit is a city which always has one industry and sometimes has two to give it renown and a justification for being. With the manufacture of automobiles in one of the periods of eclipse, the city must place its principal dependence upon its old standby, the trade in liquor smuggled over the border. Needless to say, the business is lucrative, but there are those who regard it as shady. Even in Detroit some citizens speak of rum running without pride.

Detroit, of course, has a claim to distinction aside from its basic industries. In Detroit criminal conditions are so bad that even the Detroit newspapers do not dare expose them.

Editorial of the Day

HE SITS ON TOP.

Not half a dozen years ago George R. Dale, editor of a struggling weekly newspaper in Muncie, was regarded as fair game and safe for anybody to pick upon. And almost everybody did. But Editor Dale is a fighter who loves his fighting, and he fought back valiantly if not always victoriously in the matter of detail.

On Monday Editor Dale was inaugurated mayor of the city of Muncie. Thus does the pendulum swing in its vicissitude to triumph. Editor Dale had been picked upon quite a deal. The Ku-Kluxers picked, and they were a numerous and powerful body for several years in Muncie. The Republican politicians picked and kept at it. The drys and their allies, the klansmen, occasionally joined in a twosome to do some picking. Then the courts got into the game. The result finally was that Editor Dale found himself, following a prolonged, stubborn, heroic, and losing battle, down on the state convict farm for contempt of court. Executive clemency relieved him promptly of that.

But Editor Dale did not quit fighting. He fought so well that he got his chief persecutor, the notorious Judge Dearth of the Delaware Circuit court, before the legislature on charges of impeachment and almost got him convicted. But the exposure of Dearth's amazing conduct of his judicial office put that dubious jurist on the shelf when the next election time came around. A year ago Editor Dale went into the Democratic primaries in Muncie as a candidate for mayor. He was handily nominated, and last November was decisively elected. On Monday he took his seat. He is the chief magistrate of the city in which he long has pursued his enemies and has been no less hotly pursued by them.

GUARDING AGAINST DIPHTHERIA.

THIS is the season when parents are considering having their children immunized against diphtheria. While this disease has lost most of the terrors which it held a quarter of a century ago it is still one of the worst menaces of childhood. It is less of a cause of death. Antitoxin has changed it from an almost incurable disease into one that is satisfactorily treated. Now it is seldom necessary to put a tube into the larynx either through the neck or down the throat. Strangulation rarely occurs. But in spite of all these gains diphtheria remains a dreaded disease, dreaded because of the severity of the illness, the inconvenience and expense of isolation, the tendency to spread, and the after effects, such as paralysis, heart disease and Bright's disease.

Very few children have it during the first two years of life. By the beginning of school life somewhere about one-fiftieth of the child population have already had their dose of it and are immune. Forty-nine-fiftieths of them are still susceptible to it. During the ten years of school life about one-twenty-fifth of them have it. By sixteen years of age about one child out of each six has had diphtheria. It is to spare this somewhere about one-sixteenth of the child population the dangers to life and the hazards of after paralysis, heart disease and kidney disease that immunization is done.

Immunization is nothing but vaccination. The method differs from that used in vaccinating against smallpox, but the purpose is the same and the good of the two is, roughly speaking, on a par. In immunization against diphtheria the material which builds up resistance to the disease is injected under the skin, as is done in immunizing or vaccinating against typhoid. Several shots are given. In the United States the material used is diphtheria toxin to which has been added enough antitoxin to prevent symptoms from the toxin. In Canada they use anatoxin or toxoid, a preparation of toxin made in a particular way so as to be almost symptomless, without the addition of antitoxin. Each preparation has its advantages. To my mind, for use on young children, the Canadian preparation is the better.

Immunizing against diphtheria should be done on young children—the sooner after babyhood the better. But there is also a field for it among adults. Diphtheria occurs with some frequency among grownups. In spite of all the experiences of life about one-half the adult population are susceptible to it.

ONE DOCTOR TO ANOTHER.

Dr. H. S. H. writes: Certain diseases, for instance paresis, are treated by inducing a fever. A common way of doing this is by injection with the microbes of malaria and rat bite fever. Another method is by giving the subject baths in quite hot water. This has certain advantages over treatment by injection with germs. One disadvantage is that a very hot bath, somewhat prolonged, can induce heat stroke or fever that goes higher than is desired. A prominent physicist has told me of a method of preventing this.

He advises that in taking a very hot bath one arm be kept out of the water. The skin of this dry, cool arm acts as a radiator governor or stabilizer for the fevered body, and prevents any undue fever or heat stroke.

REPLY.

You mention paresis. Had you felt inclined to take more space you might have mentioned melancholia and other disorders which are benefited by hot baths. Some part of the good done by baths at hot springs is based on that principle. It is important to know that holding out an arm or leg removes the danger of too much constitutional heat effect.

BARE LEGS ALL RIGHT.

Mrs. S. B. writes: I have a boy six years of age who wears socks all winter without leggings. My friends tell me he will get rheumatism because his legs are exposed. Will you please let me know whether socks all winter are harmful?

REPLY.

They are not, provided the child is vigorous.

DARK HALLWAY.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Local Friend of the People.]—Can a hallway in a three story building be left in absolute darkness after midnight? The hallway leads directly off the street and its door is never locked. M. E. M.

In 283 Ill. 271, 275, the Supreme court held an ordinance requiring light invalid on the ground that the city has only delegated powers which do not include this subject matter. It is the general rule that in absence of such an ordinance or statute the landlord is under no legal obligation to furnish light [36 C. J. 36 and 214].
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ADOPTING A NEW NAME.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What procedure is necessary to have one's surname changed legally? A. J. B.

No legal proceedings are required to make a change of name valid. Hence a marriage or other legal act performed under an adopted name is not for that reason invalid.

A person adopting a new name permanently should for convenience give notice of the change to those persons to whom the information may be material. In transactions in which the old name appears we suggest continuing to use it to avoid confusion. For example, if real estate records show title in the old name, it should be used in a subsequent conveyance.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WOULD MAKE VISIT PERMANENT.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—A young Polish girl came to this country for a visit. Her visa is expiring in the near future. Could she remain here permanently if she married an American citizen? S. A.

A person coming to the United States on a visit must leave the country on or before the time of expiration of such visit. She can proceed to any country of her choice and have her husband, who is an American citizen, file a petition for an immigration visa on her behalf to have her come into the United States without waiting for the quota. Form 633, for this purpose, can be obtained at this office [608 South Dearborn street]. S. D. SMITH.
District Director of Immigration.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WELL SIR, THEY TELL ME—

that people can't make head nor tail of all the senatorial investigations of lobbyists that are being made down in Washington. It's all very simple. We'll explain. A lobbyist, or a paid propaganda agent, is yanked before the senate investigation committee, and a senator screws his face all up in a bowknot until he looks as cross and threatening as all gitout. Then raising his voice until you can hear it back home where the votes are he says:

"Do you realize that by accepting pay for influencing the making of laws in congress you are tampering with the very foundations of this great republic?"

"Bologney," says the lobbyist; "I gotta live, hain't I?"

"Is it or is it not true," pipes up another senator, "that you are paid by the Zanzibar Orris Root industry to influence tariff legislation?"

"Oh, I hope to tell you I am," says the lobbyist, "and you don't know the half of it, dearie!"

Then another senator stands up and leans over to shake a finger in the lobbyist's face.

"But you cannot influence legislation in this great deliberative body by threatening congressmen that you'll line up all the preachers in his district and defeat him for reëlection if he does not vote the way you tell him!"

"Listen, brother," replies the witness, "if we put the kibosh on a congressman he couldn't be elected keeper of the dog pound."

"But," says the next senatorial cross-examiner, "don't you know that is unconstitutional?"

"So's your congressional bootlegger," says the witness, slangily.

"But you can't influence legislation," roars a senator, "by having a great mass of telegrams and letters poured like an avalanche over the distinguished statesmen who are duly chosen as guardians of our most sacred institutions."

"The hell I can't!" says the lobbyist, "watch my smoke and see for yourself."

"But," shouts another member of the investigating committee, "you lobbyists must beware lest you sap the foundations of our great republic!"

"Saps is right," says the propaganda racketeer, "but think how many saps there are and that every one of them has a vote."

"But you don't get me—" objects the statesman.

"Cheer up," interrupts the lobbyist, "I will. Gimme time."

"You ought to be in jail," yells the senator.

"Why?" asks the senator.

"That's my stuff," says the lobbyist, "I'm press agent for Bigger and Better Jails!"

And so it goes and so it goes.

BLUEBELL.

Oh! the years were long, and the past was dead,
And buried far from sight.
And its grave was piled with a thousand things
That covered and hid it quite.

A thousand things like a baby's laugh,
And the clasp of another man's hand.
And a hundred hundred of other days
When memory was banned.

But last night there slid through the moonlit air
That song of a bygone day.
And the years were not, and the thousand things
All vanished quite away.

And the cello sobbed "Farewell to thee,"
As we waltzed in the dim old hall.
And the violin throbbed, "One last fond kiss,"
One kiss! And that was all.

And poignant anguish tore my heart
As the music rose and fell.
Oh! God knew best when he buried the past
And covered its grave so well!

But He forgot—though the heart be still,
And the years be very long,
That the past can rise, like a soul set free

MARJORIE F. W.

WE were pro and conning about "The Secretariat," a grand story about Mr. Hoover's personal yesmen in a recent American Mercury. "By cracky!" shouted old Uncle Dudley, "that's what started the fire in the White House! Friction among the secretaries!" We threw him out a third story window. And richly he deserved it.

TCK! TCK! W. G. Sibley, who travels gayly and philosophically Along the Highway in the Chi. Jour. of Commerce, in speaking of the friendly little conversation in the White House the other day between Mrs. Gann and Alice Longworth, says: "Thus a social pimple begins to dry up." Oh, Mr. Sibley! How could you! My goodness, somebody is going to sue you for libel! Tck! Tck!

Always Belittlin'.

Maybe you haven't heard Howard Gillette's story about the man who dreamed a genie appeared before him and offered to grant him one wish. All right, said the man; I want to see a copy of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for Jan. 1, 1931. Presto! The paper was placed in his hands. Hurriedly the man turned to the financial section and saw there an article saying he was worth $5,000,000.00. Whoops, said the man, that's the stuff. Then he turned to the obituary column and found he had died the day before.

LAGNIAPPE.

OF COURSE the reformers are eager to convict book stores of selling things that Aunt Emma shouldn't read, not only to protect Aunt Emma, but because they get half the fine, and as the fine might amount to a thousand dollars, naturally the Truly Pure are eager to get the goods on somebody. But the worm has turned, or may we not say the bookworm has turned and the courts are looking harshly upon the zealous reformers. We are glad the check has come in time to save Elsie Dinsmore and "How to Know the Wild Flowers." For to the Truly Pure reformers all things are rotten.

BLUE MONDAY! And it's the 13th of the month. That makes it bluer! And it's the middle of January. Bluer still! And no holidays for a heluva while. Come, brothers and sisters, let's to the Walling Wall! And one single grin out of you, Pollyanna, and into the lake you go where the ice is thickest. R. H. L.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 13, 1865.

NEW YORK.—It is announced that Gen. McClellan will leave on a European trip the first week of February. He has declined the offer of a private vessel tendered by his friends. He will go on the steamer China and will be gone two years.

WASHINGTON.—It is now specifically stated that on Jan. 6 Lieut. Gen. Grant indicated to President Lincoln his earnest desire that Maj. Gen. Butler be forthwith relieved of his command. On the next day the President directed the adjutant general to issue the order deposing Butler and ordering him to report at Lowell, Mass., his home.

WASHINGTON.—The senate confirmed the nomination of John Wilson of Illinois to be third auditor of the treasury.

NEW YORK.—Nearly all papers contain editorials on peace rumors. The World says that President Lincoln has no authority to offer amnesty on the abolition of slavery, and Jeff Davis could not, under the confederate constitution, accept such an offer.

ST. LOUIS.—A perfect jubilation occurred at the capital on receiving news that the immediate emancipation of slaves ordinance had been passed by the state convention.

CHICAGO—Capt. John Christopher, U. S. A., and Miss Josephine Smith, daughter of Dr. D. S. Smith, were married at Grace church on Jan. 12 by the Rev. Dr. Clinton Locke. John T. Hughes and Miss Anna Sleighter were married at the Briggs house on Jan. 12 by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Ryder.

JANUARY 13, 1920.

ST. JOHN'S N. F.—All on board the steamer wrecked in St. Mary's bay have perished. The furious seas and fierce storms that prevail have blocked all attempts to identify the ship, but from its size it must have carried a crew of at least sixty, and probably passengers. A trunk containing woman's clothing drifted ashore, indicating women were on the ship.

LONDON.—The war office received a dispatch from Gen. Buller stating that he has occupied the south bank of the Tugela river at Potgieter's Drift. He says the Boers are strongly entrenched about four miles north of him. His dispatch is interpreted as meaning that he has passed around the western end of the Boer lines at Colenso, and is within fourteen miles of Gen. White's outposts at Ladysmith.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Col. J. H. Wood of national reputation as showman, theatrical manager, museum backer and promoter, died of cancer, complicated with paralysis. He formerly operated museums and show houses in Chicago, both before and after the great fire.

NEW YORK.—After three rounds of the most savage fighting ever seen in New York, Norman Selby [Kid McCoy] defeated Joe Choynski at the Broadway Athletic club. The referee decided Choynski was knocked out, but it is contended the blow that felled him was foul. In the second round McCoy was saved by the juggling of the count.

JANUARY 13, 1920.

KHARKOV.—The shadow of bolshevism is drawing nearer every day. This city, the largest in southern Russia, is being evacuated of those inhabitants to whom to remain means death or semi-starvation. By tens of thousands the people have been pouring southward for ten days and the movement will cease only with the arrival of the Red forces. Disease and hunger go with the refugees.

CHICAGO.—Michael F. Sullivan, 1613 West Jackson boulevard, for seven years State's Attorney Hoyne's first assistant and for many years a dominant figure in west side Democratic politics, died suddenly at his home from an attack of uraemic poisoning. He was 51 years old.

NEW YORK.—John Dodge, Detroit manufacturer, who is seriously ill of pneumonia at a hotel here, was nearing a crisis tonight, his physician stated. His brother, Horace, also stricken with pneumonia, is said to be recovering.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

UNFAVORABLE, BUT NOT UNFAIR.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—The Rev. Philip Yarrow, a self-appointed censor of the literature we Chicagoans are permitted to read, complains of unfair publicity, and his complaint comes so soon after THE TRIBUNE'S timely editorial, "Boston Tactics in Chicago," that literature lovers who rejoiced on reading it rejoiced even more on learning that it was not without effect.

Yarrow has no call to describe unfavorable publicity as "unfair," for obviously there is nothing unfair about courageous and jealous defense of public and literary rights.

To all those who object to the reformer's assumption that he is fit to read that which he considers us unfit to read I suggest an avalanche of protest at his arrogance. E. WIRTANEN.

TOBOGGANING IN THE DARK.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Tobogganing at Palos Park is a fine, clean sport and I'm very fond of it. However, it is very unsafe after dark.

The "grewsome accident" mentioned in THE TRIBUNE occurred in the dark. To prevent such an awful thing from happening again I would suggest that the forest preserve put up some lights near the slides. If that is impossible, then a big sign, "No Tobogganing After Dark," would serve the purpose.

I noticed a large number of people, including children, using the slides after dark, with only the rays from headlights of several automobiles parked nearby to light the way. MILDRED M. GREGG.

THE LITTLE THINGS IN LONDON.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 10.—The criticisms of Mr. Philip Kinsley's interesting article on London revealed several startling theses. We learn from Mr. McGrath that English bad coffee bids fair to provoke an international discord; that criticisms of the London bills of fare might tie the disarmament conference in a knot, and what about the American gas station and hot dog stand anyway? This last bit of manhandling is the final blow to critics of foreign foibles.

Mountains made of molehills, tempests in teapots notwithstanding, many writers agree with Mr. Kinsley as to the insipidity of English coffee and the thousand and one other little inconveniences and hardships the traveler meets over there. But THE TRIBUNE story was not uncharitable. It is obvious that the writer had done a nice piece of observing.

It is true that America's cuisine has its own shortcomings. True also that citizens of this country do not consistently express a genial fellowship in their contacts with one another. But Mr. Kinsley is writing about England, and he has neither the time nor space to satisfy all parties with mutual slander. Let him whose heart is in the highlands or one of those places read the travel folders and on with the absorbing story of the little things.
JOHN H. DREHER.

TELLING US WHAT WE MAY READ.

Elmhurst, Ill., Jan. 9.—Your editorial, "Boston Tactics in Chicago," should open the eyes of the public to the methods of these snooping, meddlesome reformers. Boston is getting a mild taste of the inquisition. Let the so-called reformers get the upper hand and freedom of thought and liberty of belief is dead. GEO. ALBURTON.

ABHORRENT REFORM.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—I believe all intelligent individuals reading THE TRIBUNE editorial, "Boston Tactics in Chicago," will agree that Rev. Yarrow's misguided book suppression campaign is offensive and abhorrent. Owing to their success in putting over prohibition, taking the kick out of drink, they now feel inspired to take the kick out of our books.

They still maintain the delusion that every one reacts to sex in an abnormal way and fail to understand that books which they class as obscene are bought and read by moral, intelligent adults desiring to further their store of knowledge and acquire the viewpoint of another, presumably intelligent and moral. If such persons wanted erotic stimulation they could find an abundance in concentrated form on the magazine stands for the small sum of twenty-five or fifty cents. Why pay five dollars for a book with only a few choice passages?

These reformers seem unable to realize that one can only favorably influence and reform a man when you have gained his confidence and ceased hating him, recognizing his constitutional right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. J. B. WATKINS.

"IF THIS BE TREASON!"

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Why do you give people like Senator Upjohn unpaid for publicity and consequent hill-billy votes by publishing his letter as you did yesterday?

If you and the so-called wet press are traitors because of your sentiments on prohibition, dry murders, etc., then 90 per cent of the American Legion also are traitors.

I wonder what percentage of the male membership of the Anti-Saloon league are world war veterans? EX-SOLDIER.

EXPRESS FLYER, LOST IN STORM, SOUGHT IN UTAH

Fear Pilot Forced Down in Blizzard.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Maurice Graham, Western Air Express pilot, missing since Friday night, when he left Las Vegas, Nev., was the object of searching parties which set out from St. George, Utah, today in the belief that he has been forced down in a raging snowstorm near that town.

Graham is said to have been well provided with food and blankets. He was flying an open cockpit plane and carried no passengers.

The Associated Press correspondent at St. George reported today that a plane believed to have been Graham's passed over that town about 1 a. m. Saturday flying low and apparently seeking the landing field. He said the engine was not operating smoothly. The pilot evidently missed the field in the heavy snowstorm and proceeded northward.

Route Along Cañon.

The air route north from St. George proceeds along a cañon, and doubt was expressed that a suitable place for an emergency landing could be found.

A report received here by the Western Air Express from Pioche, Nev., about 30 miles off the route of their Los Angeles-Salt Lake City planes, said a plane was sighted over that town about 6 a. m. Saturday flying low and apparently seeking a place to land.

Fog Halts Air Search.

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A dense fog and lowering rain clouds that made flying almost suicidal today brought to a virtual standstill the widespread search for Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, two flyers who disappeared Friday after they had soared aloft on an altitude flight.

Hope was rapidly waning for the pair, who took off from Farmingdale, N. Y., to determine the altitude capacity of a six place cabin monoplane owned by the Fairchild Airplane Manufacturing corporation. It was believed that a treacherous cross wind and poor visibility caused them to lose their bearings.

From widely scattered points along the coast came vague reports that persons had seen or heard a heavy plane passing. A boy said he heard a plane land in the water near Rocky Point, L. I.; word was received that a plane had passed over Bethany, Conn., and many other "tips" were received.

Rewards totaling $1,500 were posted for the finding of the plane. The Fairchild company offered $1,000 and $500 was offered by Mrs. John Kirkpatrick of Bloomfield, N. J., mother of one of the airmen.

Two Texas Flyers Killed.

Amarillo, Tex., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Emmett Myers, pilot, and L. P. Wheeler, airplane salesman, both of Amarillo, were killed here today when their plane crashed.

The ship was one of six participating in flying exhibitions over the city. While circling about three miles from the English airport, to which both victims were attached, the plane went into a nose dive for about 1,500 feet, spectators said. The dive then turned into a spin and the plane crashed.

Myers is survived by his widow and four children.

ENDS LIFE TO END PAIN.

A note saying he could no longer endure the pain he had suffered during six months of illness was found last night beside the body of Klaas Kaan, 67 year old bachelor of 5717 Emerald avenue. He had killed himself with a pistol.

RITCHIE IS EXPECTED TO SEEK PRESIDENCY IN '32 ON WET TICKET

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland is believed to have his lightning rod up as a possible contender for the next Democratic presidential nomination. In a Jackson day address last week Mr. Ritchie, who holds the record of being the only governor three times elected by Maryland, made it evident that he expects to seek the nomination for a fourth term in the September primaries. If he is renominated and reelected it is expected that a formidable movement will develop in his behalf for the presidential nomination in 1932.

In his Jackson day address Gov. Ritchie again emphasized the doctrine of state rights in connection with the prohibition issue. The Maryland executive was a favorite son presidential candidate on the wet issue in 1928, withdrawing in favor of Alfred E. Smith, and if prospects are favorable for the selection of another wet as the Democratic standard bearer in 1932 it is expected he will figure prominently among the possibilities. As an Episcopalian, his friends figure that his nomination would not mean the injection of the religious issue, such as figured in the Hoover-Smith contest.

STUDENT, BLUE OVER HIS WORK, SHOOTS HIMSELF

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Because he feared he was not making progress in his studies at Michigan State college, Gerald Thachitich, 21, of Deckerville, Mich., shot himself with a rifle in a barn near his rooming place at East Lansing late today.

His four roommates found the body. They said he had been worrying over the possibility of "flunking" several subjects, but had seemed cheerful Saturday night when he attended a dancing party. When he left the house with his gun Sunday he informed his friends he was going hunting.

6 PERISH WHEN HOUSE BURNS AS THEY SLEEP

Overturned Oil Lamp Is Cause of Tragedy.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Six persons were burned to death early this morning when the home of Wilson Long, seven miles east of Findlay, O., was destroyed by fire. All occupants of the home perished. The dead:

WILSON LONG, 48.

NANCY LONG, 78, mother of Wilson Long.

LAURA LONG, 53, Long's sister.

HELEN LONG, 17, Long's daughter.

LEROY LONG, 4, Long's son.

LEONA EWING, 14, daughter of Horace Ewing.

The fire is believed to have started from an overturned coal oil lamp.

The bodies of five of the victims have been found, but the body of one of the girls is still somewhere in the smoldering ruins of the home. It is impossible to distinguish which one of the girls' bodies has been found.

Wind Prevents Rescue.

Neighbors first discovered the fire at 6:20 this morning, but a south wind fanning the flames made rescue work impossible.

The mystery of how a half dozen persons could all be trapped without a means of escape for at least some of them remained unsolved tonight.

The fire apparently started in a downstairs room occupied by Long's mother and his sister. The latter was an invalid. Mrs. Long is supposed to have lighted the lamp which is blamed for the tragedy.

The age of Mrs. Long and the illness of the daughter probably contributed to their inability to sound an alarm, Sheriff Orville E. Wilford said.

Dies on Visit to Chum.

The two young girls also were sleeping in a downstairs room. Long and his son occupied an upstairs room. Long's wife had come to Findlay last night to stay with her mother, Mrs. Moses McAnelly, who has been in ill health. Leona Ewing had been staying at the McAnelly home and when Mrs. Long came to Findlay last night she decided to return to the Long farm with her chum, Helen Long, for a visit.

In addition to Mrs. Long, two daughters, Mary and Martha, survive. They are nurses at Findlay. Long is believed to have died with the body of his son in his arms. Their bodies were found at the bottom of the stairway.

Orphans Die in Fire.

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Two orphan boys and a young man died from inhaling smoke in a fire at Richmond Hill tonight. A woman who was trapped with them above the flames was rescued unconscious from the fumes, but was revived after a hard fight by police rescue squads.

The dead were John Harold, 5; Charles Melvy, 6, and William Schultz, 21. Mrs. Martha Schultz, mother of William, was overcome. Mrs. Schultz was boarding the children for the New York Foundling hospital.

The flames started about 6:30 p. m., in the cellar of a store occupying the ground floor. They spread so quickly through the lower floor that the four occupants of the Schultz apartment on the second floor had no chance to get out.

Congratulate Boy, 12, Who Routed Bandit at Hotel

SAMOAN NATIVES DANCE WITH JOY; YANKS COMING

58 Year Wish Gratified; See Own Rule.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PAGO-PAGO, Tutuila, American Samoa, Jan. 12.—Every man and woman, to say nothing of the children of the islands of eastern Samoa, are looking eagerly forward to the formal taking over of Tutuila and adjoining islands by the American government.

Some time this year, perhaps late in the spring, a congressional committee is to visit the American islands in the south seas and after a thorough investigation will return to Washington and there draw up a plan of government. Although nothing is yet certain, the chances are that it will eventually become a territorial form of government, probably along the line of Hawaii, with as much native participation as possible.

Plan Great Welcome.

Until the congressional committee outlines its plans, there will be little for the people to do, but once these are known, the Samoans will arrange to prepare a welcome, for which these peaceful, hospitable and musical people are famed for, and for whom they have been waiting and asking for for 58 years.

It is in preparation for this period of gala days that Mauga, 76 years old, the leader of the clans of Tutuila, has committed himself to the American native hospital at Pago-Pago, where under the personal direction of Commander Phelps, chief of the United States naval station, he is trying to get back into his old time vigor. He has a heart affliction, but otherwise he appears to be the same tall and upright man of his youth. Despite his years his hair still is almost fully black, his voice is strong and his hand grasp is equally so.

It was back in 1872 that the first real American visitor, in the person of Commander Richard Meade of the United States navy, arrived in the harbor of Pago-Pago. There had of course been earlier visitors—the London Missionary society in 1830, various scientific and like expeditions, brief calls by venturesome travelers, but except for the two first missionaries they were as a rule met with the prayer of the natives to the family god:

"Drive away from us the sailing gods lest they come and cause disease and death."

Wins U. S. Naval Station.

Even in the day of Williams and Barth, the London missionaries, Mowna, better known as Mauga, adopted son of the previous chief of Pomale, was the chief of Pago-Pago. As early as 1853 the American government had established a consular agent at Apia, in western Samoa, and in 1862, the first Catholic missionary visited Tutuila.

When Commander Mead steamed into Pago-Pago harbor in 1872 he made, on his own responsibility, an agreement with Mauga, by which the American government was granted the exclusive privilege of a naval station in Pago-Pago harbor. Later a special agent of the state department was sent, since President Grant and the senate feared acceptance would require American protection as well, to which the then isolated policy of the government did not wish to commit itself.

Col. A. B. Steininger was sent to Samoa to report on the commercial and other possibilities as a result of Meade's treaty and a constitution and code of laws resulted. In time he became premier of the new government formed in eastern Samoa, and later he made an agreement with Germany for the furtherance of German trade. As a result Steininger was kidnaped by the captain of a British warship and transported a prisoner to the British colony in Fiji. Coincident with this the king of Samoa was deposed and put under a British guard at Apia.

U. S. Wins Native Confidence.

Both the British and the Germans often tried to provoke an attack upon the whites in the hope of seizure by these two imperialistic powers. The American government kept well out of these affairs and won the confidence and respect of the Samoans.

In December, 1899, Samoa was partitioned into two sections, the western part, with Apia as the capital, being given to Germany, and the eastern part, with Tutuila as its main island, being under the care of the United States. In 1900 an executive order by the President placed Tutuila under American control as a naval station, and the flag was raised April 17, on which day high chiefs of that island formally ceded Tutuila to the United States, and the island of Aunuu as well. Some smaller islands were added later.

Annexed in 1926.

Since 1902 an American naval man has been governor, the term averaging two years. However, there was no formal annexation and as late as a year ago the navy department did not give its approval of the regulations of a naval governor. Under this a civilian was appointed as secretary of native affairs, the others being naval officers until recently, when a civilian American became the head of the department of justice.

Time after time effort was made to have congress formally annex American Samoa. The congress of 1926 saw the entire session devoted by Lenroot to his bill for annexation, and it is only within the year that this has been accomplished. And now that it is done, congress finally has appointed a committee to come to Tutuila and prepare for formal regulation and form of government.

ALABAMA DEMOCRATS DIVIDED ON DECISION TO EXCLUDE BOLTERS

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—County Democratic executive committees in Alabama stood sharply divided today on the decision of the state Democratic executive committee to bar as candidate from the August primary all persons who failed to support the party ticket in the 1928 presidential election.

Six county committees have adopted resolutions to permit any one to be a candidate for county office "who believes in the principles of the Democratic party." Six other county committees have passed resolutions which will not allow any one to become a candidate who failed to support the entire Democratic ticket in 1928, including Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

By the action of the state body, Senator J. Thomas Heflin, Alabama's senior senator, has been barred from the primary, and is expected to run for reelection on an independent ticket, with the support of the Ku Klux Klan.

The remainder of the counties are expected to hold Democratic executive committee meetings this month to determine whether or not bolters can run as Democrats in the primary.

DOROTHY CLARKE

REM sends it away quickly

A healthy child wants to be outdoors at every opportunity. But sometimes when the weather is bad, that leads to coughs. Dorothy Clarke of 1623 W. Kentucky St., Louisville, caught a cold at school, (probably from running out at recess time without wraps,) that resulted in a bad cough. An ad in the paper made her mother decide to try REM—for at that time Mrs. Clarke also had a bad cough. "It relieved us all," says Mrs. Clarke, "and now we are all great believers in REM for coughs. My husband has used it, too." So it goes. When one member of a family once tries REM, it usually isn't long before it's the regular cough medicine for the whole household. Try REM yourself!

ON the starboard side of the Chicago Tribune's editorial page, half way down, there's an explosive little 125x2 chunk of space—the Voice of the People. However small that space may be in a 48-page newspaper, it makes itself heard day after day with energetic shouting. It bubbles, it crackles, it screams, it boils. Experts, amateurs, prohibitionists, preachers, professors and John Henry Public all express themselves with gusto if not always with aplomb. They quarrel over nationality, astronomy and street naming. They praise, they blame—always they write.

And writing, they give people of the Chicago Tribune two things, the first of which is proof of interest. Let a Tribune editorial writer say anything controversial and part of the public gleefully pounces upon him. Others spring to his defense. Hairpins and hats fly. Scratchings, rabbit-punches and knockouts are delivered. This is no quiet, polite "Oh, I beg your pardon but I am forced to disagree with you" matter. It's a squall, brought on by the conflicting interests and pet opinions of 838,000 reader families. Since Tribune editorial writers have a flair for controversy and frankness, the storm is always with us.

Secondly, here is the Tribune's mirror. A reflection of itself peers out, not as it sees itself—but as it is seen by the more articulate persons among 838,002 Central Western families. And here is the Tribune advertiser's mirror of the interest this multitude takes in its Chicago Tribune.

SEAL 2 MEN IN BURNING MINE, NOW A TOMB

All Hope Abandoned for Pair Trapped by Fire.

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Far back in the Kentucky hills, Aaron Bridwell, 33, and Dorris Woods, 38, today were sealed tight in a blazing mine—a mine that will be their tomb.

The two men were working 300 feet back in a slope mine, one that goes into a hillside, late yesterday when fire broke out in the entrance, trapping them. Gasoline from an engine pulling the mine car became ignited, spread, and in a few minutes the mine entrance was a blazing inferno.

Aid Arrives on Muleback.

Carl Melton, owner of the mine, Emery Dixon and Pat Cates were working on the outside as the fire started. They attempted to reach the miners, but could not get through the flames. Calls for mine rescue crews were sent to Evansville, Ind., Madisonville and Sturgis, Ky. But it was late at night before aid arrived on horseback and muleback. The roads in the vicinity are impassable for automobiles.

The volunteer workers labored heroically to stem the flames, but could make no headway. About an hour after the fire had started, a signal bell, which is operated by a cable from within the mine, rang once, feebly. Watchers on the outside immediately dispatched the mine car into the flames, but it came out empty. It was thought that falling timbers from the roof probably rang the bell.

All Hope Abandoned.

At midnight last night G. P. Powell, United States mine bureau inspector, announced that there was no chance for the men to be alive and ordered the mine sealed to smother the fire. The sealing of the mine was completed today. Inspector Powell said it probably will be at least four or five weeks before the mine can be opened, as the fire is expected to burn that long.

Bridwell is survived by his widow and a 4 year old son and Woods by his widow and an 8 year old son.

Birds at the Thatcher woods forest preserve faced a scant Sunday dinner, due to the snow and ice, until members of the Izaak Walton league came to their aid yesterday. William G. Thon, with C. G. Sauers, superintendent of the Cook county forest preserves, took two bags of corn to the preserve and scattered it over the snow. More grain will be scattered today.

AUTOISTS SMOTHERED UNDER BLANKETS IN OVERTURNED MACHINE

Osseo, Minn., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Three persons en route to a dance were killed late last night when their automobile skidded off the snow covered road near here. The driver of the car was found unhurt when the machine was discovered in the ditch early today by other motorists.

The dead are Bernard Kuklok, 23; his sister, Pauline, 22, and Marguerite Siedenkranz, 16, all of Osseo. The driver was Arthur Schimmelpfenig, a farm hand living near here.

The coroner said the victims were smothered, as they had no broken bones or apparent serious injuries to cause death. They had become tangled up in robes and blankets when the car turned over. Schimmelpfenig also got caught in the robes, but managed to get his head clear so he could breathe. He was held down by the steering wheel, however, and unable to release himself.

Screams of Co-ed Rout Prowler at N. U. Dormitory

Awakened at 1 a. m. yesterday, Miss Evelyn Joy Eoff, a junior student at Northwestern university, saw a hatless young man in a long black overcoat skulking down the second floor corridor at Chapin hall, a dormitory in Evanston where fifty co-eds reside. As Miss Eoff screamed, awaking the other girls, the prowler fled outside and was driven away by another young man who awaited him in a sedan. A policeman was detailed to the dormitory for the remainder of the night.

OPEN SCHOOLS THIS WEEK TO TRAIN FARMERS

Thousands Will Study at Illinois, Purdue.

BY PAUL POTTER.

School opens today for several thousand middle west farmers, who with their wives bid the hired man good-by and travel over to the State college or University school of agriculture for a strenuous week of "rushing up" on the new things in the farming business.

Marketing methods, particularly the activities of the federal farm board, will be discussed by University of Illinois authorities in the opening sessions of farm and home week at Urbana today. Following the address of welcome by President David Kinley and H. W. Mumford, dean of agriculture, the "practical minded schoolboys" from over the state will hear Dr. Charles L. Stewart, agricultural economist, explain the extensive powers and plans of the farm board.

Outline Market Plans.

Four marketing specialists on the college staff will then outline the national cooperative marketing plans and their advantages to farmers producing grain, live stock and live stock products, dairy products and fruit and vegetables. A dinner will be given for the attending farmers and their wives this evening, with Sam H. Thompson of Quincy, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, speaking.

Tomorrow, the main sessions of this farmers' short course at Urbana will deal with the production, harvesting and marketing of soybeans. Illinois producing by far the most soybeans of any state, Prof. J. C. Hackleman will tell of leading varieties and production methods. Harrison Fahrnkopf, grain specialist for the Illinois Agricultural association, will outline the new soybean coöp.'s organization for Illinois farmers. Otto Eisenschiml, Scientific Oil company, Chicago, is also on the program.

Open School at Purdue.

No less an important week of schooling is instore at Purdue university for Indiana agriculturists. With J. H. Skinner, director of agriculture, in charge, more than five thousand farmers and their wives will hear such speakers as W. S. Winder, secretary, American Farm Bureau federation, a member of the federal farm board; O. E. Baker, United States department of agriculture; Miss Ethel Kawin, Institute of Juvenile Research, Chicago; Dr. Stanley E. Coulter, formerly of Purdue; and many others.

Indiana state corn and potato shows are held this week at Lafayette, as well as annual meetings of many state live stock, grain and truck growers' associations.

CHOOSES DEATH SO HER UNBORN BABY MAY LIVE

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—The case of a mother who deliberately chose death to save the life of her unborn infant was revealed today with the burial of Mrs. Minnie Zuckerbrod, sister of Harry Schlacht, president of the East Side Chamber of Commerce.

The drama was enacted Saturday at the Lying-In hospital, where Mrs. Zuckerbrod had been confined. Following a consultation, the surgeon in attendance informed his patient that a caesarian operation would be necessary for a successful delivery and told her she would put her life in peril by submitting to the operation.

ROB PARTY OF $2,000.

Samuel Rubin and his wife, Dora, were entertaining a few friends at a pinochle game in the rear room of their delicatessen store at 1341 North Western avenue early yesterday when three gunmen entered the store and took from them money, jewelry, and clothing totaling $2,000.

FORTUNATE families in Bryant Gas-Heated homes have declared for themselves a lasting independence from furnace tending, furnace men and furnace worries.

A sudden blizzard? The Bryant turns on extra heat. A sudden thaw? The Bryant turns itself off. House temperatures stay constant at the points you prefer for day and night. You take Bryant Gas Heating just as much for granted as your water supply. Its operation does not depend in any way on complicated mechanisms or delicate adjustments.

And cleanliness! No soot, dust, grime, vapor or grease to make housekeeping burdensome. No fuel storage. No tools of any kind. A furnace room as clean and quiet and useful as upstairs space.

Cost? You will be favorably surprised. We will gladly furnish, without obligation on your part, a dependable estimate for both installation and operation. Use the coupon as your first step toward furnace-room independence.

A Confidential Word to Wives—

Husbands—being men—are funny creatures. Being men ourselves, we know. They sometimes buy complicated mechanisms, which require highly expert handling, even though simple devices are available. Then they go down town or out of town and leave their wives the responsibility of keeping the complicated machinery at work.

Women have no desire to play nursemaid to a balky furnace that needs to be fed or coddled two or three times a day. If a group of women were to write the specifications for the perfect furnace and the ideal fuel and then have it built to their order, the result would be a heating plant that would duplicate the new Bryant MODEL 45 GAS BOILER in performance, cleanliness, absence of furnace tending, and good looks.

Visit one of the display offices listed at the right and let them show you a MODEL 45. Then you will KNOW why women are fortunate who live in Bryant-heated homes.

DENNY SHUTE'S 147 LEADS $10,000 GOLF TOURNEY

Hagen Picks Up; Six Chicagoans Qualify.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Battling through torrential rains and terrific head winds, fifty hardy shot makers clubbed their way into the preferred division today in a heart-breaking second round of the 72 hole $11,000 Los Angeles open golf championship.

The select group that will continue as in the 36 hole finals, eighteen hole tests tomorrow and Tuesday, was led today by Denny Shute of Columbus, O., who added a 74 to his first round 73 for a total of 147. Shute clung close to Riviera's par 71 test to show the way to the greatest figures in the game. Included in the surviving lists were six Chicagoans, headed by Al Espinosa, whose 151 tied with two others for third place.

Flooded fairways and distressingly slow greens spelled the doom of 77 others. In the list of those who tried and failed was Walter Hagen of Detroit, present British open titleholder and former national open champion. Hagen, with a 81 for his first round, failed to tee off at the ninth after a miserable showing for eight holes. He took a nine on the par five first hole. Hagen said it was the first time in his competitive career that he had picked up.

Falters on Home Stretch.

Shute's showing, in the face of the worst weather conditions attending this classic since its establishment in 1926, was a remarkable golfing feat. Playing in a heavy downpour, while tricky winds whipped up and down and across this course spread out in Santa Monica cañon, the Ohio entrant went out in 38, three over par. For the incoming stretch he posted standard figures of 36.

Only one other stroked his way below the 150 class. He was Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., youngster, whose first round of 73 and 76 today put him in second place with 149. Smith was out in par 35 but faltered on the home stretch to take 41.

Three pros and an amateur claimed places in the 151 stroke station. They were Tommy Armour of Detroit, a former national open titleholder; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Bobby Cruickshank, New York; and Fay Coleman, amateur from Culver City, Cal.

Scores of 159 or lower qualified the finalists today. Under normal conditions, several strokes would have been lopped off this total.

Johnny Dawson Fails.

Several of the chief challengers, including MacDonald Smith of Long Island, N. Y., seeking his third successive title in this classic, barely squeezed under the wire. Smith was unable to cope with the elements and chalked up an 82 for a total 159. In the same class were Tony Manero and Bill Mehlhorn, New York veterans. Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Fla., a former national open king, totaled 157, as did George Von Elm of Detroit, one time national amateur champion.

Dempsey's Blows Send Tunney to Operating Table

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Those thudding body blows Jack Dempsey inflicted upon Gene Tunney in Philadelphia when Jack lost his world's heavyweight title, and at Chicago when he failed to regain it, will send the retired champion under a surgeon's knife tomorrow for a kidney operation which, it is said, is far more serious than he would have his friends believe.

GENE TUNNEY.

"His trouble undoubtedly was caused by the punishment he took in his fights," explained a member of the hospital organization, asking that his name be withheld, in accordance with the institution's policy.

Tunney, accompanied by his wife, went to the hosital early tonight.

While he was in Europe with Mrs. Tunney the ex-fighter visited special foreign specialists. He was treated by them, it is said, but the results were unsatisfactory.

FOX HUNTING TRACT ACQUIRED BY SPORTSMEN

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—With the purpose of developing and perpetuating an ideal country for fox hunting and racing, a group of prominent American sportsmen today announced the formation of a $3,000,000 foundation and the acquisition of a large tract of land in Tennessee.

This picturesque English sport, threatened in this country by the use of barbed wire fences and the absence of vast estates under a single proprietorship, will be preserved by the organization. Under the name of the Southern Grasslands Hunt and Racing foundation, a tract of land comprising 28 square miles has been acquired near Nashville.

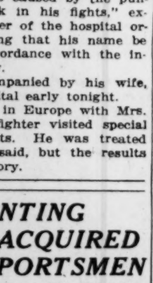
2 Records Fall in Ogden Dunes Ski Tournament

Casper Oimon, 23 year old skier from Canton, S. D., yesterday won the class A event at the Ogden Dunes Ski club with a total of 19.2 points. His best jump was 169 feet, a new slide record. Peter Falstad, Oimon's teammate, was second with 17.8 points.



CASPER OIMAN.

Record shattering was not limited to the class A event, for in the class B tournament, in which thirty-three contestants competed, Gunnar Oman, who bore the red and white colors of the Ogden Dunes club, soared over the new steel slide for 166 feet, bettering the previous mark by a foot.

George Gunderson of Racine, Wis., was placed second in the class B event. Gunderson remained in the atmosphere for 160 and 154 feet in his two attempts. His points were 17.88. Sverre Engen, one of the nine entrants of the Norge Ski club of Chicago in this event, was credited with third place with 16.16.

WILDCATS AND PURDUE RENEW PREP RIVALRIES

NORTHWESTERN.		PURDUE.
Bergherm	L. F.	Harmeson
Riel	R. F.	Porter
Walter	C.	Murphy
McCarnes	L. F.	Boots
Lockhart	R. F.	Wooden

Referee—Peeslo [Indianapolis]. Umpire—Schommer [Chicago].

Basketball rivalry dating back in some instances to grade school days will be renewed tonight when Northwestern and Purdue meet at Patten gym.

Three members of the Wildcat team and virtually all of the Purdue team either have played with or against each other during their high school careers. The Northwestern trio hails from Indiana towns, where they starred on their respective high school quintets. Rut Walter, the Purple captain, comes from Kokomo; Bob Lockhart, guard, from Martinsville, and Bob McCarnes, the other guard, was reared in Logansport.

Johnny Wooden, running guard on the Boilermaker five, played on the Martinsville High school team along with Lockhart. In 1927 these boys were members of Martinsville's state championship team.

J. R. Porter, who holds down one of the forward positions on the Purdue team, was a former teammmate of Bob McCarnes, star Purple guard, when both were in high school at Logansport. Stretch Murphy, center, and Glenn Harmeson, forward, are also Hoosier products, the former hailing from Marion and the latter from Indianapolis.

Last year the teams divided a two game series, Purdue winning the game at Lafayette, 46 to 30, and Northwestern taking the game here, 35 to 30. Both are undefeated in conference competition this season.

WOLVERINES NEED VICTORY

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Needing a victory to remain in the conference race, Coach George Veenker's Wolverine cagers meet Illinois here tomorrow night in the first home game of Michigan's Big Nine schedule.

Illinois is a tartar for Michigan in every sport. Last year the Illini held the Maize and Blue to its lowest point total in a two game series. They gave the Wolverines one of their two Big Ten defeats in a 27-24 overtime game while MCchigan won the other, 21 to 17.

Capt. Doug Mills, star Illini guard who was picked on many all-conference teams last winter, will return to the Illini lineup after an enforced absence. He caused Michigan a lot of trouble last year.

CLEVELAND NIPS CHICAGO; WINS 1ST HALF TITLE

Cleveland, O., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Cleveland's pro basketball squad won the first half championship of the American league here tonight by defeating the Chicago Bruins, 20 to 16.

Cleveland took a 16 to 8 lead in the first half, but the Bruins held the champions scoreless from the first twelve minutes of the second half and at the same time added five points to their own score. Then Cleveland broke loose and increased its lead to 20 to 13. A free throw and a field goal was all the Bruins were able to manage in the final few minutes of play. Lineup:

Just What Is This Power N. Y. Holds Over Boxing?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 12.—The New York prize fight commissioners seem quite determined to do the best they can for their political friends in the selection of the next heavyweight champion of the world. The most favored political friend of the New York commissioners is Mr. James J. Johnston, more or less facetiously known as the Boy Bandit, who is the owner of the American rights to Fainting Phil Scott, the English glider.

MAX SCHMELING.

William Muldoon, of the New York commission, designated Fainting Philip as one of the three most important heavyweights in current competition, notwithstanding a poor record, and arbitrarily put Philip in the way of promotion and pay and, of course, put Mr. Johnston in the way of considerable money also.

Greb Repudiated Mason

The New York commissioners have done many favors for Mr. Johnston. Once, when Harry Greb was still active, he took up with Mr. Johnston, repudiating his manager of record, Mr. Red Mason of Pittsburgh, whose contract had been executed under the eye of the New York commission and placed on file in the commission's archives. Mr. Mason protested but nevertheless the next time Harry Greb fought in New York, Mr. Johnston attended him in his corner. This was an ambiguous but not an embarrassing situation.

The commissioners have done many ambiguous things but they are never embarrassed. They had been very severe in their enforcement of the contractual rights of other managers whose prize fighters wished to escape but when Greb wished to ally himself with Mr. Johnston, realizing the advantage of Mr. Johnston's political influence, the affair was deemed to be a special case. However, this one never was forced to a decisive conclusion because Greb died.

It's Jim or Joe.

When Max Schmeling first came to this country and was casting about for an influential American manager to guide him, he called on an American friend and said:

"It is either Jimmy Johnston or Joe Jacobs: I don't know which one to take."

"Well," the friend said, "they are both delightful boys and the very soul of scrupulosity but if you turn down Johnston you are likely to find yourself in trouble before long."

Perhaps it was because this advice was free that Max decided it was not much good. At any rate, he chose Mr. Jacobs and before the year was out he found himself under an order of banishment and a political refugee from the rich jurisdiction of the New York commission. The overt act which brought this punishment was a refusal to go through with a match arranged by his repudiated manager, a German, between himself and Mr. Johnston's man, Fainting Phil. The commissioners would not let him repudiate his old manager as Greb had been permitted to repudiate Mason.

Max Out $100,000 It Seems.

Under this order of banishment Schmeling has been barred from participating in the winter program of fights which might have yielded him perhaps $100,000 at no great risk to his prestige. When he finally returns to practice, one may discover that he has finally realized Mr. Johnston's singular talents as a manager of heavyweight prize fighters in New York state and issue a few shares of himself to the Boy Bandit.

I trust I do not seem to pick on Mr. Johnston, who is really a very smart prize fight manager, with boundless nerve and a large family, doing the best he can and doing very well, incidentally. Having no heavyweights of my own to advance, and having no more illusions about champions than a historian has about kings, it is a matter of great indifference to me whether the next champion of the world is Fainting Phil Scott or William Stribling, except that Scott as champion would be very funny, and I like them comical. To that extent I incline to Philip.

Why Cry Over Max?

As for the injustice to Schmeling, I find it hard to become emotional over the misfortunes of athletes who not only demand but command the equivalent of five years' wages of a useful mechanic for a single appearance in the ring and even at these prices do not always fight on their merits but often connive with racketeers and politicians.

However, to concede for a moment that importance with which the heavyweight championship is thoughtlessly regarded, it seems curious that this title should have become a political honor within the gift of the boxing commissioners of one state and that it should always be administered by one firm in the state, the Madison Square Garden corporation.

There are more than thirty other boxing commissions in the country and there are corporations similar to the Garden corporation in Chicago, Boston and Detroit. These corporations, all owning large indoor arenas, may all be related by interlocking directorates of stock interests for all I know, because their affairs are very mysterious like all large corporation business.

But assuming that they are all independent, as they profess to be, I wonder why they all yield the heavyweight championship to the Garden firm and why the commissioners of other states always accept the selections, the seeded lists and ratings of the New York commissioners as final. The one fortunate factor in the whole situation is that it doesn't really matter.

Perhaps it is not quite fair that Mr. Johnston's fighters should enjoy such preferment, but the other chaps would be very glad to take the same advantage if they could.

Garden Acquires 2 Ball Parks for Outdoor Boxing

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, today announced the acquisition of the Yankee stadium and Polo grounds for boxing purposes during the summer season.

Carey also said the Warden was given an option on both stadiums for the 1931 season as well.

The Garden's action in acquiring both baseball parks gives it a virtual monopoly on the big outdoor battles of the coming season and spikes reports that Jack Dempsey, now promoting bouts for the Chicago Coliseum, would obtain the Polo grounds for several outdoor shows this summer. The only large arena now available to Dempsey would be Ebbets field, home of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

BOB OCOCK WINS 3 ICE RACES AT MILWAUKEE MEET

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Bob Ocock, University of Wisconsin speedy skater, took the senior city ice championship from Fred Einert in the annual Municipal ice carnival today, winning three of the four events for a twenty point margin. Ocock won the quarter mile in 40 seconds, the half mile in 1:27, and the mile in 3:06. Einert won the 220 yards in :20.6.

Miss Crystal Bruce easily took the woman's title, taking three firsts and lowering the 220 yard city record from :24.8 to :24.4. Evelyn Jeascke, the city champion, did not compete.

BARRETT CLUB ENTERS 15 FOR SILVER SKATES

Conroy and Miss Richey Head List.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Fifteen skaters, including two former winners, will represent the Charles V. Barrett Sportsmen's club in THE TRIBUNE'S fourteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park on Jan. 25 and 26. Entries for these races close Sunday at midnight.

Arthur Conroy, one of the best class A skaters in the country, will attempt to win his third pair of silver skates. No skater in the history of TRIBUNE Derbies has accomplished the feat.

Fails, Then Wins Twice.

Conroy is an example of what Tribune races are doing for growing boys and girls. He was not much of a skater when he entered a junior Tribune race six years ago. He was just one of the many who went to the mark in one of the preliminaries. Failure to qualify in his first attempt did not shake his courage. He made up his mind to win a pair of silver skates and he achieved his ambition three years ago when he won the junior silver skates. Last year he won the intermediate Derby and this years he will rank with the favorites for honors in the boys' senior.

Priscilla Richey, who won the junior girls' Derby last year under the colors of Belding playground where Otto Kaecke is director, will represent the Barrett club in the girls' senior this year. She will meet keen competition from her teammates, among whom will be Helen Bina, Marie Fierce, Erica Bock and Virginia Horace. The Barrett entry was made by Manager Oscar Hansen, who expects his skaters to win team honors as they did a year ago.

Clark Skaters Enter 40.

The John S. Clark playground will be represented by forty girls and boys, according to the entry received from Director Jack Maloff. Most of the entrants will compete in the boys' juvenile and junior races.

Hundreds of individual entries also were received yesterday. Out of town racers are showing unusual interest. Everything points to a record entry and keen competition.

Captains and managers are urged to send in team entries as soon as possible.

Two with 98 Share Lead in Lincoln Park Shoot

R. A. Haynie and Dr. J. D. Pollard each broke 98 out of 100 targets yesterday to tie for first in the weekly Lincoln Park Gun club shoot. Seven others with 97 tied for third. They were: Donald Badgley, Albert Gallert, T. L. Cook, H. J. Stone, Adolph Gilbert, Otto Price, and Charles Winninger.

Pape, Iowa Star, Admits Playing on Pro Grid Team

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Accustomed as it has been to sensational events since the Western conference voted last May to sever athletic relations with the University of Iowa, the Hawkeye campus nevertheless continued to buzz today with discussion of a statement by Oran H. Pape, Iowa half back, admitting that he had played semi-professional football. The statement appeared in the Daily Iowan this morning.

ORAN PAPE.

Conjecture was rife as to the reason Pape, who twice successfully had fought off the professionalism charges, had made his admission at this time. E. H. Lauer, Iowa director of athletics, to whom the Hawkeye gridiron star told his story, said he had been prompted to question Pape again by receipt last week of new evidence on the case. The evidence, Director Lauer said, was not new testimony that Pape had played, but that he had admitted to friends his former appearance in the lineup of the semi-professional Dubuque Bears.

N. Y. AMERICANS DEFEAT BOSTON BRUINS, 3 TO 2

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Displaying a remarkable defensive game, the New York Americans broke the 14 game winning streak of the Boston Bruins, champions and leaders of the National Hockey league, with a 3 to 2 victory tonight. The triumph was the second in two nights for the Americans, tail-enders of the international group.

DETROIT, 3; PITTSBURGH, 2.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Detroit's Cougars were on the long end of a 3 to 2 National Hockey league game with the Pittsburgh Pirates here tonight. The Cougars won after three periods of slow play until the final minutes.

JOHANSEN WINS CLASS A JUMP AT OCONOMOWOC

Oconomowoc, Wis., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—Fresh snow made long jumps possible and mild weather attracted a large crowd to the fourth annual ski tournament of the Oconomowoc club here this afternoon.

Half a dozen midwest clubs were represented and more than sixty contestants participated.

Jorgen Johansen of the Rockford Ski club was first in the class A division; second went to Alf Bakken of the Norge Ski club of Chicago; third to John Stulag of the Racine Ski club, and fourth to Arvid Bakke of the Milwaukee Ski club.

Joe Maurin of Milwaukee, unattached, was first in the class B division and George Sattler of the Milwaukee Ski club first in class C.

Taylor Trunks Defeat Indianapolis Girls, 27-14

The Taylor Trunks defeated the Hoosier Demons of Indianapolis, girl basketball champions of Indiana, 27 to 14, at the Broadway armory last night. The victory was the Trunks' second over a state champion, as they had defeated the Iowa titleholders earlier in the season. The Trunks led, 20 to 9, at half time. Cassie Martin, with five baskets, and Marie Curtin, with three, led the winners' scorers. Duckworth starred for the losers with seven points.

Duffy Florals Win 5th in Row; Beat Whiting Cagers

BY HARLAND ROHM.

The Blackhawks literally battered the New York Rangers out of second place last night at the Stadium in the most bitterly fought hockey game Chicago has seen since the Canadian game was introduced four years ago. The Hawks regained second place for themselves by winning, 2 to 1.

Three fights, two with fists and one with hockey sticks, two major and two match penalties, speed that had the players gasping for breath and, to top it off, the winning goal 35 seconds before the end of the game, left 12,000 hockey fans as breathless as the players.

All Scores in Third.

A sports writer could begin anywhere on the game and find a "lead." Every period was fast, but the first roused the Hawks' anger when the referees persistently ignored Ching Johnson's checking the Hawks into the boards. The second brought all three of the fights and the heavy penalties, while all the scoring was reserved for the third.

Gottselig put the Hawks in front early in that third period, which was remarkable for the scarcity of hockey players on the ice, both teams being one or two short except for the last couple of minutes. Gottselig put the Chicagoans in front with a goal in the first five minutes and Boucher tied the score five minutes later. Then, with seconds left to play, Duke Dutkowski, defense man, who was taking over a new rôle at center due to the Hawks' injuries, took the puck behind his own goal, stick-handled down left ice alone, dashed through the Rangers' forward line, then through their defense line, and raced in to score with a beautiful shot from the side in the near corner of the net.

Fists Begin to Fly.

The second period turned the ice into a prize fighting ring. The Hawks were outplaying the Rangers, pounding their goal with shots, and the former world's champions didn't take kindly to being skated off their feet. The Hawks' play lacked much of the smoothness of the New Yorkers, but they were driving so hard they had all the advantage.

Art Somers and Murray Murdoch got into the first row when the New Yorker cross-checked the Hawk on a sally. Both stripped off their gloves and fists began to fly. Separated and sent to the penalty box, Somers tried to start it all over again, but was quieted and each drew only two minutes.

Shortly afterward Teddy Graham and Bun Cook mixed and for a minute or so it appeared a free for all was in the making, with hockey players sailing in from all sides as combatants or peacemakers—it was hard to tell which. Calmer heads and the referees ended the mixup and Graham and Cook each drew major penalties of five minutes.

Somers had barely got back on the ice after his penalty when Capt. Bill Cook took up his brother's battle with the Hawk center. But this time they didn't stop to take off their gloves, but began to slash at each other with sticks, and a hockey stick swung edgewise can easily crack a skull. The peacemakers stepped in again and Somers and Bill Cook assessed match fouls. A match foul puts a player out of the game until the league president rules on the case, and permits no substitute to come on the ice for twenty minutes. It is only given for an attempt to maim another player. Both of them will likely be fined for their pugnacity.

Referees Try Peacemaking.

In the hockey interspersed between the fights, the Hawks had a decided advantage, Roach being forced to stop 17 shots to ten by Gardiner. The final battle came only a couple of minutes before the end of the period, and among other casualties Adams, Graham, and Couture came back to the ice for the third period with patches of gauze and tape on cuts on their heads.

The referees gathered the players in center ice and read the riot act at the start of that period, and either that or the fact both teams were short a man or two, much of the rough stuff

University Wins in Three Overtime Periods.

Calumet yesterday finished strong to nose Englewood out of a tie for first place in the south division of the Knights of Columbus basketball league, Killeen's basket and Myszs's free throw in the last minute giving Calumet a 29 to 26 decision. The defeat dropped Englewood into a tie for second with Calumet, while Loyola-Hyde Park took undisputed hold of the top perch in the section by trimming Auburn Park, 26 to 13. You played "hide and seek" and hid in the "swill" box in the alley behind your shed and had to hold your breath and nose to keep from being gassed?—J. H. S., Maywood, Ill.

Police Capt. Schaack, stationed at East Chicago avenue, issued orders that any woman on the street after 9 p. m. be arrested and the first one picked up was his wife coming home from a neighbor's, and, of course, he bawled out the copper and the latter said: "Well, it's your law," and Schaack then said: "Vell, I will change der law already"?—Leo Peters.

Our girl friends gave us large pieces of chamois with a tatted or lace edge and gay ribbon run through them, and these were used before our present powder puffs!—I. M., Astoria, Ill.

Fist Fights Turn Hockey Rink to Ring

Boucher Ties the Score.

Less than five minutes later Frank Boucher tied the score with a shot from outside the Hawks' defense. The slippery Ranger had taken the puck to just inside the Hawks' defense area and as the defense spread to check him, whipped a shot between them into the net.

Through the rest of the period both team fought bitterly. Ingram dumped Johnson so hard his head crashed on the ice and Ching had to leave the rink for first aid while the fans screamed insults at him. Three minutes before the end the match penalty times were up and each team got six men on the ice for the first time since the middle of the second period. And in the last minute came Dutkowski's brilliant sally that gave the Hawks the first win over the Rangers this year.

Ultra-Violet Ray Treatment
Under the Mercury Quartz Lamp $1.50

This Ultra-Violet Ray Treatment, however, is only a part of our Complete Scientific Treatment. For cases of "oily hair" it is sometimes used by itself.

For dry, tight scalps, brittle falling hair, itching or baldness, the Ultra-Violet Ray treatment is followed by vibratory and hand massage to loosen the scalp and increase circulation; by the gentle application of high-frequency current to electrify and tone the muscles and tissues, and whatever is required of ointments, or stimulating and nourishing medicants. These are applied to the scalp (not the hair) and gently warmed into it by the rays from the Infra-Red Lamp.

THIS COMPLETE SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT attacks the disorders of the scalp from every angle, and leaves it all aglow with increased circulation, soft, pliable free from dryness and tightness, and with a wonderful feeling of increased vitality. This complete treatment, Including the Ultra-Violet Ray, is..... $3.00

but it is worse on the end of your cigar

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The strong arm of the law halts the spitter whose vile and vicious habit menaces his fellow citizens. But for every spitter caught hundreds escape . . . hundreds who still work in filthy shops rolling cigars with dirty fingers and spitting on the ends!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar your physician has in mind when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said, "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

Reynolds with .317 Shows Hose the Way.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Not many wearers of white socks caused any disturbance last season among the select hitters of the American league. Only three of Comiskey's employés made even a pretense of annoying the topnotchers and the efforts of the former were not disheartening to the latter as revealed yesterday by publication of the circuit's official clouting averages.

The three South Side workers who managed to sneak in under the wire that separates the cream from the milk were Carl Reynolds, the irrepressible Charles Arthur Shires, and John Watwood who was putting in his first year away from home.

That more members of Comiskey's crew didn't conclude their year's work in a higher position causes no surprise. It was patent to the casual observer from start to finish that the team lacked a "punch." It was this deficiency that netted them a low rating in the percentage column and which has caused the club officials some uneasiness during the current winter.

Shires Averages .312.

Reynolds topped all of the Sox performers with a percentage of .317, but even this figure was distantly removed from the top. Below him was the high powered, effervescent Shires, whose average was .312. Shires might have done better if circumstances over which he had no control had not played a part. In the spring, when the batting was soft for good hitters such as Shires reluctantly admits himself to be, Charles Arthur was on the bench as a matter of descipline And late in the season when the race was over and pitchers were not wearing away their arms for nothing, Shires again was in durance vile, so to speak.

In the proximity of Reynolds and Shires was Watwood with .302. While Watwood's mark was not impressive it at least carried hope. He was tossed into regular big league employment almost before he had become acquainted with himself and having done well under unfavorable circumstances there is reason to believe he has the makings of a worth-while athlete. He will be given the chance to prove it.

Mamaux Third with .355.

The honor of topping the league fell to Lew Fonseca, the singing first baseman of the Cleveland Indians. His concluding figure was .369 for 148 games. Fonseca was cast off by the National league several years ago. Immediately behind him was Aloysius Simmons of the champion Athletics. His final mark was .365. Goose Goslin, who was first in 1925, fell down below .300 in 1929. Heinie Manush, who was a point behind Goslin in 1928, showed his consistency by finishing third in the recent campaign with .355.

In the way of individual performances Gehringer of the Tigers corraled more than a few laurels. He batted eleventh among the regulars with .333. He played in the greatest number of games, 155; scored the greatest number of runs, 131; led in steals with 27; topped the three base hit column with 19, and tied for the most hits, 215, and for the lead in doubles with 45.

MOON MULLINS—THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND

I THINK YOU TOOK ME OUT LAST NIGHT JUST SO I'D MISS THAT DATE I HAD WITH EGYPT AFTER THE SHOW, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM, WHERE DID WE GO ANYWAY?
WELL, MULLINS- IN THE FIRST PLACE-
OH I KNOW THE FIRST PLACE. WHERE DID WE GO AFTER THAT?
BY JOVE! I CAN'T REMEMBER-
SAY-EGYPT, I GUESS I OWE YOU A APOLOGY. BUT I LEARNED MY LESSON AND I'M GONNA CUT OUT MY WILD WAYS AND SETTLE DOWN- WHAT DO YOU SAY TO I AND YOU GETTIN' MARRIED?
JUST THE SAME THING I TOLD YOU LAST NIGHT. NO!
OH- WAS THAT YOU?

MARQUETTE MAY PLAY WISCONSIN ON GRID IN 1931

Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—[Special.]—A Marquette-Wisconsin football game, the first since 1919, loomed today as a result of the efforts of Athletic Directors George Little of the Badgers and Conrad M. Jennings of the Milwaukee school to establish grid relations between the two universities.

They already have scheduled two basketball games for this season, Feb. 11 and 13, and have four hockey contests on the program.

While the Wisconsin grid card is complete for the 1930 season, it is believed in many quarters that a game may be scheduled for 1931.

ROCKNE LEAVES FOR FLORIDA

With Notre Dame's grid schedule complete, the annual banquet over, and every other detail pertaining to football attended to, Knute Rockne started southward yesterday. Accompanied by his wife and son, Jack, the Notre Dame coach boarded a Florida bound train for a two months' vacation at Miami.

Hack Wilson's Got That Old Shires Fever Again, and Wants to Do Something About It

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Hack Wilson, just finished with the ceremonies attendant upon his becoming a Moose, yesterday became feverish again about meeting the Great Shires in the prize ring.

King Larkin, Hack's personal press representative at Martinsburg, W. Va., sent out a dispatch to the effect that Hack is ready to fight Shires now that the latter's reputation has been restored somewhat, following C. Arthur's devastating trimming Dec. 16 at the hands of George Trafton.

Later Promoter James C. Mullen sent out a bulletin saying he had talked to Wilson on the phone and that Sunny Boy had taken umbrage at Shires' statement from the Boston ring Friday night: "I didn't want Al Spohrer; Hack Wilson is the fellow I'm after."

Hack says he will be in Chicago within ten days to talk over terms with Mullen and arrange a date for the proposed battle. He wants the date to be several days before the Cubs depart for Catalina, the latter part of next month.

There was a time when many of us were steamed up about the prospects for a Wilson-Shires encounter but the notion doesn't carry the glamor it once did.

We have previously told, during a visit with Hack in Martinsburg, how he gets enthusiastic during the evening at the Elk's club or the Eagles' aerie [and now the Moose hall] and calms down during a day spent with the good wife.

And even if Hack were to get away from the hearth influence long enough to sign for the fight, we now have reasons to believe that Uncle Bill Wrigley and Bill Veeck wouldn't let Sunny Boy go through with it, even if they were forced to have some of Al Capone's or Bugs Moran's efficient aides kidnap their center fielder for a specified period.

Among the least interesting of the challenges Shires has received was that reported Saturday from Bill Barrett, erstwhile White Sox teammate of C. Arthur. Bill has the asset of being a clean liver in the winter time as well as during the summer, and could enter the ring in tip top shape. But Shires is reported to have tamed the noisy New Englander before Bill was traded to the Boston Red Sox.

It was a matter of common comment that Shires wouldn't permit Barrett to sit in the same section of the dugout with him and that he also gave Barrett orders not to enter the showers until Shires had finished with his bath.

Larry Atkins, who used to be employed as a herald by the Chicago Stadium, and who now is employed in a similar capacity by Jack Dempsey, was down at the train to meet Leo Lomski, who arrived from New York yesterday for the final stages of his training for his fight with James J. Braddock at the Coliseum Friday night. Leo confided to Larry that he has been promised another fight with Maxie Rosenbloom if he whips Braddock in the Dempsey show. Archie Bell and Emil Paluso also got in from New York yesterday. Bell is to fight Harry Fierro in the ten round semi-windup and Paluso will contend in a ten rounder with Ray McIntyre.

Returning to comment about members of the Interlopers' union: George Trafton, on next Thursday night at the Rainbo fronton, will fight Rudy Hoffman, whose principal b'd for fame is his claim that he is a cousin of President von Hindenburg of Germany. He also is a life guard at the Oak street beach during the summer months.

COMEDY MEETS GRIM BUSINESS IN SHOW TONIGHT

Coast Clown Tops Mullen Ring Card.

Clyde Hull, South Dakota welter weight, and Bobby La Salle of Los Angeles will top Promoter James Mullen's boxing show at White City tonight. They will box seven rounds to a decision at 150 pounds.

Dublinsky Meets Kiser.

Harry Dublinsky, product of the amateur lightweight ranks, will clash with Ray Kiser of Tulsa, Okla., in the seven round semi-windup. Dublinsky will meet his equal in punching ability, as Kiser can hit with either hand from any position. They will meet at 135 pounds.

Paul Pantaleo, former Tilden High school football player, will trade punches with Rocky Adams of Vail, Ia., in one of the seven round preliminaries. Both are hard right hand hitters. They will meet at 120 pounds. The other seven round bout will bring together Marshall Leach of Gary, Ind., and Tuffy Williams, 162 pounder.

The four round contests will be between Don Tebbetts of Sioux Falls, S. D., and George Larsen, Chicago 140 pounder; Les Finnucane, son of the well known Chicago featherweight of 30 years ago, and Al Mayer, local middleweight, and Phil Rose of South Chicago and Rudy Peterson of Evanston, welterweights. The show will open at 8:15 o'clock.

White Plains Comeback.

Charley White of Chicago, generally regarded as one of the best left hook artists who ever pulled on a glove in the lightweight division, plans to reënter the ring. After two months of strenuous training Charley asserted he will start a campaign which he hopes will terminate with a bout with Sammy Mandell for the world's lightweight title.

FOREIGN ORDERS WOULD CHEER GRAIN TRADERS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders are kept in a nervous position by announcements of different members of the federal farm board as to future action.

This, combined with failure of foreigners to come into North American markets to buy wheat in greatly increased volume, has placed the grain trade in a position where it is said that less news from the farm board and more buying orders from abroad would be most welcome.

Grain traders agree with the farm board statement's attitude as regards limiting of acreage on all leading products, but uncertainty as to the disposition of farmers to coöperate with the farm board, and the announcement of Mr. McKelvie of that body that prices fixed so far apply only to the 1929 crop, has created distrust.

Reduced Acreage Needed.

It is the general opinion of grain traders that an adjustment of acreage in grains and all farm products to domestic consumption is the only way that a surplus can be avoided. It is well known, however, by those who have followed crop reports and markets for years that there have been periods when moderate crops were raised on large acreage owing to unfavorable weather conditions and good crops have been secured from a comparative small acreage when all conditions were most favorable, so that there is no fixed rule by which production can be regulated.

Should the winter wheat come through without large loss of acreage there would be a larger production than in 1929, which was 579,000,000 bu. For any one to predict 900,000,000 bu wheat crop for the United States for 1930 is mere guess work and Mr. McKelvie of the farm board, who was quoted on Friday as predicting such a crop, says he mentioned no such figures.

Besides the uncertainty as to the extent of foreign buying and that created by farm board announcements, grain traders, particularly of wheat and rye, were confronted with reports of Russia making sales of wheat and rye for export, and while quantities were not large they were sufficient to cause weakness and encourage selling in all important grain markets with a sharp decline in prices. Added to this there was selling induced by the old time theory that Jan. 10 is the time to sell wheat. This brought out a great deal of selling and an exporter called attention to the fact that Jan. 10 is also the period for Argentina to start offering its new crop of wheat in foreign markets. Reports from Liverpool regarding this feature were that Argentine offers were at lower prices than American.

All in the trade admit that Europe will have to buy large quantities of American wheat but foreigners say that they are to buy cautiously.

At the low point on Saturday wheat prices at Chicago showed declines from the highest of the previous week of 8⅝@10c, with net losses for the week of 1⅜@1½c. December closed at $1.26⅝@1.26¾; May $1.30⅜@1.30½, and July, $1.31⅛@1.31⅝. May wheat in Liverpool was off 4⅞d from a week ago. Prices follow:

Country Sales of Corn Fair.

Corn traders have been disappointed so far this season at the smaller movement from the interior than last year. This is due to a belief on the part of some farmers who think that corn will be worth more money later in the season and to unfavorable weather conditions. Since Nov. 1 primary receipts have been practically 62,000,000 bu, against 86,000,000 bu last year. Consumption on the farms is said to be heavier owing to cold weather and snows.

The government report on commercial corn showing 2,191,000,000 bu, or 431,000,000 bu less than the December estimate of all corn, gives the trade an idea of what there is to be marketed as merchantable corn. This is 170,000,000 bu short of the marketable supply last year.

Corn stocks at terminal markets are small and there is nervousness on the part of shorts in March corn, which was 1¾c higher than a week ago, while other futures are up only ⅞c. Trade, however, is largely local professional, with 95c for May the pivotal point.

SPRING BUYING COMPARES WELL WITH LAST YEAR

Report Good Activity in Furniture Lines.

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

Leaders in the Chicago wholesale market and manufacturers who are displaying at the current exposition at the American furniture mart, report that buying of spring lines of merchandise and furniture is well up to expectations and probably exceeds the gross volume of the seasonal winter markets of previous years.

While the November crash in security prices chronicled a general business letdown, wholesale market leaders explain the heavy buying as being due to the low inventories, or "empty shelves," of merchants everywhere. Following the crash the cautious hand-to-mouth buying of the average merchant depleted his merchandise stocks on hand. Now that the occasion for purchasing spring lines is here, these same merchants are stocking up their stores on a prosperous scale.

Anticipate Rush.

The exposition, in its second week at the American furniture mart, anticipates another big rush of buyers this week. Those who have visited the winter shows in the other furniture markets of the country will now finish buying their spring lines in this central market.

Attendance at the furniture mart for the first five days last week was 3,206. This figure compares with 2,519 for the similar five day period at the 1929 winter show, and 2,068 for the January, 1928, show. This year's exposition so far has established a new attendance record for the semi-annual winter market.

The recent rapid growth of Chicago as a wholesale market center to its present size calls attention to the promotional activities of the Chicago market associates, 311 West Jackson boulevard, which is a division of the Chicago Association of Commerce. In its brief year of existence as a merchandise information bureau for visiting merchant-buyers, as well as the Chicago manufacturers and wholesalers, this bureau has been coöperating in promoting this city as the central wholesale market of the country.

Will Give Service.

Mrs. Joy Craig, its manager, has begun soliciting more than 300 buyers' offices in New York City to establish offices here, since the opening of the gigantic merchandise mart is not far off. Another similar service will be circularizing 3,500 merchants in all parts of the United States, calling attention to the services performed for visiting buyers by the Chicago Market associates. If advance notice of their visits to this Chicago market is given, hotel and other accomodations and similar services will be performed tn behalf of the merchant and buyer.

Barden-Allen, well known New York resident buyers' firm, will establish a Chicago office soon. This firm is well known in the New York market and will be the first firm of commission buyers to open in the Chicago wholesale district. S. A. Barden has entered negotiations for office space here.

EGYPTIAN COTTON.

BONDS WILL REGAIN PLACE IN FINANCIAL STRUCTURE, IS BELIEF

The market's upward movement under the stimulus of a good investment demand since the first of the year has been regarded as an indication of a return to more stable conditions and several large corporations have taken advantage of the improved sentiment and announced important new issues.

The current year is expected to see bonds resume their normal place in the financial structure. It is readily recalled that the ratio of bond to stock financing was knocked far askew in 1929 when issues in fixed income securities totaled only about a quarter of a billion dollars more than the stock offerings. In 1928 bond flotations were nearly double those of stocks, while in 1927 the distribution was about $8,500,000,000 in bonds and $1,700,000,000 in equities.

The drastic developments that came late in 1929, however, changed the picture and investment bankers point out that whereas a year ago it was more advantageous to finance through stocks, the present is a less favorable time for such operations and bonds are returning to prominence.

Continental Motors.

T. S.: After showing satisfactory operating profits for the first half of its fiscal year Continental Motors corporation in July began to feel the effects of the general slowing up in the automotive plants and for the year ended Oct. 31, 1929, reported net profit of $710,535, against $1,802,835 the year before.

Earnings in the latest fiscal year were equal to 34 cents per share on 2,113,000 no par shares outstanding, against $1.02 per share on 1,760,845 shares the year before.

The consolidated balance sheet as of Oct. 31, 1929, showed cash of $2,692,711, against $6,344,892 the year before. Surplus was $9,676,367, against $11,247,766 on Oct. 31, 1928.

The president of the corporation, in a letter to stockholders, stated that the company had ample resources to conduct its business and called attention to the fact that it had outstanding no preferred stock, bank loans, or funded debt.

The directors have omitted declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share, due in January, on the common stock.

Westvaco Chlorine Products.

C. C.: For the nine months ended Sept. 28, 1929, Westvaco Chlorine Products corporation reported sales amounting to $4,533,955. Net profit was $841,840. Earnings for the nine months were equal to $38.36 per share on 21,946 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock, par $100, and $3.23 per share on 226,109 no par common shares outstanding Sept. 28, 1929.

In the first nine months of 1928 sales were $3,221,581 and net profit was $481,757. Earnings were $21.95 per share on the preferred and $1.63 per share on the common, estimated on the same share basis.

As of Sept. 28, 1929, current assets were $2,575,145 and current liabilities were $392,631. This left a net working capital of $2,182,784, which compares with $1,118,709 a year before.

Dividends on the common stock are at the annual rate of $2 per share.

CREDITORS WILL SERVE ON BOARD OF STEINITE CO.

Jay Abelson, president of the Steinite manufacturing company stated last night that as a result of a series of meetings between officials and creditors of the company a plan had been worked out whereby production and sales of the firm can be continued.

A final agreement is expected to be drawn up today when a committee of creditors will select six of their number to serve on the board of directors of the company.

"The members of the creditors committee have all agreed on the course of action laid out," Mr. Abelson said. "All have signified a willingness to serve on the board. In the case of the companies which have brought suit in the federal court negotiations now under way, which I believe, will settle the problem."

LOFT PRESIDENT ISSUES REPLY TO GUTH CHARGES

New York, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Alfred R. Miller, president of Loft, Inc., candy manufacturers, today made public a letter to stockholders answering charges by Charles G. Guth, executive vice president of the corporation, who has demanded that Mr. Miller and two other directors be removed.

The controversy, first was brought to light Friday by action of the supreme court in Brooklyn in denying to Mr. Guth an application for a writ to examine all the records of the company. He followed this by a letter to stockholders asking that a special meeting be called to oust the officials.

Mr. Miller's letter denies that he and William L. Wemple and Charles R. Stevenson, the two directors whose removal Mr. Guth demanded, have paid themselves and their staff of efficiency experts exorbintant salaries; have shown poor judgment in disposing of a mid-town leasehold, or have made a disadvantageous contract with the Allison drug store chain.

"The letter admits Mr. Guth's charge that the company paid a banking commission of $300,000 for additional financing, but states that this sum was less than 10 per cent of the value of the transaction. Further, Mr. Miller denies the vice president's charge that three directing officials own only 400 shares of stock in the company, asserting that "myself and my friends own and have paid for between 200,000 and 300,000 shares."

U. S. Gypsum to Distribute Products of Chromite Co.

Completion of arrangements by which the United States Gypsum company will take over the entire distribution, dealer and agency organization of the Chromite company, manufacturers of metal wall tile, was announced last night by Sewell L. Avery, president. This is the third product which the United States Gypsum company has in recent months contracted to distribute in addition to its own lines.

Coupon debentures, $1,000 and $500 denominations, registerable as to principal. Interest payable semi-annually May 1 and November 1 at the office of Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company in Chicago or at the office of the Bankers Trust Company in New York. Redeemable at any time at the option of the Company, in whole or in part, on 30 days' published notice at 105 up to and including April 30, 1939, and thereafter at 1% less for each succeeding year or portion thereof, plus accrued interest in all cases. The Company agrees to reimburse, if requested within sixty days after payment, the Pennsylvania, Connecticut and California four mills tax and the Massachusetts income tax up to 6%. Interest payable without deduction for the normal federal income tax up to 2%. Continental National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, Trustee.

Business: The Associated Telephone Utilities Company, incorporated in Delaware in 1926, will upon completion of this financing, control through stock ownership or otherwise, groups of telephone properties serving a total population in excess of 3,110,000. These properties operate in 1,246 communities in the states of California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming. They include 397,428 stations and constitute one of the largest groups of independent telephone properties in the United States. Through interconnections with the lines of the Bell Telephone Companies, the long distance toll lines of the Bell System are available to all subscribers. Of the total gross operating revenues, approximately 22.4% is derived from toll business.

Earnings: Consolidated earnings (including the earnings of all properties to be presently controlled) for the years ended December 31, 1927, December 31, 1928 and October 31, 1929, after giving effect to present financing, were as follows:

Operating companies annual bond interest and preferred stock dividend requirements			2,023,553.50
Earnings accruing to minority common stock interest			73,269.54
Balance			$ 4,166,280.22
Annual interest on entire funded debt of Associated Telephone Utilities Company (including this issue)			854,035.00
Balance available for reserves, federal taxes and dividends			$ 3,312,245.22

Consolidated net earnings, as above set forth, for the year ended October 31, 1929 were more than 4.8 times the interest requirements on all the outstanding debentures of the Company (including this issue).

Equity: These debentures, totalling $15,576,000 of all series take precedence as to assets and earnings over 45,035 shares of no par value Prior Preferred Stock, 50,000 shares of no par value preferred stock and 580,975 shares of no par value Common Stock. These securities, junior to the debentures, have a present market value in excess of $21,000,000. The replacement value of the operating properties, less depreciation, is substantially in excess of all funded indebtedness and preferred stocks of the operating companies and all funded indebtedness, Prior Preferred and Preferred Stock of this Company.

Conversion: Each $1,000 debenture, with all unmatured coupons attached, is convertible at the holder's option into Common Stock on the following terms: To and including May 1, 1932, into 33 shares of Common Stock; and thereafter to and including May 1, 1935, into 30 shares of Common Stock. Each $500 debenture is likewise convertible into Common Stock on the same proportionate basis. After May 1, 1935, all conversion rights cease.

Price 99 and interest, to yield 5.60%

These debentures are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to approval of counsel. The books and accounts of the corporation and its subsidiaries are audited annually by Arthur Andersen & Co., Certified Public Accountants, Chicago.

Coupon Debentures in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, registerable as to principal. Registered Debentures in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. Coupon Debentures and registered Debentures, and the several denominations, interchangeable.

Walter S. Gifford, Esq., President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, has furnished us with the following statement regarding this issue:

PURPOSE OF ISSUE This issue of Debentures will provide funds required by the Bell System for additions and betterments and for other capital expenditures.

ASSETS AND EQUITY The assets of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company on September 30, 1929, after deducting current liabilities, were carried on its books at more than $2,378,000,000. Investments (at cost) in its associated and affiliated companies amounted to $2,015,000,000 and in its telephone plant and equipment to $324,000,000. All the property of the Company is free from lien, except certain stocks and bonds pledged to secure approximately $50,000,000 Collateral Trust Bonds. After giving effect to the issue of these Debentures, the Company's long term debt will be less than $670,000,000, whereas capital stock (including paid-up portions of stock payable in installments) will be in excess of $1,400,000,000 par value. Thus funded debt will comprise less than one-third of the Company's total capital liabilities.

EARNINGS The net earnings of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company available for interest, its interest charges and its net income during the five years ended December 31, 1928 were as follows:

Years Ended December 31	Net Earnings Available for Interest	Interest Charges	Net Income	Number of Times Interest Was Earned

* Does not include special non-recurring dividend of $47,938,865 received from Western Electric Company, Inc.

During this five-year period, net earnings available for interest averaged more than 6½ times interest charges. It is estimated that for the year 1929 net earnings available for interest were in excess of $193,000,000, or more than 7 times the estimated interest charges during that year.

DIVIDEND RECORD Dividends on the capital stock of the Company and of its predecessor have been paid at the rate of at least $7.50 per share in each of the past 48 years. Since 1921 the annual rate has been $9 per share.

PROVISIONS OF INDENTURE In the Indenture under which these Debentures are to be issued, the Company is to covenant that it will not mortgage any of its telephone lines or plant unless it shall secure these Debentures by stocks or bonds of its telephone operating companies, and that it will not pledge (with certain exceptions and limitations to be set forth in said Indenture) any stocks or bonds of its telephone operating companies unless it shall either secure these Debentures by pledge of securities as above stated, or secure them ratably with any other obligations secured by such pledge. In either case, the Company shall keep so pledged stocks or bonds of a value which shall be equal at all times to 133⅓% of the principal of the debt secured thereby. Any such collateral so to be pledged shall be similar in character to that required for the security of the Company's 30-Year 5% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds due 1946. The provisions for valuation and substitution of stocks and bonds so pledged shall be similar to the corresponding provisions in respect of the collateral securing the above-mentioned 5% Bonds due 1946.

THE ABOVE DEBENTURES ARE OFFERED FOR SUBSCRIPTION, SUBJECT TO THE CONDITIONS STATED BELOW, AT 99½%, LESS AN AMOUNT EQUAL TO INTEREST AT THE RATE OF 5% ON FACE AMOUNT FROM DATE OF PAYMENT TO FEBRUARY 1, 1930.

Subscription books will be opened at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. at 10 o'clock A. M., Monday, January 13, 1930, and will be closed in their discretion. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also, in any case, to award a smaller amount than applied for. All subscriptions will be received subject to the due issue of the Debentures as planned, and to approval by counsel of the form and validity of the related documents and proceedings.

The amounts due on allotments will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York funds to their order, and the date of payment (on or about January 28, 1930) will be stated in the notices of allotment. Temporary Debentures, exchangeable for definitive Debentures when received, are to be delivered.

WILSON PROFIT SHOWS SMALL GAIN IN 1929

Hog Supplies Upset Expectations.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Wilson & Co., the last of the "Big Four" meat packing concerns to issue an annual report, followed the others in reporting that larger hog supplies than has been anticipated upset calculations on earnings last year. While the company's sales totaled $310,000,000 for the fiscal year ended Nov. 2, 1929, compared with $295,000,000 in the previous year, profits showed only a small gain.

Net earnings were $2,304,592, equivalent to $8.05 a share on $28,602,500 preferred stock oustanding. A year's dividends were paid on the preferred stock but there is still a year's payment, or about $2,000,000, in arrears.

Adds to Surplus.

The company added $304,538 to surplus, which now stands at $4,830,132. Net earnings for the previous fiscal year were $2,207,876, or $7.71 a share on the preferred stock.

"The year brought unusual conditions in both the available supply and value of live stock, preventing a fully satisfactory operation of the business," President Thomas E. Wilson says in his report. "Live hog prices were on a substantially higher level than during the previous year. Contrary to official forecasts, hog supplies, far from being less, actually exceeded those of the previous year, upsetting entirely all expectations as to earnings.

Keeps in Step.

"The company is aggressively in step with the important developments which are taking place in the production and distribution of new products. With the ensuing changes and advancements in merchandising methods constantly being developed, their favorable effects, we are hopeful, will show in our future results."

The company's balance sheet as of Nov. 2, 1929, shows current assets of $46,476,054 and current liabilities of $17,119,560, compared respectively with $45,456,950 and $5,220,923 at the end of the previous fiscal year.

HART-SCHAFFNER NET DECLINED LAST YEAR DESPITE SALES GAIN

Despite an increase in sales net profit of Hart Schaffner & Marx, one of the largest factors in the clothing industry, showed a decline last year from the previous twelve months.

Net profits for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 were $2,514,676, equivalent to $16.76 a share on the $15,000,000 capital stock. After paying dividends surplus was increased by $1,314,676 to a total of $12,367,827. Net profits for the preceding year were $2,583,798, equivalent to $17.22 a share.

The balance sheet as of Nov. 30 shows current assets of $15,867,795, a decline of $979,429 and current liabilities of $1,568,450, a decrease of $185,723. Total assets now stand at $30,686,277, an increase of $1,128,953. Good will, trade marks and trade names are carried unchanged at $10,000,000.

ENGLISH TRADE FIGURES SEEN AS UNFAVORABLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The board of trade figures on British imports and exports during 1929, issued yesterday, are not too encouraging. England imported $80,318,921 worth more of manufactured goods of a nature which could have been manufactured here than in 1928, while at the same time exports of manufactured goods dropped by $24,424,801.

Great Britain's total imports in 1929 were $5,924,936,650, an increase of $126,065,347. Total exports were $3,537,326,089, an increase of $28,973,008, leaving England with an unfavorable trade balance of nearly $2,425,000,000, despite an increase in trade.

Great Britain bought nearly $12,125,000 more machinery from abroad this year than last, but sold only $2,425,000 more. The export of cotton manufactures dropped nearly $48,500,000; wool manufactures, slightly over $19,400,000, and coal exports rose by more than $48,875,000. The export of vehicles, including motor cars, rose by more than $14,550,000, while imports rose by $6,162,500. Exports of electrical goods and chemical dyes also showed considerable increase.

Pioneer Trust & Savings Reports Profits for 1929

Net profits of the Pioneer Trust and Savings bank for 1929 were reported as $249,482.13 equal to 33% on capital, and 17.4% on average invested capital.

Make Formal Offer Today of A.T.&T. Issue

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 12.—Formal offering will be made tomorrow of the issue of $150,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph company 5 per cent debentures, due Feb. 1, 1965, priced at 99½, to yield 5.03 per cent. The banking group comprises J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., the First National bank, the National City company, the Bankers Company of New York, the Guaranty Company of New York, Harris, Forbes & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co.

The bonds, which have been traded in on the produce exchange, closed on Saturday at 100⅝. Such transactions which were done on a "when issued" basis totaled $115,000 during the two hour trading period. The debenture 5s of the company, due 1960, which are listed on the stock exchange, closed Saturday at 101¾, up ¼.

Offering of the issue of $6,000,000 Associated Telephone Utilities company 5½ per cent convertible debentures, due May, 1944, will be made tomorrow at 99. The issue will be offered by a group consisting of Paine, Webber & Co., Bonbright & Co., Inc., and Mitchum, Tully & Co.

DAIRY FARMERS WARNED AGAINST OVERPRODUCTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Dairy farmers were warned against the overproduction of their products and urged to consume more of them at home in resolutions adopted by the dairy advisory commodity committee of the federal farm board and published by the board today.

Sale for slaughter of all low producing and unprofitable cows from the herd was one of the chief recommendations of the committe which declared further that the farmers themselves are partly to blame for the low price of butter because of their failure to consume their own butter and dairy products, thus augmenting poor marketing conditions.

The farm board injunction to the dairy farmers marked the second definite move by the board in its campaign to limit the production of agricultural produts as a means of stabilizing prices. On Jan. 6 the board emphatically warned cotton producers that they can expect little aid from the farm relief act if they overplant next year's crop.

CHICAGO NEEDS MORE HOMES, SURVEY SHOWS

An upward trend in home building in Chicago from now until the Century of Progress exposition in 1933 is predicted by the Chicago Association of Commerce. A statement issued yesterday by the association declared that a recent survey had shown a distinct housing shortage, which will necessitate considerable new construction this year to care for the normal increase in population of 60,000 annually, in addition to provide homes for the thousands who will be attracted here by the World's Fair.

"Despite the apparent surplus of vacant apartments in many sections of the city," the statement said, "a survey of Chicago indicates that the actual percentage of vacant residential accommodations is well under the 5 per cent long recognized by economists as the ideal balance between supply and demand. As a consequence, many renters, with less opportunities for choice, are being forced to take dwellings not suited to their tastes, conveniences, or finances.

"Thousands of families are living in small one, two, and three room habitations, when their normal requirements are for homes or apartments of at least twice that size. Many others are living two families to the apartment."

Jewel Tea Co. 1929 Sales Gain Over Previous Year

Finds Reproduction Cost Pertinent in Valuations

BY SCRUTATOR.

There is something to be said in favor of giving railroads and other public utilities values that are based on reproduction cost.

The Supreme court has held in several decisions, notably the one in the O'Fallon case, that reproduction cost must be given due consideration in making a valuation for rate making purposes. But the court has never specified what percentage is proper and it has been rather plain of late that there is no formula that can be adopted in such cases.

Controversies over valuation methods are due to changes in price levels. Generally speaking, if it cost $100,000 to build a public utility plant in 1914, it might cost $167,000 to build it today. Should the property be allowed to earn 7½ or 8 per cent on the first figure or the second? The question to be decided is whether the people served by the utility built in pre-war days should be allowed to penalize the people who built it by forcing them to take returns on $100,000.

Penalizes Investor.

For the investor is actually penalized. If the net earnings in 1914 were $8,000 and the same in 1929, the $8,000 will buy only what $5,000 would, at a rough approximation, have bought in the earlier year. The owner of common stock thus is placed in the same position as the owner of bonds, who agreed to take a fixed return in dollars.

There are many who have strong opinions on the subject. The following is an excerpt from a letter written by Raymond A. Duggan, a public accountant:

"The value of anything is, fundamentally, not dependent on cost less accrued depreciation [leaving out the simpler questions of going value or good will] but is wholly dependent on the cost to replace a given thing at the time under consideration, with allowances for wear and tear that have actually taken place, and as offset by maintenance policies which have been followed."

He relates also that mergers and combinations in the utility and industrial fields are always safe, if the managements are astute, on the basis of reproductive values rather than book values.

Makes Query.

The natural result of a rise in price levels has been the favoring of holders of common stocks. Mr. Duggan asks the pertinent question whether common stocks and utility valuations made on properties now established would keep up at high levels if prices as a whole slumped back toward the 1914 normal. Because economic law is stronger than legalities, utilities have been able to establish some measure of conformity with reproductive values. For the same reason it is quite likely they will have to take lower valuations in the event price levels really fall.

Regardless of valuations, rail rates have advanced pretty closely in line with other services and with commodities. It is only fair that they should go down with falling prices. The investor should be allowed true returns. If original cost predominates in making valuations too much is given him when prices fall and too little when they raise.

STOCK MARKET EYES INDUSTRY FOR SOME SIGN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 12.—The fall of daily business on the stock exchange last Wednesday to not much more than 1,500,000 shares and the shrinkage reported for December's steel production to the lowest of any month since 1924, attracted attention to the scope of reduction in the pace both of finance and industry.

There was a somewhat general trend of comment both on financial and industrial markets last week to the effect that the exceptionally low pitch to which current activities had fallen was itself an indication that the tide was about to turn. If this meant merely that in shrinkage of stock market transactions and in volume of production some point will eventually be reached so low that subsequent activities must show improvement, the remark was an obvious truism.

Has Precedent in Mind.

Wall street probably meant more than that, however, and had in mind the precedent of rapidly increased trading and a definite rise in prices very soon after an extremely low point of suspended activities had been reached. Watchers of trade and industry have adopted a somewhat similar position.

In each direction the assumption is that normal investing power and normal consuming power is so great that

Junior Stocks Still Popular with Trusts

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 12.—The annual reports of investment trusts which have been issued in the last ten days have indicated that these companies are still showing a decided preference for common stocks as investments, despite the severe depreciation which these securities sustained during the October-November market collapse.

The portfolios of several huge trusts which have been announced recently, have shown that in every case most of their funds have been placed in carefully selected common stocks, rather than in bonds or preferred stocks. Many trusts have shown a tendency to diversify their common stocks among a dozen or more industries, but have displayed little inclination to minimize risks by placing substantial parts of their capital in senior securities.

The preference which most trusts are showing towards common stocks is held in Wall street to indicate that the bankers and investment experts who advise these companies are expecting a rise in certain groups of stocks during the next year or two. The trusts, however, are said to be making ample provisions for reactions which may develop from time to time by preserving large cash balances.

In the event of sharp declines these funds would be used to purchase additional stocks, thus reducing the average price, according to the executives of the companies. Recent reports show that the cash and call loans of most trusts ranges from 20 to 40 per cent of their total net assets. A few trusts, however, are said to be constantly reducing their cash reserves by purchasing additional common stocks.

In the selection of junior issues for their portfolios, investment trusts are said to be showing more care and discrimination than at any time in their history, according to executives of several companies.

Place $158,255,000 in New Securities on Market

New Mork, Jan. 12.—New securities totaling $158,255,000 will be placed on the market tomorrow by New York banking houses and syndicates. The amount will consist entirely of bonds. The new issues are classified as follows: Public utility, $156,000,000; municipal, $2,255,000.

Retired Merchant Known as Flower Grower.

William Constantine Egan, 89 years old, retired merchant, died yesterday at his home, Egandale, at 200 Egandale road, Highland Park, after an illness of five weeks. Mr. Egan, who was famous for his garden on his Highland Park estate, was a pioneer resident of Chicago, having been brought here by his parents in 1841 at the age of six months.

Gives Attention to Flowers.

His father, Dr. William B. Egan, erected the second house on the west side, his estate covering four city blocks on Van Buren street, and later developed a large estate on the south side. Mr. Egan was formerly a partner in the firm of H. H. Shufeldt & Co., liquor dealers, but retired in 1891 when he moved to Highland Park and began to devote his attention to floriculture.

He had been interested in paleontology and several fossils were named in honor of him. In 1898 he turned his large library and his paleontological specimens over to the Chicago Academy of Sciences, and since then has given his time entirely to the development of his garden, his estate being recognized as the most famous of its kind in the middle west. Several plants have been named after him.

Director of Science Group.

He was a director of the Chicago Academy of Sciences and a member of the Illinois Humane society, the American Rose society, the Illinois Garden club and several horticultural societies. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah Chandler Egan, whom he married in 1878; a daughter, Mrs. Eva Truax; and two sons, William Bradshaw Egan of Chicago and H. Chandler Egan of Medford, Ore., and Pebble Beach, Cal., former national amateur golf champion. Funeral services will be private at the residence.

WILLIAM JACOBY FUNERAL WILL BE TOMORROW

The funeral of William L. Jacoby, president of the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company, who died Saturday, will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m., from St. James Episcopal church. Mr. Jacoby, who lived at 1367 North State street, died in St. James hospital at Chicago Heights.

Mr. Jacoby was born in Bethlehem, Pa., on Dec. 12, 1872. He was graduated from Lehigh university as a mechanical engineer at 18. He formerly was general manager of the Lathrobe Steel company and organized and built the Inter Ocean Steel company at Chicago Heights. For ten years he was president of the American District Telegraph company and for nine years vice president of the A. G. Becker company of Chicago.

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Scannell O'Neill, 52, author and for thirty years connected with Catholic journalism, died in St. Mary's hospital yesterday of pneumonia. Until forced to retire by ill health he was editor of the Catholic Citizen, Milwaukee.

He was born in Bloomington, Ill., and educated at Creighton university, Omaha.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The New Stock

Stock Jubilee Concert Wins Elmer's Praise

Radio Audience Enjoys Symphony Program.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

In the superb concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday, through W-G-N, 2 to 3 o'clock, the radio audience was enabled to join in the celebration of Frederick Stock's twenty-fifth anniversary as conductor of this great orchestra.

It would be difficult to design a lovelier concert for radio purposes and we may presume it was also to Conductor Stock's own liking. By the tone and verve in the playing, we could detect that the players themselves were joining in spirit with Mr. Stock.

We know Mr. Stock loves Wagner. That's why we heard the overture to "Tannhauser" in all its glory, and perhaps as we never heard it before. We know Mr. Stock loves Beethoven. That's why we heard Beethoven's great work, the Fifth symphony, as the major number on the program, and he who does not sense and feel the beauty and might and power of this masterpiece does not know music. The concert closed with selections from Grieg's "Lyric Suite," and everybody likes Grieg, and everybody, I am sure, liked this closing selection.

Beniamino Gigli, tenor, and one of the top notch singing actors of the Metropolitan opera, was soloist on the New York concert through W-G-N, 8:15 to 9:15. He was in fine voice and mood. His "Lohengrin" [Wagner] aria I am sure was especially enjoyed by his listeners.

Heinrich Gebhard, pianist and composer, and the New York String quartet, were heard on the New York concert through KYW, 6:30 to 7.

Folke Anderson, operatic tenor, was special soloist on the W-G-N 5 to 5:30 program. He revealed a very pleasing voice. He sang some unfamiliar Scandinavian folk songs that would seem to deserve a better acquaintance in this country.

Attorney Frank R. Cain Dies at California Home

Friends of Frank R. Cain, former Chicago attorney, yesterday received word that he had died Jan. 9 in his home at Menlo Park, Cal. Mr. Cain practiced law in Chicago for many years before departing for California five years ago. He was assistant city attorney for several years and was well known in political circles.

FUNERAL RITES TOMORROW FOR GAVIN M'ELROY

Gavin Blair McElroy, supposedly wealthy theater owner and broker, who committed suicide on Friday, will be buried at Oak Ridge cemetery tomorrow afternoon, following funeral services at 1:30 p. m. in the chapel at 1718 West 63d street.

McElroy's body was found on Saturday morning in the untenanted home of Mrs. J. B. McWhorter, an aunt of his business partner, Kenneth S. Fitzpatrick, at 6452 Ellis avenue, nearly twenty-four hours after he had shot himself through the mouth. A coroner's jury at an inquest on Saturday afternoon returned a verdict of suicide while despondent, attributing McElroy's act to loneliness over the breaking up of his family.

The fact that he was soon to have married Miss Elizabeth Connell, 6435 South Washtenaw avenue, and letters found in his pockets indicated, however, that financial troubles and not loneliness was the motive for the suicide. A farewell note to Fitzpatrick instructing him to take money from McElroy's $300,000 insurance and pay some debts, among them a sum of $91,000 owed to the Union Banking company of St. Joseph, Mich., for which F. W. Tebbe, president of the bank, had been pressing him. McElroy, who lived at the Piccadilly hotel, 5107 Blackstone avenue, had extensive theater interests in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan.

ROB CAFE ON NORTH SIDE.

Brandishing revolvers, two young men invaded a restaurant at 3473 Broadway early yesterday, frightened a man and a woman customer out the back door and robbed the proprietor, Peter Kaporgnis, of $65, with which they escaped.

DR. C. A. HAMANN, NOTED SURGEON, IS DEAD AT 62

Cleveland, O., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Dr. Carl A. Hamann, 62, fellow of the American College of Surgeons and ranked as one of the outstanding surgeons in the United States, died at Charity hospital here early today of heart disease. He had been ill three weeks.

Dr. Hamann to whom credit is given for the placing of the Western Reserve university medical school here on a high plane, retired as dean of the school of medicine in 1928.

He was said to be one of Cleveland's greatest philanthropists and is credited with performing hundreds of major operations without making any charge.

He is survived by the widow and two children.

Mrs. Carl Gabel, Mother of Assistant Prosecutor, Dead

Mrs. Carl Gabel, mother of Assistant State's Attorney Harry Gabel, Attorney Charles Gabel, two other sons and three daughters, died yesterday in her home, 10201 Lowe avenue, at the age of 72 years. She was a Chicagoan resident for 45 years. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday from the Church of the Incarnation.

More Milk Needed During Second Teething

When the baby teeth begin to go, the wise mother increases the milk in the child's diet. Lime and phosphorus are needed in greater quantities to build the strong, milk-white teeth that must last a lifetime.

The more-than-a-quart of milk a day needed by the teething child disappears like magic, if "Selected" is provided. Youngsters like the "Sweet Natural Taste" of this special drinking milk and consume quarts and quarts without the least coaxing.

During the cold weather many mothers thoughtfully put the "Selected" bottle out on the kitchen cabinet so it will be room temperature in the morning. This is a safe procedure with "Selected," because of its better keeping qualities.

"Selected" milk is produced on 105 specially picked dairy farms near Lake Geneva, Wis., with fine, healthy herds, modern barns and efficient cooling equipment. Special bottling, a double cap, and speedy delivery, bring "Selected" to you with the "Sweet Natural Taste" fully protected.

We pay a liberal premium to the farmer—and all these extra precautions mean greater expense—yet "Selected" milk costs you only 3c more a quart.

Watch the "second teething" carefully—order "Selected"—so your children will drink more milk, the teeth and bone-builder. Grown-ups like it too. It helps them keep young and fit.

WHOOPIE!
WHY, WALT, WHAT HAS GOT INTO YOU ALL OF A SUDDEN ANYWAY?
WHY NOT BE JOYFUL? MR. WICKER IS SENDING ME TO FLORIDA FOR THREE WEEKS TO GIVE THE TERRITORY THE ONCE OVER. ISN'T THAT LOVELY?
I CAN'T SEE THAT IT'S SO LOVELY FOR ME TO BE LEFT HERE ALONE.
THAT'S THE BEST PART, PHYLLIS. HE DOESN'T THINK I COULD DO GOOD WORK WITHOUT YOU—AND THROWS IN THE KIDS FOR GOOD MEASURE.
BUT, WALT—I HAVEN'T A THING TO WEAR!
WHY WORRY! YOU HAVE A BATHING SUIT HAVEN'T YOU?

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees, but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job she scolds him and calls him a playboy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses and tells her he is going out to Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and starts for California. On the train he meets Anne Abbe, who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying goodby in Utah John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

Arrived in San Francisco John Andrew meets an old school friend, Peter Merriam, on the street. Pete is selling Mercury cars and tries to sell one to John Andrew. They go for a trial spin and with John Andrew at the wheel have a slight smashup. In order to keep Pete from losing his job John Andrew buys the custom built roadster for $4,980. He also gives all but a hundred dollars of his expense money to an old man with an invention without asking what the machine is. He drives to Los Angeles in the Mercury and sees Anne at the Consolidated Studio where she is being tried out. He makes an engagement to take her to dinner. Before starting out he looks at the old man's plans and learns they are for a noiseless camera. He sells the patent rights to Consolidated for twenty-five thousand, the money to be turned over to him on the receipt of the signature of Blake, the inventor.

In the meantime the hotel people become suspicious of John Andrew and ask him to pay his bill. He decides to pawn some belongings. He receives a telegram from the inventor's attorney asking for five hundred additional or lose the contract. He decides to sell the Mercury.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

THE SALE.

John Andrew thought two thousand exceedingly low for a car only driven a few hundred miles and as new as when it was first rolled off the floor, but he said, anxious to conclude matters, "I'll take it."

"I've got to speak with Mr. Martin; he's in charge of the used car business of our organization. If you will wait . . ."

John Andrew waited; he waited a long time. When his questioner returned Martin came with him—a thin, nervous man with sandy hair and pepper and salt colored clothes. "So you're the gentleman who wishes to sell a custom built Mercury, $4,980 delivered here, for less than half you paid for it less than a week ago?" he demanded without waiting for preliminaries nor introduction. "Car been in a wreck?"

"Look out of the window," Kellogg said. "It's the big green roadster. Does it look like its original splendor's been dimmed any? Go ahead and examine the car, if you wish."

"Of course you can't; there hasn't been time for one to be issued. You can find the date of sale on the sticker attached to the windshield."

"And you want to dispose of a new car, hardly broken in, for——"

"It's worth more than two thousand," Kellogg agreed. "That's the price this man offered. Personally it ought to be worth thirty-five hundred at least. But I want to sell it at once——"

He found Anne's name and telephone number thrust under his door.

"I see," Martin said. John Andrew knew that he didn't at all. "You're in a hurry to sell it, eh?"

"Um. And you don't seem very delighted at having such a bargain offered you."

"You are located here permanently now?"

"My plans are vague," Kellogg said. "At the present I'm staying at the Poinsettia, but I don't know how long I'll be here. If you're suspicious about my owning the car and having the right to sell it or drive it over a cliff if I want, why don't you wire the Mercury people in San Francisco and find out?"

"You have no objection to my doing that?"

John Andrew snapped, "I told you to do it, didn't I?"

"I see. . . . and you'll wait here until we receive an answer?"

"I will not," Kellogg said quickly, "and if you people don't want the Mercury say so."

"It should only take a half hour or so, sir. . . . Why not wait here and then we can close the matter?" Appeasingly, "Given the necessary information about the car, that it was paid for in San Francisco, and you can have your check immediately."

"Of course it's paid for," Kellogg said. "If you really want the machine and that's the only thing which is troubling you"—digging in his inside coat pocket—"here's the receipt for $4,980 they gave me. That help you any?"

"It is only a form, sir, but you won't object to our verifying this?"

John Andrew's ears began to burn, but he controlled himself well enough. "You go ahead and verify anything you want," he said. "In the meantime I'll be . . . let's see . . . I'll go on back to the hotel, and you can phone me there."

Martin seemed to want to be helpful. "Why not have one of our boys drive you out, sir? That will give us a chance to examine the Mercury and see that there's nothing radically wrong with it . . . and give you an opportunity to ride in a Bradstreet; you'll find it compares very favorably with a Mercury, and our rubber insulated frame dampens all vibration . . . and, if I know it will be, everything is satisfactory, we'll send you our check."

"I'll want five hundred in cash," John Andrew said.

"Very good, sir. If you wish, you may have it all in cash."

"Better yet," Kellogg smiled. "Save me being identified at a bank, or even taking me to one and using up your own time. Let's see; you're waiting for an O. K. from the Mercury people in San Francisco—to see that I really paid for the machine—and when you receive that, I get the two thousand."

"Perfectly correct, sir." What Martin did not add was that he, and the Bradstreet company, had no way of knowing that Kellogg was the man who had purchased the machine and that the Mercury custom built job might have been bought by a man named Kellogg and immediately after stolen by this suave, personable fellow. The bill of sale might well enough have been in the car. The resale price—$2,000—to which Kellogg had agreed was so low that the Bradstreet organization were fiercely looking for the fly in the ointment. The Mercury could be sold, they knew, for double that amount. Nor did they wish to lose this easy profit. Martin was undoubtedly justified in his suspicions, but was good enough business man not to be carried away by them. In addition to this, by keeping the Mercury in his possession he prevented Kellogg from running away with it; that John Andrew seemed perfectly willing to leave the car almost made Martin willing to buy it immediately, and he almost said as much. However, he was a careful man. It was his job to be careful; perhaps Kellogg had only said he was willing to leave the car in order to allay suspicion.

"We'll call it settled, then. As soon as you get whatever you need from the Mercury's San Francisco branch, phone me at the Poinsettia"—and Martin jotted the name of the hotel down—"and send a messenger out with the money."

"Just as soon as we can, sir." Wanting the price in cash was suspicious. Martin decided again to let things run their course. "Will you go around and see if you can get a better price? Perhaps . . . I'm not sure, but we might raise our offer. . . . "

"I'm going to the hotel and wait for your message," Kellogg said. He had been questioned all too much for his taste and wanted no more of it. What difference, anyhow, did a few hundreds make? "You let me know as soon as you can, eh?"

The Mercury, now, was sold, or as good as sold. In an hour or two he'd have two thousand dollars. Five hundred of this must be wired Blake and his unfounded legal advisers immediately, together with the reiterated demand that Blake (and, probably, his attorneys) go to the San Francisco offices of the Consolidated and sign over the patent rights. The hotel people—good old Pete, the manager—should have their money, but not a cent more than was due to date. After that (if he were in Los Angeles that long) if they asked for more before the week was out, he'd move and tell 'em what he thought of 'em. Then to wire dear old Craig: "I have met the enemy and she is ours," or, "It was a cinch. I didn't need thirty days. In thirty days I could make a million or better." No, just a simple telegram, such as "Ten thousand dollars now on deposit to my credit. All terms strictly adhered to. "Deserved gratification that he had not utterly failed.

Lastly, Anne. Or, firstly, Anne. John Andrew began to frame what he'd say to her. "You see, I didn't want you to think I could get away with it, though I was a big bluff, didn't you? What d'you want for an engagement present? Consolidated? I'll buy it for you. Or the city hall, set in diamonds? . . . "

He found Anne's name and telephone number thrust under his door with a notation that she had phoned and requested that Mr. Kellogg get in touch with her as soon as he returned to the Poinsettia.

Good Morning!

"Little Johnny Jones," adapted from the George M. Cohan musical show, isn't great, but is a thoroughly pleasing production. It "imbues the audience with a feeling if not with an idea" and in its star, Eddie Buzzell, presents a new and captivating screen personality.

The press sheet says that Eddie is a "famous Broadway comedian." I never heard of him before, which doesn't mean that he isn't a famous Broadway comedian. I'm inclined to think that he is, judging from his performance in this picture.

He's a little fellow and looks just as Leatrice Joy did when she had her boyish bob. His smile is a dead ringer for hers. He can sing; he can dance; he can make love; he can ride a horse [maybe], and he can bring honest to goodness tears to your eyes. He's a find!

Mr. Buzzell and the splendid cast surrounding him have been ably directed by Mr. Le Roy, who has presented with sympathy, color, and snap the tale of the game, singing jockey who is truly loved by one blonde and almost wrecked by another.

The film has small town stuff, night club and water front sequences, and several bang up race episodes. Two of the original song hits of the Cohan success, "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "Give My Regards to Broadway" are sung, and several new musical numbers are introduced. Dialogue and photography are splendid.

"THIS THING CALLED LOVE."

THE CAST.

Robert Collings	Edmund Lowe
Ann Marvin	Constance Bennett
Harry Bertrand	Roscoe Karns
Clara Bertrand	Zasu Pitts
Alvarez Guerra	Carmelita Geraghty
Dewitt	John Roche
Fred	Stuart Erwin
Dolly	Ruth Taylor
Dumary	Wilson Benge
Secretary	Adele Watson

Apparently!

Har! Har!

Sergt. Quirt (Edmund Lowe), housebroken for the purpose of this film, assists Miss Bennett in her experiment. Roscoe Karns and Zasu Pitts as a married pair who only need a manager to classify as prize fighters contribute considerable comedy. Carmelita Geraghty slashes around, spreading discord, and Ruth Taylor is convincing as a wide-eyed wedded busybody who considers her own marriage a success despite the veto of her mate.

Miss Bennett gives a polished performance and is charming to look at. Her voice, rather thin and rasping, detracts somewhat from the general pleasing effect of her performance. Edmund Lowe handles his rôle with comprehension and the needed humorous touch.

"This Thing Called Love" is light, deft, and amusing.

Wearing of Green by Plants Called Vital to Humanity

New York, Jan. 12.—[Special.]—A blade of grass 150 fet long, a pine needle 75 fet long, and a section of another leaf as a small house are being planned by a committee of eminent biologists as an exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair two years hence to show that "not only civilization but human existence itself is absolutely dependent on the processes that go on in the leaf due to its greenness."

Dr. Daniel T. MacDougal of the Carnegie institution's desert laboratory at Tucson, Ariz., who made the foregoing statement, is on the botanical committee. He is in this city to consult with other members. Forty scientists, composing the national research council's science advisory committee, are working out a plan for the whole science exhibit.

"Organic life, as it originated millions of years ago," Dr. MacDougal said, "was hardly a visible element in the landscape until forms related to the low, simple vegetations then existent began to develop green color and send up stems to support the first scant leafy formations which acted as green screens to attract sunlight.

"This formation of the grass-green coloring matter, or chlorophyll, is, therefore, the outstanding phenomenon in plant science and is the basis of all botanical study. We want to illustrate not only the actual dependence of civilization on plants and plant products, but to show that all organic life, including man and his environment, depends on processes that take place in the green leaf."

Wherefore the great big leaves. They will be so large that visitors can walk around inside and see the leaf processes going on all about them. The grass blade leaf will be ten feet wide, the pine needle leaf four or five feet in diameter and in the third model, the "unit of protoplasm" individual cells will be as large as the whole body of the average visitor. The models will be made of transparent materials and their inner workings shown by light effects.

Since most people think botany means flowers, two huge flower gardens will be a part of the exhibit.

Other members of the committee are: Dr. H. P. Brown, Syracuse university; Prof. E. M. East, Bussy institution of Boston; Prof. E. J Kraus, University of Chicago; Dr. George T. Moore, Missouri Botanical gardens, St. Louis, and Prof. J. B. Overton, University of Wisconsin.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. H. F. Richardson, 8253 Evans avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

How do you think the prohibition law will end?

The Answers.

J. J. Higgins, 9116 South Ashland avenue, salesman — I would like to see it end with the return of the good old days; that is, in the establishment of government distributing stores. The government ought to take into consideration the vast amount of money it now spends in a useless effort to enforce prohibition.

Miss Adeline Lanning, 1116 North Kedzie avenue, stenographer — It hasn't had much of a beginning yet. I don't see how that what hasn't been can come to an end. The end, according to my way of thinking, is going to be mostly wet, because that's what the people want. The only reason they are getting drinks today is because they want them.

Jacob Lewis, 64 West Washington street, architect—I expect the prohibition law will end by the government establishing distributing stations for the sale of light wines and beers, the public being permitted to take their supplies home in cartons.

Miss Norine McAlvany, 1441 Lunt avenue, cashier—Prohibition so far has been disastrous, as it has not been enforced to the fullest extent. I think it would be a good idea in trying to enforce this law, first clean up Washington. As a matter of fact, prohibition has been a wonderful thing for this country.

George L. Cole, 917 North State street, theatrical publicity agent—Whatever the ultimate end will or will not be, the prohibition law should be repealed in favor of light wines and beer. In my opinion that would do away with the crime wave and many other evils we are talking so much about.

Women's Clubs Plan Garden Show Exhibits During Meeting Today

Demonstrations of sunparlor decoration will be given and miniature models of gardens will be displayed today before representatives of sixty women's and garden clubs that have entered the Chicago Garden and Flower show. The display will be at the headquarters of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, 30 West Washington street. The plan for a model residence village, made by Jacob L. Crane Jr., will be exhibited at today's meeting.

Miniature models of homes surrounded by gardens are to be made by the women's clubs. They will be assembled, according to Mr. Crane's plan, at the garden show which will be held at the Hotel Sherman March 28 to April 5.

The sunparlor decoration contest requires that a collection of flowers and plants suitable for growing in a sun parlor shall be arranged attractively with the use of shelves, pots, and plant stands. Entries for the contest will be held open until all of the space at the show has been assigned.

Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, who were married in Peterboro, N. H., in October, have returned to their residence at 900 North Michigan avenue, after a honeymoon abroad. Mrs. MacVeagh was the former Miss Zelle Barthelemy, daughter of Antonin Barthelemy, for ten years the French consul general in Chicago.

THEATER

"THE QUEEN WAS IN THE PARLOR":

Play, in three acts, by Noël Coward: made known in Chicago January 12, 1929, in the Garrick Theater, with this cast:

Nadya	Pauline Frederick
Sabien	John Littel
Prince Keri	William Stack
Emilie, his aunt	Grace Hampton
Zana, her maid	Frankie Raymond
Miss Phipps	Lily Maylon
General Krish	Alfred Cross
An usher	Dudley Carter

YES: the Queen was in the parlor; and there was trouble in the Balkans, as ever and always; and she fell in love with the Prince, although the betrothal was a matter of politics; and the chap she was in love with in Paris, ere she became Queen, killed himself, like the dear fellow he was; and she quelled the revolution. Yes: that sort of play, kidded a bit in spots by Mr. Coward (after the manner of kidders who had kidded that sort ere he was born), and written with ever so many words so arranged that they sounded faintly like Oscar Wilde at his play-writing worst. (I may be in error as to the Balkans: the place named in the playbill and in the text is Krayia; but, then, when there's trouble in plays of the sort, I always think of the Balkans and of Torpenow in Kipling's "The Light That Failed." That is among the penalties for being literary and well read, and having a memory. Anyway, it is something like Anthony Hope and the Ruritania thing, with even the sapient old soldier out of "The Prisoner of Zenda" to help the Queen out when she's in wrong.)

The tale is of how Nadya, about to wed with Sabien in Paris, is told that she is become Queen of Krayia by popular assassination: somebody named Michael has been killed, so that it is up to her. She is really under no compulsion; but, then, you know how such things are when there is to be a second act, not to speak of a third. She sends for the Prince to have a little pre-nuptial chat with him, and finds that he likes, as she does, all the operas save "Faust," and decides that she will be happy with him. Sabien comes in to make a "curtain" for the second act; and then, in due order, occurs the third act, with the statutory adjustments.

Miss Frederick, as Nadya, is much as she was a year ago in the piece wherein she performed in the Cort, but with far more tears to shed; and her associates are her associates.

Other New Diversions.

W. C. Fields and many others—although the others were without what might be regarded as identity—took part last night in the Erlanger in the first Chicago showing of an issue of the Earl Carroll Vanities that was New-York entertainment last season. A telephoned report at midnight indicated that the show is wellnigh wholly a matter of Mr. Fields and his nonsense, although there are many evidences that dollars were poured lavishly into the work of fabricating a spectacle.

"Nina Rosa," a new operetta with music by Sigmund Romberg, will be made known here tonight in the Great Northern, where the principal singing will be undertaken by Miss Berna Deane and Guy Robertson. The composer, 'tis told, will take part.

Miss Skinner Returns.

With a program made up of matter wherewith she had previously been successful in her appeal to Chicago, Miss Cornelia Otis Skinner yesterday, in the Selwyn, gave the first of three recitals. She has her own style, her own idiom, and a distinctive personality; and it is silly to talk of her being "something like Ruth Draper." She isn't; and Miss Draper isn't like Miss Skinner.

Prior to his work at River Forest, he was the assistant at Trinity church, Highland Park and at St Chrysostom's.

His Music Played, His Career Is Praised.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

As a part of the general celebration of Mr. Stock's twenty-fifth anniversary as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the Gordon String quartet played his quartet in C minor as the first number of the program at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon.

It was written even before his appointment to the directorial post, but it displays most of the qualities which appeared in more complex form later, the sane sense of form and proportion, the quite extraordinary harmonic sense, the fondness for a good melody, the clarity and unfailing musical logic.

Later in the program the Gordon organization played Ernest Bloch's "Night" to the memory of the late Horace S. Oakley, and the program concluded with Haydn's quartet in F. For almost the first time since string quartets began to play some attention was paid to scenic effect. The players sat on a darkened stage in a cone of light projected from the ceiling. It made a rather distinguished picture, conforming to the fine performance of the players.

HOMAGE TO STOCK

At a dinner honoring his silver anniversary as conductor, stirring tribute was paid to Mr. Stock by his friends—bankers, lawyers, famous musicians, social leaders and city builders—who gathered at the Palmer House. His compositions were played.

Telegrams and other messages of congratulation arrived from America and Europe. President Hoover, Gov. Emmerson, Frank Damrosch, Josef Hoffmann, John McCormack, Harold Bauer, the French composer Alfred Cortot, Mrs. Edward McDowell, wife of a famous American composer, all were generous in their praise of the conductor as a great musician.

Ernest Hudson of New York, president of the Juilliard foundation and chairman of the New York Bohemians; Samuel Insull, godfather of Chicago's civic opera, Charles H. Hamill, Karleton Hackett, Herbert Witherspoon made the principal tributes at the dinner.

"Mr. Stock's service is of more than local significance," Mr. Hudson said. "It is national and even international. For he has contributed much to the cultural progress of the world."

Mr. Insull declared that Chicago should be congratulated because it has Mr. Stock to guide its symphony orchestra music.

Mr. Hamill told how in all the twenty-five years Mr. Stock has served as conductor of the orchestra, he never once mentioned the subject of salary, thinking only of the job he had set out to do.

"Mr. Stock has to my knowledge been taken aback only in two instances," declared Mr. Witherspoon in reciting two amusing anecdotes. "Once when a mother was taking her crying child from the hall during a concert, Mr. Stock said: 'Lady, don't take the baby out, he isn't annoying me.' The mother replied: 'You ain't ain't you? Well, you're annoying him.' Another occasion when a prima donna was singing a young boy's voice rang out: 'Mamma why is he shaking his stick at that lady?' Mamma replied that he wasn't shaking a stick. 'Then what is she hollerin' for?' the boy cried."

Following the presentation of a hall clock as a testimonial gift from the Bohemians of Chicago, who sponsored the dinner, the A Cappella choir of Northwestern university conducted by Peter C. Lutkin, sang. Mr. Stock's own compositions were played by the Gordon string quartet and the Chicago Symphony orchestra played.

If You Must Dye, Gals, Then Dye at Hands of an Expert

When a correspondent puts a decision about dyeing her hair up to me—I pass. When one asks if I thought she would be better with new blonde hair than new red or new brown I do not pass without making a couple of advisory comments—nevertheless, I protect myself against any responsibility.

That's the way I feel about dyed hair and the question of whether it should be done or not. It's your move and the consequences are yours.

Certainly it is being done all over the place and there are good, substantial reasons for a woman resorting to the dye pot, as a good many gray haired women will testify after a futile course of job searching. Nor is the pressure entirely economic. Until men show more preference for the maturely streaked head, women will continue to dye for them. And that's no idle jest.

The last man on earth I should have suspected of urging his nigh fifty year old wife to spare him the sight of her gray hairs convinced me that a lot of women are dyeing their locks against their will. The particular man was not younger than his wife, either, and there was gray in his own hair, and he, more than any man known to me, measures by tape, accomplishment, and general judgment one of those grand rough diamond males you hear tell about it.

So that when I say I avoid the responsibility, nevertheless, I am fully aware of the reasons behind requests. It is because women, certainly not parsimonious in other directions, are not fully educated to the need of expert counsel, expert pre-dying tests, expert dye application. For this very expert service you have to pay. And you have to keep on paying because there is nothing permanent about your first rejuvenating color. It fades and has to be touched up again. And again.

And the repetitions call for as expert service as on the original appointment. It is the absolute hideousness of poorly done work that puts hair dyeing in the class of dubious procedures. Yet, beautiful coloring work can be done, is being done, and will continue to be done. If you are willing to spend the money for good work and the urge to dye is strong, go ahead and have it done, but be neither cheap nor experimental about it.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

To those accustomed to think of the lemon as being found only among the balmy, breeze swept fields of Florida and California, it will be startling news to learn that some of the largest, finest, and juiciest fruits are produced within a few miles of the lop. There is a tree at Garfield park conservatory carrying fourteen fruits, some weighing two pounds or more—visitors mistake them for grapefruit, to which they are closely related.

"This varity is known as the American Wonder lemon, and is allied to citrus lemonium," says August Koch, veteran horticulturist of Chicago's west parks. "It is grown in the south as an ornament, where it attains the size of a small tree. It does well as a house plant, if the pots are plunged out of doors during the summer, the soil fertilized and kept well watered. The deliciously fragrant flowers appear in abundance, followed by very attractive fruits. On the approach of cold weather the plants must be removed to the house to avoid freezing.

"The lemon is closely related to the orange, and, in its wild state, is found in India. It is supposed to have migrated westward in early times, indications being that it was grown in Palestine in the 13th century. The crusaders introduced the plant into Italy, and it later spread into all countries along the Mediterranean suitable for its growth. It is raised extensively in Florida, California, and in some districts in Texas."

Lemons were formerly imported in large numbers from Spain and Mediterranean ports, chiefly for their agreeable acid juice and essential oil, used for flavoring confectionery and the like, as well as for making acid drinks. Citric acid is also prepared from them.

C. S. Deweys Arrive Today from Poland

BY THALIA ——.

Here is some good news to serve as a fillip to the languishing social energies of the declining season. Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey of Warsaw, Poland, are arriving this morning for a visit in the city of their erstwhile residence.

The circle in which those popular Chicagoans moved before Mr. Dewey's tasks, first national and then international, took them away several years ago, is doing its utmost to tax their date books with entertainments.

The Deweys are to be house guests of Charles Edward Brown at his apartment at 2450 Lake View avenue, and the first welcoming gesture to be extended the visitors is a luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds are to give today at the Casino shortly after the visitors come in on the train from Washington, D. C. Mr. Dewey's time is not all to be occupied with social obligations, however, as he is scheduled to speak before the Chamber of Commerce this week.

My information about the Deweys' activities since they arrived in this country is lamentably scant, and still how do I know of the probable length of their stay here and what they plan to do thereafter. Since they come from Washington it is to be divined that they have been with Mr. Dewey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dewey, who have recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Their son-in-law and daughter, the Frederick M. Algers Jr., returned from Poland to this country to live last fall and are now residing with the senior Algers in Detroit, Mich.

Mr. Brown is to be host to the Deweys without the aid of his gracious wife, as she is spending the winter at Chandler, Ariz. Mr. Brown accompanied her to Chandler right after Christmas and returned but a few days ago from that zestful climate to Chicago's snows.

The Illinois Society of Colonial Dames of America, of which Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler is president, are to be guests of the woman's auxiliary board of the Chicago Historical society at tea this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the historical society.

This affair is the first of a series to be given for various women's organizations of the city with the purpose, it should think, of acquainting them with plans for the proposed new building for the society.

Dr. James A. James of Northwestern university is to give an illustrated talk on that subject this afternoon. Mrs. William S. Monroe is chairman of the board, and Mrs. Samuel Insull, Mrs. George A. Carpenter, and Mrs. Charles B. Pike are to preside at the tea tables.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick of 209 Lake Shore drive is giving a dinner party this evening, afterwards having a box party for the opening of "Nina Rosa" at the Great Northern theater.

The Junior Friends of Art, of whom Miss Olga Menn is president, are to have an "Our Debutante Day" for their midwinter program tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the tower ballroom of the Stevens. A program of music and talks will be given. The debutantes of the season have been invited to attend, hence the title for the affair.

Mrs. William G. Hibbard has invited the board of directors of the Cook County League of Women Voters and the presidents of the 23 local leagues in Cook county to a buffet luncheon at her Winnetka residence on Wednesday.

Mrs. Quincy Wright, who has just returned from attending the conference on Pacific relations in Japan, is to be among those present. Miss Nettie S. Baumann left yesterday for Washington, D. C., to represent the league at the Cause and Cure of War Conference to be held there this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie A. Weary of 321 Walden road, Winnetka, are being congratulated on the birth of a son on Friday at the Evanston hospital.

Miss Emily Otis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, plans to go to Palo February for a visit with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Otis, in Santa Fé, N. M.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Vice President Curtis has had as his guests his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry King Curtis of Chicago, who came from New York a few days ago after a week's visit there. They left tonight for their home.

Miss Helen Clifford, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Edward Clifford, formerly of Chicago, gave a tea this afternoon in honor of Miss Sally Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mather Lewis. Mr. Lewis is president of La Fayette college and formerly of George Washington university. Mrs. Lewis is a former Chicagoan. Miss Lewis and her guest, William Beets, are guests of Col. and Mrs. Clifford. Miss Clifford gave a dinner dance last night at the Chevy Chase club for them.

Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Roberts formerly of Chicago were the guests of honor at a breakfast today at the Carlton of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Ransey, who are spending a week here from their winter home at Southern Pines, Ga. Mrs. Roberts will meet her father, Noah Amstutz of Chicago in New York this week for a short visit.

HARRY MELNIKOFF UNHERALDED, BUT WINS AS VIOLINIST

BY HAZEL MOORE.

Unimpeded by any advance information whatsoever as to who he was or whence he came, Harry Melnikoff, violinist, yet managed to draw a good sized audience to the Civic theater yesterday afternoon to what is presumed to be his first recital appearance in Chicago. Perhaps it is that audiences have come to believe that there are no poor violinists any more, and they are not far wrong.

Melnikoff promptly proved himself to be of the virtuoso class of fiddlers by a splendid performance of the Handel Sonata in E major. His tone was both of good size and fine quality. He also showed a nice sense of musical line in his conception of the sonata as a whole. The largo was lovely and the other movements most satisfying. It goes without saying that his technique was more than adequate.

If the Saint-Saëns concerto that followed, that in B minor, lacked anything it was in the direction of brilliancy, for Mr. Melnikoff inclines to the studious rather than to the showy as a player. He is worthy of more extended hearing. His excellent accompanist was not named on the program.

He was heard in a magnificent performance of the Brahms Sonata No. 2, F sharp minor. Inquiry failed to reveal any one who knew this particular sonata. Mr. Maazel, however, knew it, and knew it well. Brahms-like, it ran to rather extreme length the final two movements in particular being much extended. The first and second movements were both beautifully played and of varied interest. That he was able to hold the close attention of his audience throughout was both a tribute to himself and to the sonata.

The Chopin group was not so entirely satisfactory. The C sharp minor polonnaise seemd hard and the "berceause" too smudged by excessive pedal, but the familiar A flat major waltz was delightfully played with delicacy and charm.

Mr. Maazel seems to have no inclination toward any of the so-called modern school. His program ventured no further down the path of the atonal than that supplied by Godowsky in the "Little Tango Rag" and "Nocturnal Tangier," which the avid atonalists would not consider even a start.

Katharine Goodson, English pianist, returning after an interval, played well and lengthily at the Studebaker yesterday afternoon. Her program was of a kind to commend itself to those who take their music solemnly, a group of Schubert impromptus and Brahms intermezzi, then not one sonata but two, Beethoven's so-called "Moonlight" and Brahms' F minor, finally a Chopin group of some eight items. She would seem to be considerably in sympathy with the Brahms manner, at least the sparkle of the intermezzi and the self-righteous, deliberately noble pomposity of the sonata were projected with equal certainty. Technically she is extremely able, interpretatively she is apparently more concerned with what the composer has to say than with the display of her own personality, an excellent quality for all concert artists.

The song recital by Stella Benson Sachs at the Chicago Woman's club theater disclosed an interesting talent. Though making few claims to being a technical marvel, Mrs. Sachs has a remarkable gift at getting down to the heart and spirit of a song, particularly songs of a folk nature. Hearing her in a group that took in Respighi's "Ballata," two Neapolitan pieces by Sadero, and the Spanish "Los Ojos Negros" by Alvarez, she put over four distinct interpretations in four different moods, and did them in a greatly effective manner. This is a distinctive gift and worth developing.

The concert by the People's Symphony orchestra at the Eighth Street theater yesterday afternoon began with an excellent performance of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" overture, played in good tempo and fine spirit. From there it passed to Chaminade's "Concerstueck," wherein Frieda Brim displayed well trained gifts as piano soloist. Other soloists were Mildred Gerber, soprano, and William Ehrenkrantz, but too many other musical events in other parts of the city made is impossible to hear them.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A story comes to my ears with a plot that probably is being played in more than one home at the present moment. It involves the cut and dried old theme of marrying for gold at the sacrifice of love. Or, at least when Ted and June married, everybody said theirs was the perfect love match. The boy was from a good family, so was the girl. The relatives were all pleased and the young couple were sure they were going to be supremely happy. And they were for a couple of years.

Along came a small son. About the time of his entry into the world there also appeared a fascinating gentleman, moneyed, suave, charming. He sent a magnificent gift on the occasion of the small son's arrival. He took the infant's parents under his magnanimous wing and entertained them lavishly. It was plain to outsiders before the young wife realized it herself that the rich friend of the family was enamored of her, deeply and unscrupulously, it was to turn out later.

It took a little time to get the divorce properly arranged, but it was accomplished, as that type of woman usually manages what she sets out to get. And she was shown off all over the show-off capitals of Europe.

They were not back six months until the man was wiped out clean in the stock market crash. He had no friends to rally to his cause and save him the rent money even for the elaborate apartment taken. Men did not like his kind particularly.

They have been living the last few months on the returns of her pawned jewels. A few weeks ago she had a sale of the clothes she bought abroad.

FROLIC LEADER

BERNICE BRENNAN.

Mother Applies Common Sense to "Feeding Problems"

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We have to admit, even if we had not had the experience with our own children, that there is in existence today such a thing as "the feeding problem" with children. Except in rare cases, I have a strong personal conviction that I need never arise if a certain sane attitude exists. But arise it does, and though we've written on it before, here are a few good points made by a writer of an interesting letter, part of which I will quote:

"Among my friends only one mother has been successful in rearing a child to the age of 6, with no food peculiarities. Even she failed with her second child. My first boy [4] is an example of what not to do in food training. However, I'm doing much better with the second.

"In light of limited experience and much reading, I have come to this conclusion: There are two important things for the mother of a baby to know. One is, no matter how well the baby may have eaten, there will undoubtedly come a time when his appetite will flag. This may have many causes, but teething and colds are important ones. At this time most mothers make an effort to force the food. This sets up in the baby the motions with which he avoids eating, and also instils a definite dislike of appetite.

"Often a mother mistakes a compression of the lips and turn of the head for dislike of the food when he may be merely chewing what he has with a desire to finish before anything else is taken in. Sometimes, a mistake has been made in seasoning. Occasionally, the first time a food is offered it seems undesirable. I always try it again some later day, fixed differently, as a rule.

"The other thing to know is, even a small baby can go twenty-four hours or more without food and suffer no permanent effect. The sun, moon and stars all stood still the first time Sonny missed a meal. My concern was evident, possibly through muscle tension. The meals became dramatic evasions of food, satisfying to his ego. Never, never let the baby know you care one bit whether he eats or not!

"But this is talked of more than anything among the mothers I know and I feel strongly about it."

Very practical and intelligent suggestions. I think comparing notes among mothers is often fruitful. These are the very conclusions we find have been reached by pediatricians who have been successful in dealing with these young "feeding problems."

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This one piece dress, appropriate for general utility wear, flaunts a gay scarf, finished at the end with bands of contrasting colors. The surplice bodice is plaited and caught with a buckle at the left hip, creating a draped movement that softens the line. Grouped plaits in the skirt have a diagonal top line, adding to the effect of slenderness. This design is suitable for any of the seasons materials for daytime wear.

The pattern, 3188, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material with ⅜ yard of 35 inch light and ¼ yard of 32 inch dark contrasting.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Billy had received a moving picture machine for a Christmas gift. That same afternoon he was playing a game at a neighbor's home when suddenly he exclaimed, "O, Mrs. Sheer! If you will give me this game, I'll let you in free at all my picture shows!"

He brought home the game.

Fine Collection of British Paintings Is Shown at O'Brien's

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A charming group of English paintings has just been put on view at the O'Brien art galleries. The most important is the beautiful painting of a pretty little girl sitting in the middle of a strawberry patch with one plump red berry in her chubby fingers. The canvas is called "In Perfect Bliss" and is by Sir John Millais, the English painter and famous R. A.

George Henry Harlow is another Englishman whose canvases carry weight. His work is often mistaken for that of Lawrence, who, of course, of the two is ranked the more important and who sells for four times as much. Notwithstanding this financial and critical valuation, Harlow painted with a brush that possessed feeling and sincerity and a warm sense of value. His portrait of Lord Byron, in the current exhibit, amply proves that.

Ziem is more noted for his Venetian paintings, but in the current show there is a startingly fine canvas painted at Constantinople in which the sea and buildings of the town are in the distance and the foreground is swept over by the rapid onslaught of horsemen.

A portrait of Charles Lee Lewis, who was a clever poet, is by Nathaniel Hone, English, and is another interesting canvas in the group.

At Le Petit Gourmet may be seen an exhibit of paintings by Herbert Lewis. Mr. Lewis is a modernist. His paintings possess imagination and warmth of color. Several are very lovely; others are intensely keen. "Storm," for example, has the feeling of tightness and breath taking hush which often precedes the crash of thunder and heavy attack of rain. The "Jugs" is a strong piece of work. In "Greenhouse" there is a great deal of beauty. "Fig Tree" is amusing and alive and the "Torso" is beautifully modeled.

Among the other paintings of particular merit are "Blue Doors," "Rue Sous Barri," "Three Natives" and "Roofs of Cagnes." Mr. Lewis is the son of Dr. E. H. Lewis of Lewis institute.

New York, Jan. 12.—Miss Leigh Haskins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stanley Haskins, will be married to William S. Hammersley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Percy Hammersley of New Bedford, Mass., on Feb. 9.

Mrs. Harrison Eustis arrived on the Olympic and is visiting Mrs. William Kinnicutt Fraper.

Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall have gone to Palm Beach for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle Jr. have gone to Havana.

Mrs. Charles A. Painter Jr. of Pittsburgh is visiting her mother, Mrs. W. Harry Brown, here.

Straw Hats Go to Extremes in Size.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Yes'm, the first staw hats are out. You won't find them on the Paris streets, but spring has come to the milliners' salons here. These chapeaux are made for the southern resorts.

From the models I have seen it appears that Paris millinery is going to extremes—that is, as to size. The straw hats are either very, very tiny, or outsize. Straw, in the old familiar sense, is unmistakably absent in these first models. Straw lace and straw cloth is the stuff with which French milliners are fashioning their first spring bonnets. These are fair weather materials, I warn you. They are about as waterproof as a coarse type of sieve, but they do make the prettiest kind of hats for sunny days, or for the electric light atmosphere of the dinner hour. Many of them are designed to wear in the evening, and it looks as if these dinner hats would start a new vogue.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Fudge Cake.

If the correspondent who wrote me a postcard asking me to reprint, right away, the recipe for fudge cake, signing herself "A Subscriber," would have sent a letter enclosing a stamped and addressed envelope she would have received much more prompt attention. Again I must say these daily articles are prepared considerably in advance of their appearance, and people who are expecting to write and receive immediate attention through them will have to be disappointed.

This recipe reads: One cup of sugar, one tablespoon butter, one egg, three-fourths cup sweet milk, or a mixture of half evaporated milk and half water to equal three-fourths of a cup, one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, two squares chocolate. Cream the butter, cream into it the sugar and the yolk of the egg, add the milk, then the flour, salt and baking powder sifted together. Add melted chocolate and vanilla and lightly add the beaten white of an egg. This may be baked in two layers, but for a shorter time than when in the shape of a small loaf. In the latter case bake it from forty to fifty minutes at 350 degrees.

Within the last year a cake that is probably no better than this has been exploited as a most famous cake. This exploited cake has been in two layers, baked in the form of a long bar, put together with a butter cream, and then over this a chocolate icing.

Of the many compliments this cake of ours has received—we really took it entire from a broadcast advertising recipe—one was from a woman grateful because this recipe was so economical without appearing to be cheap. She found it worth while when called upon to furnish a cake for some occasion to use this one. In one case she doubled the recipe, made it in two large, loose, thick layers, tried a butter cream filling which she says she made with two cups of confectioner's sugar, two teaspoons of melted butter, and enough orange juice beaten in to form a thick paste to spread. She said: "It was an ideal combination, and every woman complimented the cake highly."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Tribune will pay $5 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

On a Family Footing.

I was employed as secretary to the advertising manager of a department store. We had a habit of referring to the boss as "Papa," and to the various merchandise men in the store as "Uncle Jones" or "Uncle Peck." When the store acquired a new general manager who was rather elderly, he became "Grandpa."

One day I was summoned into the general manager's office by my boss who was there attending a conference and asked to bring a file. I went back to my office and shouted, to the office boy, "Papa wants you to take last year's file into Grandpa's office right away. Hurry, for Uncle Peck wants to check up on his space."

Then I turned and came face to face with my boss, who had come after me. He was a good sport about it, although he did advise us never to use such terms again. K. L. S.

SALES OPPORTUNITY.

If you are successfully selling any make of automobile, you can largely increase your income by joining the sales staff of an organization where attractive automobiles are now selling and will continue to sell rapidly in large quantities.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE
and
New Series PONTIAC BIG 6

appearing in all newspapers today makes it necessary that we have more salesmen to take care of orders from actual prospects seeking information and desiring to buy these most attractive new models.

We can use a few successful salesmen even though they have never sold motor cars. This will prove a golden opportunity for the men selected. Early summer business and several sales force represent men who have been with us over two years and who consider their money making opportunities the best in the automotive field.

About two weeks prior to today's announcement we have had the new models to show and have had more prospects than our present force could take care of. If you want to make a connection where sales are coming fast and where a good income is assured call between the hours of 10 a. m. and 10:30 a. m. only. Ask for W. S. Farrant.

COMMUNITY MOTORS, Inc.,

A SPECIALTY

We have a DOLLAR DOWN sales setup on a proposition proved beyond question to mean sales. Being a salesman YOU are naturally looking for something of MERIT that will SELL.

Answer this question to yourself: If you had two articles that ARE THE GREATEST DEMAND and were in a position to SELL THEM for HALF of what any other merchant would care to offer them, could YOU GET ORDERS a week do you feel YOU could write at a DOLLAR DOWN and a dollar per week?

JUST ONE MEASLY ORDER PER DAY WITH A DOLLAR DEPOSIT PAYS YOU $24 A WEEK IN FULL. NOTHING DEFERRED and WE GET YOU INTO THE HOME at our own expense and pay you on all other purchases that your customer makes.

IF YOU ARE SEEKING A GOOD, LEGITIMATE, STEADY INCOME AND WANT SOMETHING THAT SELLS—WE HAVE IT!
Interviews between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. only. See Mr. Ackerman.

1930—1933—but there are other years to be considered. Look around you and see how today men are pounding the pavements.

But what kind of men are walking the streets looking for work—day in and day out, without result? They are not the skilled—but the UNSKILLED —hundreds—thousands —they were not prepared.

"Be prepared" is the slogan for 1930—1931—1940 —as long as you live, and you can by getting into the Radio field—now. Radio is still young —and you can get to your goal quickly.

Operators earn $30 to $100 a week.

Engineers earn $5,000 to $25,000.

You can work from one stage to the next. Your field is unlimited in expanse.

Come in for further information concerning our complete Radio course, and let us tell you how you can started quickly and "be prepared" at

MORTGAGES

We are in the second mortgage business for other purposes than simply making a profit for ourselves.

Our primary purpose is to help the home owners of Chicago and suburbs solve their financial problems by providing a practical plan for second mortgage financing on homes, geared to meet the needs and means of the average citizen.

The second mortgage loan you obtain here may run for one, two or three years, with a monthly payment which may be as low as 2% of the principal. The charges are: 7% interest, which accrues monthly, and a commission which works out as follows:

$65.00 per $1,000 for 2 years
$90.00 per $1,000 for 3 years
